Day and Night

During an acute attack of Bronchitis, a cessless tickling in the throat, and an exhausting, hacking cough, afflict the sufferer. Sleep is banished, and great prostration follows. This disease is also attended with Hoarseness, and sometimes Loss of Voice. It is liable to become chronic, involve the lungs, and terminate fatally. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords speedy relief and cure in cases of Bronchitis. It controls the disposition to cough, and induces refreshing sleep.

I have been a practicing physician for twenty-four years, and, for the past twelve, have suffered from annual attacks of Bronchitis. After exhausting all the usual remedies

Without Relief,

I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It effected a speedy cure.—G. Stovall, M. D., Carrollton, Miss.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is decidedly the best remedy, within my knowledge, for chronic Bronchitis, and all lung diseases.
—M. A. Rust, M. D., South Paris, Me.

I was attacked, last winter, with a severe Cold, which grew worse and settled on my Lungs. By night sweats I was reduced almost to a skeleton. My Cough was incessant, and I frequently spit blood. My physician told me to give up business, or I would not live a month. After taking various remedies without relief, I was finally

Cured By Using

two bottles of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.
I am now in perfect health, and able to resume business, after having been pronounced incurable with Consumption.— S. P. Henderson, Sausalito, Penn.

For years I was in a decline. I had weak lungs, and suffered from Bronchitis and Catarrh. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral restored me to health, and I have been for a long time comparatively vigorous. In case of a sudden cold I always resort to the Pectoral, and find speedy relief.—Edward E. Curtis, Rutland, Vt.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Bronchitis. The physician attending me became fearful that the disease would terminate in Pneumonia. After trying various medicines, without benefit, he recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved me at once. I continued to take this medicine, and was cured.

Coyota Items.

Oct. 11 1887.

Ed. GUARD:—I will send you a few items from this precinct. Some of the citizens met at the Hadley school house last Saturday evening and organized a debating society for the winter. The first question debated was "Is it better that the probi-tion amendment shall not pass." The question was ably discussed by both sides, and the judges rendered a verdict in favor of the affirmative. Quite a number of the citizens of Coyota and Sinalaw precincts are discussing the question of incorporating a company to build a railroad from Eugene City westward through the Linley gap to R. B.
Hays, thence through Noti to Wild Cat and on to the mouth of the Sinalaw, to be known as the Coyota, Noti & Sinalaw Railroad.
Quite a number of the citizens of Grand Pra-rie that are willing to subscribe to the stock of this railroad. I say success to them, and I will try and keep you posted in relation thereto.

Brought out the Badger

Saddle and Moccasin.

A lot of youngsters were collected on Sunday afternoon round a badger hole, in which there was a mighty obstinate old badger—one of those old toughs that you could knock sparks out of with a hammer. Anyhow, the young sports had put all their sweet imported terriers in to him, and the old badger had come out on top every time—at least, he hadn't come out on top, because he had not come out at all; but when he and the dogs got to chewing one another underground he appeared to have away about the finest appetite. A chap who was standing by, looking on, said, kind of sadly: "I guess, misters, that my old dog'd fetch that badger out for you—if you want him out, that is." The stranger was one of those plank-shaped citizens with shiny hair like seaweed. His clothes might have been entailed clothes, in which the family had lived for centuries, and the mongrel was a dog as nearly like his master as a dog could be. Well, sir, the young bucks took a look at them both, and the more they looked the more they laughed.
The notion that that cur could best all their finely bred, imported terriers, just tickled them to death, and first one and then another and finally the whole boiling of them offered to bet 20, 30, 40 to 1 against him—anything the owner liked, in fact. But they could not bluff the old man off; he stayed with them; he seemed to have more money along, too, than you'd expect to find in such old clothes.
And the more the boys kept sousing it to him the more he kept taking 'em, till finally they quit. And the bets were all laid out on a big stone.

Well, they all stood around to see the fun.
It was pretty clear that some one was going to feel awful sick before the deal was over.
However, the visitor didn't seem like he thought it was going to be him. He picked the mongrel up and stroked him tenderly, and the old dog winced a little, too, as if he could see a chapter or so ahead of him. "Put him in," said the boys, "put him in." "Right now, gentlemen," said the stranger, and stepping down he prized him gently into the earth—stern first. Well, sir, you should have heard those boys laugh when they saw that. Laugh? Well, I should say they did laugh. For a minute or two the old dog lay there with his head out of doors—one eye fixed reproachfully on his master, the other cocked anxiously backward. Then all of a sudden there was a terrific yelp, and a cloud of dust and he shot out of the hole with the badger fastened on to him. And for the life of you you couldn't have told which looked the most foolish—the young sports or the old badger. As for the stranger, he raked in the bets, and when he got a little way off he turned around, as if he had forgotten something, and, says he, mournfully: "Boys, misters, I'm from Pecos county, Texas. I'm only a school teacher that, but they all know me. Shuf's my name—Eb'newzer Shuf—ask for 'Joyful' Shuf."

Some people talk a deal of nonsense about men entering the ministry to make a living.
A report made recently to the Tennessee conference of the Methodist church shows that the average salary of the clergy of that denomination in that part of the country is less than $500 a year; and it should be remembered that such salaries fall into arrears more easily and are left in that way with less compensation than other obligations. In many cases not more than two-thirds of the promised stipend is paid, but the person is nevertheless held to a rigid accountability for his part of the contract. Looking at it from a business standpoint, a year's service for $333.33 is not much of a speculation. He would be a very poor mechanic who could not earn twice as much, and even a day laborer in the cities would not consider it big wages. What is true of the Methodist ministry is measurably true of all other clergy.
The pastors of a few rich and fashionable congregations in the large cities are well paid, but for every one who is thus fortunate, there are a hundred who have hard work to make both ends meet. Considering that the clergy as a class are men of more than ordinary intelligence, it would seem that they could succeed at least as well in any other occupation.
Whatever their motive in taking the vows, is certainly not the expectation of a fat living.

After seeing Mr. Cleveland at Philadelphia the editor of the Republican Inquirer of that city has this to say:

The portraits of him with which the people were familiar, whether drawn by pen or pencil, did not denote him truly. There are fine noble lines of intellectuality and feeling in his face which the portraits have not given; he has characteristics of the head and heart which have not been shown by the portrait.
After seeing this mentally strong, bright man, it is folly to talk of his having achieved his present high position by mere accident, chance or luck. He achieved it by the possession and use of remarkable abilities, and his thought, speech, manner, appearance, all go to prove it. His popularity in Philadelphia to-day is a thousand times greater than it was a week ago. His praises are in the mouths of those of widest culture, of those opposed to him politically, whose respect and confidence he won during his brief visit here by the fine dignity and courtesy of his manner, his strong, fibrous intelligence, his evident sincerity of purpose and patriotic spirit.

A San Francisco dispatch of the 9th inst.
says that Special Government Agent, Lee Merrivether, has returned from Oregon and Washington Territory, whither he went to make a thorough investigation of the marriage and divorce laws and court records. Mr.
Merrivether reports the execution of the laws there lax in many instances.
