

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1887.

An inquirer asks why it is that New York goes democratic on the general ticket and the legislature remains republican? It is because the republicans of that state have persistently violated its constitution for many years by refusing to redistrict it for members of the legislature. It is a gerrymander most pronounced and pernicious. If population were considered the legislature would change with the general ticket, but it does not, because the republicans violate the law by retaining an apportionment made many years ago. Because of this New York has had a democratic United States senator only once since she elected John A. Dix in 1848. We hear a great deal about suppressing votes in the south, but here is a case in which the leading state in the Union is throttled and denied its natural representation in the Federal senate. Seymour was twice governor of New York. Tilden, Lucius Robinson, Cleveland and Hill, all democrats, have all been elected to that great office and some of them by enormous majorities, and yet so effective is this gerrymander that the legislature remains republican. If the Federal senate change we hope it will bring the matter to a test by refusing their seats to the New York senators, on the ground that they are elected in violation of the constitution of their state.—S. F. Alta.

A local paper claims that the Republican defeat in New York is owing to the solid support given the Democratic ticket by the liquor dealers. This is astonishing news when it is known that in the Republican city of Buffalo, which is one of the principal cities of New York, the Republicans had saloon keepers for candidates for the offices of Mayor, Treasurer and Assessor, and for aught we know, they were all elected. With these facts staring them in the face, is it to be wondered at that sincere Republican prohibitionists should reject the hypocritical professions of the Republican party being a temperance party?

Fred Cook's life is in sharp contrast with that of Grant's. Cook, who is the Democratic secretary of state for New York, landed at Castle Garden from a German steamer, ignorant of the language, friendless and almost penniless. He went to work at once, employing himself for some time as a butcher and then a shoemaker, afterwards becoming a railroad brakeman and conductor. He is now the head of one of the largest fire insurance companies in this country. They voted for the man in New York, and Fred Cook was elected. The name that opposed him was beaten consequently.

Capt. John Wise, a Republican, was the conductor who had charge of the presidential train from Indianapolis to St. Louis. "I knocked me out," he said, "when I saw Dan Lamont step off the train and purchase nine tickets to St. Louis. Cleveland footed the bills all the way through. I have hunted many a one of the statesmen and office-holders, but that is the first I ever saw who paid his own way."

J. C. Stevens, who is prominently connected with the agricultural interests of the Buckeye State and who has been a life-long Republican, speaks in the highest terms of President Cleveland, and says that if his administration continues to be as satisfactory as it has been up to the present time, no power on earth can prevent his re-election.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie says: "I am a staunch Republican, but I would be a very dishonest man if I did not say that Mr. Cleveland's administration has been highly creditable. The American abroad has no cause to blush, and I for one will shed no tears if Mr. Cleveland is re-elected." Mr. Carnegie is a Republican of national prominence.

The Des Moines Register, Iowa's leading Republican paper, apologized to the Iowa Republicans for Senator Allison's acceptance of appointments to speak in New York, to the neglect of Iowa, by saying that New York was "the pivotal state," that is to say, the state in which this year's result determines next year's Presidency.

Mr. Timothy Hopkins, of the Southern Pacific Railroad, says the O. & C. R. R. will be completed by November 25th, and that he expects the California excursion will leave San Francisco, about December 1st. The citizens of Eugene should at once commence arrangements for a proper reception here.

The Republican Legislature of New York was equally false to the temperance people and the liquor dealers. Its history on this question is unparalleled for fatuous duplicity and hypocrisy. Both sides did their best to vote that party out.

Oregon voted on a constitutional amendment to change her election from November to June. It was beaten by less than 1,000 votes. It was submitted at the wrong time. Oregon cannot forego the pleasure of firing the first gun in 1888.—S. F. Alta.

The election in New York last Tuesday settled beyond doubt the fact that the Democrats will carry the State one year hence in the Presidential contest.—Welcome.

Grover Cleveland is indeed a lucky man; and James G. Blaine may be said to be a dead cock in the pit.—N. Y. World.

The country may rest assured that New York State is ever sure for the Democracy.—Albany. (N. Y.) Argus.

As goes New York in 1887, so the country will go in 1888.—New York Tribune, October 31, 1887.

Anarchists Spies, Parson, Engel and Fisher left this world last week via the gallows.

