An Astonished Subscriber.

Chicago Times.

The infuriated subscriber had just rushed into the office, and a pale, spirituelle reporter faced him calmly and asked him what he wanted.

"I want to know who wrote this scurrilous article about me."

"I did."

"You did? Sure it wasn't an error of the compositor?"

"Certainly."

"Isn't the proof reader to blame?"

"Not in the least."

"Young man, let me embrace you. I've been whipping editors all my life and you're the first one I ever met who did not blame the proof-reader or compositor."

The county board of commissioners of Douglas county on Wednesday last the contract for the California Bridge Co., of Oakland, Cal., for the construction of a combination iron and steel bridge across the North Umpqua at Winchester, to cost $14,940. This structure will be 584 feet in length, approaches making the total length nearly 800 feet, capable of sustaining a weight of 200 tons. The piers are to be of iron pipes filled with concrete, and the foundations alone will be more expensive than the total cost of any other bridge in the county. The North Umpqua is a very rapid stream, subject to freshets, and it is good news that the bridge will be of the most substantial character made, it being the first steel bridge constructed in Oregon. The floor will be about fifty feet above the river bed. This bridge will accommodate a section which has been nearly cut off from market during the winter time, and located as it is on the general overland line of travel will prove a great and lasting benefit to the public. The structure is to be completed by the 1st of September, 1888.

The editor of the Waitsburg Times thus advertises in the columns of his own widely circulated journal: The editor hereof last Thursday or Friday lost—he did not "blow it in" on a horse race or any other game—but actually lost a long pocket-book. It was a long pocket-book, and it had been a long time since it had any money in it; but it contained papers, railroad passes, etc., valuable to us; therefore we will pay a liberal reward for the return of said book and papers. The book was given to us by E. L. Powell, and the passes were given by the railroad companies, and we hate to lose them.

A. Furtado, of Jewell, Oregon, has the following card in the Astorian: Notice to hoodlums—The undersigned having been annoyed by some person or persons who have queer ideas as to the rights of property and also seem to understand how to go through my house when my door is locked and the key in my pocket, proposes to call to his assistance his old musket which he proposes to leave on guard while he is gone. I will not load very heavy but will put in sufficient to make sore legs if any one fools with it.

A Lewis county farmer owned a Holstein bull worth $200, which was inclined to be cross. It got into the yard recently, and the farmer, intending to frighten the animal, loaded up his shotgun with an extra charge of powder and a large wad of paper, then planting himself squarely in front of his bulldog, he let drive at short range. When the smoke of battle cleared away the bull was lying on the ground as dead as Julius Cesar.

Convict Brot's Great Shamming Act.

Chicago Tribune.

Levi M. Brot, a state prison convict at Jackson, sentenced a year ago to three years for larceny, began seven months ago to develop symptoms of paralysis. He would suddenly fall to the ground while at work and could not get up for long periods. At length he had to go to bed. The muscles of his face became rigid, the eyes fixed, and he ceased to speak or eat only as food was fed him with a spoon. He was apparently deaf and could not see. Physicians from all parts of the state examined him, and pronounced his malady paralysis. The prison physician, however, believed Brot was feigning all his symptoms, but at the same time he deemed it nearly impossible for him to do so. The doctor determined to try a new remedy. He called the attendants into the hospital and told them in the presence of Brot that the case was a peculiar one, and that the convict could not live beyond a few days anyway, and that the next day he should proceed to chloroform Brot, saw the skull and see what the disease was. The doctor then left, and very shortly Brot began to move, and calling the hospital attendant to him he told that official that he had been shamming from the start in order to get a pardon, and did this for sympathy. Brot was routed out of bed and put to work in the paint shop. The doctor says he has heard of one similar case in this country, but only one.

The Snigger Point.

