Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until with a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

By Taking

three bottles of this medicine I have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendall T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky. 11

Gambling in '49 in San Francisco.

Overland.

There was a Frenchman who played the violin, receiving $100 a day therefor; as women were so scarce in those days, whenever she left the saloon to go out on the street every saloon around the square was emptied to get a look at her. In these saloons there were piles of gold, both in coin and sacks of gold dust, that would put some of our commercial banks of the present day to the blush, and long tables that had their croupiers ready to take in or pay out as fast as the cards were turned. I have often watched some novice who was putting down his first ventures at play. On one occasion I saw at the same table two clergymen shove their coin under another man's arm on the table. I knew them both and know of what I speak—we are all mortals after all. Among other noted players was a judge at that time, who made it a point every evening to go around from place to place and make high play. Upon entering with his attendant, who carried the sack, he would first sit down at a table and bar off every other player; then set his time of play at a limit, say twenty minutes or half an hour, the stake from ten to twenty thousand dollars with the bank. Meantime, to keep the crowd that would be in at the time, which would number from 300 up to near 1000, he always asked them to take a drink, which meant 25 cents a head for the bar; and if he won he paid for the drinks, if he lost the bank had them to pay for.

A Prosperous Territory.

Our neighbor on the north, which has long wanted to become a part of the Union, seems at least large, rich and great enough to become a state. Eugene Semple, governor of Washington territory, in his annual report to the secretary of the interior, estimates the population of the territory at 143,669, an increase of over 16,000 in the last two years. The taxable property of the territory, exclusive of railroad property is given at $50,683,896, an increase of nearly $2,000,000 over last year. Settlement on public lands, of which nearly 17,000,000 acres remain unsurveyed, has been retarded by that fact, by the uncertainty of Northern Pacific titles, by extensive Indian reservations, etc.

The report speaks at length of the resources and capabilities of the territory, in the way of crops, stock raising, minerals and lumber production, etc., and of their great variety and importance. Of 64,000 children of school age, the average daily attendance is about 22,000. Labor is hardly equal to the demand. The salmon fisheries yielded $12,124,000 during the year.

Ankeny and the Robber.

Sunday Welcome.

Tod Bingham, the well known lawyer, tells a story on Capt. Ankeny to the effect that when that big man with a heart in proportion to his body was riding ahead of a pack train that was taking supplies into the mines in Jackson county he was stopped by a young fellow with a pistol and told to throw up his arms. The old man turned in his saddle and viewing the amateur road agent from head to foot said: "You're foolish, boy. You could not hit me but once, and then before you would know where you were I'd have you in these big arms of mine and squeeze blood out of your ears before you could say Jack Robinson. Now tell me the truth, are you hungry?" "I am," was the feeble reply. "I've been roaming about these mountains for a week, and am broke, hungry, soot and sick." Then the generous old miner got down from his horse, and when the pack train came up gave the poor boy an abundance of food, mounted him on a cayuse and hired him to help the train men as a night herder.

How Many Bullets Hit.

Boston Beacon.

The question has often been raised, what proportion of balls exchanged by hostile armies will hit their mark and kill. Difficult as it is to solve it exactly, some approximation may be arrived at from the number of balls—estimated at 30,000,000—which were fired by the Germans in the war of 1870-71. The French army lost, in dead and wounded, about 140,000 men. According to this, only one ball out of 143 fired hits its man, and assuming that on an average only one man out of seven hit was actually killed, it would seem that only one rifle ball in 858 proved fatal. It is further considered that as the number of men wounded and killed by the guns of the artillery are included in the above estimate, it may safely be said that not over one rifle ball in 1,000 fired proved fatal.

Increase of Colored People.

New York Sun.

Bishop Alexander W. Wayman, the great leader of the colored Methodists, asked the other day why the colored people of the South increased so much more rapidly than the white, answered: "We draw from three sources, while the white people only draw from one—every colored woman whose husband is white, the children are set down on our side; every white woman whose husband is colored, which condition exists in the north, the children are set down on our side; every offspring of pure African blood, of course, is set down on our side; while the white people only draw from one source, themselves."

A man in Kansas committed suicide by hanging himself in a red barn. The inquest held over his body developed the facts that his farm was mortgaged, his wife cross-eyed, and his dog had been whipped by a neighbor. In view of these circumstances the jury returned a verdict of "justifiable suicide."—Epoch.

J. L. Hallett, of Dilley, Washington county, has tendered to Governor Penney his resignation as a member of the state board of agriculture. The reason of his resignation is not stated. Mr. Hallett's term would have expired Dec. 1, 1888. Gov. Penney has not yet acted upon the resignation.

Very Wise Elephants.

Nature.

