What is It?
That produces that beautifully soft complexion and leaves no traces of its application or injurious effects? The answer, Wisdom's Roburine accomplishes all this, and is pronounced by ladies of taste and refinement to be the most delightful toilet article matchless. F. M. Wilkins, agent, Eugene Delays are Dangerous.

You say, well, 'tis only a slight cold, look out, it may lead to an inflammation of the lining of mucous air cells of the Lungs, this is Pneumonia. Or to spasmodic contractions of the fibres of the air passages, which is Asthma; or the inflammation of the lining membrane of the throat and tubes which pass through the Lungs, which in the first stage is called Bronchitis; and may lead to consumption. Santa Abie is delicious in flavor, certain and perfect in its result. A few doses will relieve a thorough treatment cure the above named diseases.
Every bottle warranted by all druggists.

A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.
Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life.—Jno. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I.
I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.— H. E. Stimpson, Rogers Prairie, Tex.
Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold, which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it

The Best Remedy for Colds, Coughs, and all Throat and Lung diseases, ever used in my family.
—Robert Vanderpool, Meadville, Pa.
Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my Lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who know me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is also discovered here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class.—J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark. !!

Protection against Grain Speculators.
The great wheat exporting countries are the United States, Russia, India, Australia and the Argentine Republic. Together they exported 200,000,000 bushels in 1886, of which the percentage of the United States was 69.13.
In 1884 they exported 202,352,000 bushels, the share of the United States being 40.34 per cent. These exports altogether were to satisfy European markets. The results here stated exhibit the course of wheat exportation, and show that the increased production in the countries above named makes itself felt already in the foreign trade of this country in bread stuffs.
The report of the International Corn Market in Vienna August 30, 1887, shows an increase in the production of wheat in 1887 over 1886 of from ten to twenty per cent., in nearly every country in Europe; a decline of 349,000 tons, or more than 11,000,000 bushels, in India, and an estimated decline of 27-000,000 bushels in the United States.
The conclusion of the whole matter is that it is the duty of our farmers to protect themselves from unscrupulous speculators in crops, and to secure the highest market price for their grain. Shippers and confidence men are always at work, but their schemes can be circumvented by the intelligent cooperation of the producer in any given region. The total cereal crop of the United States is 3,000,000,000 bushels. The difference of one mill a bushel is $3,000,000; of one cent a bushel is $30,000,000. The farmers are entitled to this difference. They ought to have it, and let the speculators and manipulators of "deals" and "corners" meet the fate that they bring upon themselves, as notably in the past summer, when the devastation produced among them was terrific and deserved.

A Handy Pocket Atlas.
An attempt to put in pocket size the contents of a large reference atlas is usually accompanied by rough, inaccurate, and inelegant engraving and printing, but in the New Pocket Atlas of the World, published by Ivi-son, Blakeman & Co., 753 & 755 Broadway, New York, this is not the fact. Ninety-one maps containing nearly every geographical point of interest throughout the world, are given, and each is a gem of the engraver's art. Delicately yet distinctly colored, these maps are exquisite illustrations of the best color printing to-day obtainable. While the maps leave nothing to be desired by way of fulness, they are fully up to date, and show every recent discovery, or change of boundary.

One hundred and twelve pages of terse, well-arranged and accurate information concerning every important country or state on the globe, follow the maps in this compact volume. In fact, the book is not only a comprehensive Atlas, but also a condensed Gazetteer of the whole world, and all put in an attractive and substantial binding, and sold for fifty cents. If not found at your bookseller, on the receipt of this sum the publishers mail it to any address.

An Ex-Executioner's Little Show.
London Times.
A correspondent writes: Binns, the exhangman, is traveling with a show, in which he reveals his art for the entertainment of the large crowds who collect to see him perform the happy despatch. The subject is a wax figure representing Mrs. Berry, the Oldham poisoner, and the entertainment is now at Stockport, in Cheshire. The showman, a young man, first gives a biographical sketch of Binns, then the curtain is rung up, revealing a scaffold with the regular crossbeam, and the subject standing on the drop strapped hands and feet. A surprised chaplain stands on one hand and a uniformed jail governor on the other, while two reporters, or individuals to represent them, watch the grim proceedings. Binns, black bag in hand, steps forward, extracts the rope, places the noose around the subject's neck, and when the feelings of the spectators has been wrought to an intense pitch, draws the bolt and the wax figure disappears into the pit beneath.
Mr. Binns then holds a levee.

a Virginia Marriage.
A romantic marriage which might perhaps furnish the text of a novel to be called "Marriage in haste; or the baby bride," has created a great sensation at Brunswick court house, Virginia. The facts are related thus: The parties to the event are Miss Maud Williams, aged thirteen years, and Maurice Chesley, aged twenty-six years. Miss Williams is an orphan child and quite well to do. Chesley is a popular farmer. He, in company with the child, started for the county court house for the purpose of qualifying in court as the child's guardian, but on the way he proposed marriage to the little miss and was readily accepted. When they arrived at the court house, Chesley, instead of qualifying as guardian for the child, procured a marriage license, and was married to her at the court house in the presence of a few witnesses.
The bridal couple then drove back to the residence of the groom.

The first postage stamp ever used in this country is believed to have been brought out in New Haven in 1846 by E. A. Mitchell, who was then the Postmaster there. Mr.
Mitchell, in response to many complaints of inconvenience in paying postage at the delivery windows, as the office was sometimes closed, and it took time at best, finally got a stamp engraved and printed. These stamps were sold at postage rates and proved very convenient. Mr. A. E. Lines, an engraver of New Haven, has found the original design. He had engraved it in 1846, and saved it. The stamping tool was made for use as a canceling stamp, is now used, and the letters were engraved on brass. Recently Mr.
Lines showed his old design to Postmaster Sperry, of New Haven, who told him he had been offered $400 for one of the impressions.