S. F. Examiner.

While reforming the language I crave leave to introduce an improvement in punctuation—the snigger point, or note of exclamation. It is written thus ∴ and represents, as nearly as may be, a smiling mouth. It is to be appended, with the full stop, to every jocular or ironical sentence; or without the stop, to every jocular or ironical clause of a sentence otherwise serious—thus: "Mr. Pickering is the noblest work of God." "Our respected and esteemed contemporary, Mr. De Young, whom for his virtues we revere and for his success envy ∴, is going to the devil as fast as his two heels can carry him." "Deacon Fitch, a truly good man ∴, is self-made in the largest sense of the term; he was born great, wise and rich, but the deflection of his nose is the work of his own conscience."

Grief too Great for Utterance.

Warner, Idaho, News.

Professor Clayton tells of a thrilling experience. At Ruby City, while looking over a claim to determine the most favorable place to prospect for a blind ledge, an extension of a valuable mine, he accidentally in marking the ground dug up some good ore and exposed the ledge. The locators, who had recently sold it for an inconsiderable sum, were with him. One of them indulged in a great deal of profanity, cursing his luck for having trifled away a fortune. Turning to his partner, who was less demonstrative, he inquired: "Why don't you kick?" "Don't talk to me, I am hurt so bad I can't kick. I'm bleeding inside."

Thousands of Dollars

are spent every year by the people of this state for worthless medicines for the cure of throat and lung diseases, when we know that if they would only invest $1 in SANTA ABIE, the new California discovery for consumption and kindred complaints, they would in this pleasant remedy find relief. It is recommended by ministers, physicians and public speakers of the Golden State. Sold and guaranteed by all druggists at $1 a bottle. Three for $2.50.

The most stubborn case of catarrh will speedily succumb to CALIFORNIA CAT-R-CURE. Six months' treatment for $1. By mail $1.10.

An Arch Made of 200 Rebel Heads.

Liverpool Mercury.

In a letter from Cabul, Mr. J. S. Pynes, an Englishman, who has been looking after the construction of the Amir's workshops, writes: "Abdur Rahman is a man whose word must not be disputed. I saw a curious piece of architecture here the other day, a ghastly triumphal arch made by artisans of the place with the heads of 200 prisoners taken in the rebellion. You can imagine the horror of the sight. Yesterday I was riding through the bazaar and came across the head, mounted on a pole, of Taimur Shah."

FARM FOR SALE.—A farm containing 390 acres, situated 3 1/2 miles from Eugene and 2 1/2 miles from Irving, is offered for sale at $20 per acre. There are 130 acres under cultivation; 80 more is open land. The rest is timber land furnishing abundance of wood of all kinds, close to market. There are three good orchards on the place. The soil is very rich and well adapted to fruit raising. Will be divided to suit purchasers. Apply to J. J. WALTON, JR., Eugene, City, Or.

The Waitsburg Times says: A seven-year-old child of Herman Myers, a few miles south east of this city died a few days ago. The child had from his infancy doubtless been dead to all the five senses—hearing, smelling, tasting, feeling and seeing. It never walked, stood or sat—nor even attempted to, yet it grew physically all the time, and at the time of its death, was as tall as ordinary for children of its age. It never in any way heeled itself, nor attempted to. It would eat what they put into its mouth, and whenever they put it thro. Its eyes were as bright as ever seen, but they seem'd to be useless. It showed no signs of life at any time except that it breathed, ate and digested its food.

Advises from Melbourne state that an immense nugget weighing about fifty-one lbs. of pure gold, has just been unearthed in the now famous Midas mine. The find has created intense excitement. The nugget is flat and has something of the contour of a colossal hand, held open, with the thumb and finger close together. Its greatest length is twelve and one-half inches. The value is estimated at $10,000. A cast of it will be taken before it is broken up.

A little story is told of one of the candidates examined before the supreme court for admission to the bar at Salem recently. It is also said the light falls from Portland. When asked, "What is marriage?" he naively remarked, "A contract by which a man and woman agree to live together." He was dumfounded by the judge curtly remarking: "Yes! Many a man and woman are indicted for that!"