One evening, soon after my arrival in Eastern Assam, and while the five elephants were being fed opposite the bungalow, I observed a young and lately-caught one step up to a bamboo fence and quietly pull up one of the stakes. Placing it under its foot it broke off a piece with its trunk, and, after lifting it to its mouth, threw it away. It repeated this twice or thrice and then drew another stake. Seeing that the bamboo was old and dry, I asked the reason of this, and was told to wait and see what the elephant would do.

At last it seemed to get a piece that suited him, and holding it in the trunk firmly, and stepping the left fore leg well forward it passed the piece of bamboo under the armpit, so to speak, and began to scratch with some force.

My surprise reached its climax when I saw a large elephant leech fall to the ground, quite six inches long, and thick as one's finger, and which, from its position, could not be easily detached without this scraper, which was deliberately made by the elephant. I subsequently found that this was a common occurrence. Such scrapers are used by every elephant daily.

On another occasion, when traveling at a time of year when the flies are so tormenting to an elephant, I noticed that the one I rode had no fan, or wisp to beat them off with. The driver, at my order, slackened pace and allowed her to go to the side of the road, when for some moments she moved along, rummaging the smaller jungle on the banks. At last she came to a cluster of young shoots well branched, and after feeling among them and selecting one raised her trunk and neatly stripped down the stem, taking off all the lower branches and leaving a fine bunch of top. She deliberately cleaned it down several times, and then laying hold at the lower end broke off a beautiful fan, or switch, about five feet long, handle included. With this she kept the flies at bay, flapping them off on each side.

Say what we may, these are both really bona fide implements, each intelligently made for a definite purpose.

Indiana's New Senator.

Montgomery Advertiser.

I am told by prominent Indiana men that the new Senator, David Turpie, will be the Indiana of the democratic side of the senate chamber, and that he may take the laurels of sarcasm from the sharp-tongued Kansas. "Dave Turpie," said one of these gentlemen, "will be one of the strongest men in the senate, and he will be one of the ablest speakers on the democratic side of the chamber. He is one of the best read men in the United States, and he possesses a curious combination of diffidence and cheek. He is at home no place but while upon his feet speaking, and he does not impress strangers as being a great man. He is backward and modest in private life, and does not indulge in any extent in convivial society. He makes friends slowly, but he sticks to his friends to the last and fights for them. He hates his enemies, too, and he believes, I think, in the philosophy of revenge. He is a great reader, and is a fine classical scholar. He can speak French, German and Italian, and he has such a good accent in each of these that he is often mistaken for a foreigner. I don't think he has ever traveled to any extent abroad, and he has acquired his culture by private study. He is a widower, but will not cut any figure in Washington society. He will not be seen much about the hotels, and he will spend most of his time at home and in the senate. He is very plain in his dress and his manners, and he cares little for style. He is a giant, however, upon the stump."

Not a long Head.

Boston Transcript.

Together they sat side by side. Suddenly he broke the silence. "Manetta," he said, in persuasive tones, "I have long waited and watched for this opportunity. My heart calls upon me to speak.

Manetta started to arise, as if to depart in anger. "Stay," Henry cried: "stay! let me detain you but a moment. My means are ample."

Manetta suddenly showed interest. "And how is your money invested?"

"In various ways. In Mexican Central, Keeley Motor, and—"

"Say no more!" and he gave him a freezing glance. "I shall always esteem you as a friend, Mr. Munnington. I shall always be pleased to be a sister to you; but nothing more."

Rabbits in her Bustle.

London Truth.

Dress-improvers have been put to a good many novel and ingenious uses, but an addition was made to the number at Bathin the other day. The Denbighshire police went out to waylay a gang of notorious poachers, but were surprised to see them return empty-handed. Shortly afterward three Welsh damsels followed with a suspicious display of "bustle," which, on investigation, turned out to be due to the presence of twenty-seven rabbits and two lengths of rabbit netting.

"Did you ever stop to think what a tireless writer a local paper is? Week after week, reaching into year after year, it goes on telling the marriages, births, deaths, the doings of the people about town, the business successes or failures, accidents, crops, improvements, meetings, revivals—in fact, events of all kinds. All is grist that comes to the hopper of a good local paper. If you were to undertake to write a letter each week to a friend and tell him of half the news our paper gives, you will soon give up in despair. The supposed pleasure becomes tiresome, the letters become shorter, further apart and finally quit. Why the difference? Because with the newspaper men it's business. People in a lively town recognize this and take pleasure in giving the editor news items you would never learn."

A Boston clergyman has figured it out that the millennium will arrive next year, but a western man claims to have evidence that it is not due until 1890. They should try to reconcile their differences, and if they could postpone the event until 1893 they would earn the gratitude of the several American cities which propose to celebrate the four-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.—Norristown Herald.