Dyspepsia and Salads.

New York Evening Sun.
"Americans as a class eat as much oil with their salads as did the Venetians in the time of Medici," said John Chamberlain to a journalist the other day. But it took many years to overcome their early Puritanical prejudices. In the minds of the descendants of the Puritans there was a strong but unconscious association between Catholicism and French, and oil being extensively used by the French in the preparation of their food, these descendants, like their ancestors, had a strong aversion for it. To the Puritans, Popery was the sum of all abominations, and the French people were to them the exemplars of Popery. Therefore, whatever was French was strongly opposed by the Puritans. The French were danced and the Puritans were quite naturally opposed to it. In fact, all of our Blue laws were compiled on a basis opposing something French."
"Americans are a cosmopolitan people, and made up of the representatives of all nations. The Puritan is a representative of England, because England is, and always has been since the reformation, anti-Popery. The test of what was right was what the Catholics did not do. They even removed the cross from their churches because the Catholics used the sacred emblem. The Puritan was never so happy as when he was uncomfortable. They imagined that to deserve heaven hereafter they were obliged to live in a sort of modified hell on earth. They rightly concluded that dyspepsia was the best representation of the tortures of the bottomless pit, and the surest way to contract it was to eat oil in their salads. This is the true origin of the American disease, dyspepsia.

"Salads, when properly prepared, are the most enjoyable part of dainty dinners. They are cooling to the stomach. They assist digestion which is often needed after a dinner of heavy joints and side dishes. They relieve the feeling of fullness so often complained of by fast eaters, and their preparation at the table animates conversation.
When bathed in pure olive oil they become Nature's choicest gifts. Dyspepsia and and cranky, idiotic ideas are unknown to the lover of a well-made salad."

A Remarkable Well.
A dispatch from Salem under date of Nov.
4, says: Dr. Harry Lane, superintendent of the asylum, anxious to conduct the affairs of the institution as economical as possible, has been devoting considerable time lately to experimental well digging. The latest venture was a hole eight feet wide which until to-day promised to furnish the asylum with an unlimited amount of cold water. Last night the pumps were kept running all night to keep the water out of the way of the workmen, but it gained too fast, and this morning Dr. Lane sent to Portland for another pump.
To-day the pumping has ceased. A most remarkable change in the character of the water took place. Clouds of vapor were seen to rise from the mouth of the well, and investigation showed that the well contained twenty-five feet of water almost boiling hot, and a temperature has not changed during the day. The projectors of the well are not much disturbed over the transformation, and fear that the water may not return to its former condition of coolness.

Dr. Harry Lane's well has now returned to a normal condition. Sunday two steam siphon pumps were placed in the well and the twenty-five feet of water, still somewhat warm, abstracted therefrom. Dr. Lane expects that his well will be yielding 6,000 gallons of pure cool water per day in a very short time, and he proposes to immediately make arrangements for furnishing the asylum with the fluid by means of the proper machinery.—Statesman, Nov. 8th.

Rules on "Going Security." W. F. Brown, in the Ohio Farmer gives the following sensible rules in regard to dorsing notes. 1. No married man ought to endorse a note without his wife's knowledge and consent. 2. He ought never to sign a note for a larger sum than he could pay without embarrassing his business. 3.
He should never sign a note simply because he feels sure that there is no possible danger of his being called upon to pay it, but with the full knowledge of the responsibility he assumes as an endorser and with the determination of walking up and paying it the day it is due if the principal is not able to meet it. 4. As indiscriminate endorsing will bring financial ruin to any man, and as the man who asks another to endorse for him must be ready to return the favor, the safe way to endorse is to agree with some man, in whom you have confidence, to sign notes while he does the same for you and each must agree not to endorse for the amount of a dollar for anyone else except by mutual consent.

Lots of San Francisco people know Pat Kelley, the biggest merchant of the North country, who has made millions at St. Paul, Well, Pat has two likely daughters, and one of them wanted to marry young Tingle, whose father is in the San Francisco Custom House. The young man is a gentleman and a son-in-law of whom one would be proud, and Mrs. Kelley, who is a French lady, was proud, but old Pat's veins refused to tingle to Tingle, and the young people were going in an humble way to be married at the minister's house. About that time Pat told Mrs. Kelley that he wanted to invite the President and Postmaster-General to his house during their tour. Then Mrs.
Kelley said: "No, Mr. Kelley, you will entertain no Cabinet officers nor Presidents, nor first ladies in this house while your daughter is being married like a hired girl in the house of a stranger. Behave like a father and give her the sort of a wedding she deserves, poor dear, or when your guests arrive they'll hear me singing, 'Katie, bar the door.'" Pat saw he was caught and he surrendered, and the young folks married in good style; and that is what comes of having your prospective mother-in-law on your side.
—S. F. Alta.

It is reported that Mr. T. J. Potter, vice-president of the Union Pacific receives an annual salary of $50,000 and a $40,000 bonus besides. Ninety thousand a year buys a higher order of talent than the Welcome finds itself able to employ now; but then railroads by adding just a little to shippers' freight bills, can pay Potter's salary just as easy as we can pay our devil. Vice presidents come high but the companies must have them and the people must pay.—Portland Sunday Welcome.
