IMPORTED GOLD LACE.

Where American Officers Obtain the Gaudy Parts of Their Uniforms.

It is a singular fact that the United States, while strong in resources, is entirely dependent upon foreign countries for the gold and tinsel which are used in decorating her officers of the army and the navy when on dress parade. A military officer, no matter what flag he fights under, must have a certain amount of glitter about his shoulders, or amount of glitter about his shoulders, or he can not do justice to the government which employs him. Epaulets and shoulder knots are as essential to a well-regulated army or navy as are the guns and ammunition used on the enemy. Yet, in spite of the fact that there are six or seven thousand officers in the service of the United States, who must have gold cord, gold lace, and gilded epaulets, there is not a single manufactory in the country where this "war material" can be made. Every piece used in the decoration of the ragular, as well a figure of the ragular as well a figure of the ragular as well as the control of the ragular as well as the control of the ragular as well as the cannot be control of the contro made. Every piece used in the decoration of uniforms of the regular, as well HANDS using Curicuma Medicated Scap. as the vast quantity which goes to adorn the militia of the different States, comes from England. An officer of the Quartermaster's Department of the army tells me that the reason that none stuff could be made here as cheap as in England. At all events, no one has a sum in the establishment of a business which must necessarily be restricted.-Washington Letter.