Hon. W. A. J. Sparks, Commissioner of the General Land Office, has resigned.

Official Returns.

The following is the official vote of the counties so far as heard from. There are 28 counties in the state:

County	Yes	No	Yes	No

THE SIALAW COUNTRY.

SEVEN, OR., NOV. 2, 1887.

ED. WEST SIDE.—Having just arrived from an extended trip on the Sialaw river and vicinity, and thinking that a brief description of the country would be of interest to the many readers of the West Side, we will endeavor to give it to the people as near what it is as is possible under the circumstances. The Sialaw river heads near Drain station, Douglas county, in the Calapooya mountains and runs in a northwesterly direction, emptying into the ocean about five miles below Florence. The bay extends several miles above Florence, and is navigable for small steamers to the head of tide water. While large ocean steamers have no trouble in reaching Florence, as the water is sufficiently deep to admit most any sea-going vessel. The bay is exceedingly well harbored from any storms, as it is inland far enough, and in such a location as to be one of the most secure bays from storms that we have met with on the Pacific coast. The average depth of water at Florence is 25 to 27 feet at the entrance of the bay. Florence is a small town at present; then there are three large salmon canneries fitted with sufficient machinery for that industry. Two general merchandise stores, a saloon and dwellings. The U. S. mail has been changed from once a week to twice a week. A four horse stage has been put on the route which has changed the time to nineteen hours from Eugene to Florence. The stage meets the mail steamer at the head of navigation, from which passengers and mail are transported to Florence. The north fork of the Sialaw is considerably longer than the main river or any of its tributaries. The mouth of the north fork is several miles above Florence, and is navigable for small steamers some six or seven miles. South slough puts into the bay opposite the mouth of the north fork. This is navigable four miles, the bay at this point being of greater width than at any other point, and the depth of water at this point to receive large steamers. The resources of this country are simply immense, but the salmon canning is the only industry that has developed itself. The lumbering facilities are enormous, one of the finest bodies of timber on the Pacific slope being located on the Sialaw river and its tributaries, and as to dairying it is second on the coast, as it has been but briefly tested. The range on the hills is of such a nature as to be of the best qualities of cattle feed, producing a sumptuous supply of milk and butter. The climate is mild in winter, having but little snow and cold weather; and again in summer the weather is very cool, from the fact the timbered mountains render it nice and pleasant. The soil in this section is of a rich color, and produces an immense yield of everything that is planted. The land on this river will, on an average, attain to the width of one-fourth of a mile on either side of the stream. What I allude to when I say bottom land, is bottom land and not hills. The bottoms share a growth of chittim wood, alder, maple and hazel. Some of this is easy to clear. A man that is not afraid to work can clear a half-acre per day. This is not calculated to be a farming country, that is small grain any more than to raise hay. We noticed timothy hay that grew on the bottom at one of the farms that attained the height of six feet and made four tons to the acre. Fine vegetables grow on these lands, hardy vegetables growing up as late as Christmas. Don't think, kind reader, for once that this land is all taken, and that there is no chance for any one else, for there are thousands of acres of this land open to settlement, and waiting for the weary home-seeker. Most all the accessible land from the head of navigation up twenty miles has been located. But the largest bodies of land and the most of the large bottoms lay up the river. The county surveyor finished surveying a new road from this point to the mouth of Wild Cat up to the upper settlement on the Sialaw river. A party of men numbering twenty are busily engaged cutting out the new road preparatory to moving their families in this winter. This part of Lane county has been very dormant heretofore, but the tide has turned and a boom is the consequence. Not only a boom, but home seekers can get hold of a home in a mild climate, and in a prosperous country, where famine is unknown in the annals of this state. The distance from Eugene City to the head of navigation is about fifty-six miles; to Florence from Eugene seventy-six miles; from Eugene to Florence, $4. This seaport is one of the most inviting seaside resorts on the coast. Fine drives on the sand beach from Florence to Umpqua; fine fishing facilities, bathing, boating, clam digging, etc. The hills and mountains abound in deer, bear, elk, cougar—anything and everything to enjoy the pleasure seeker, and many happy homes for the homeless. Lake creek, a stream as large as the Sialaw, is being bridged, L. N. Roney having the contract for the same. The county appropriated $3800 to build it. It is to be a Howe tress bridge. Lake creek bears a strong resemblance to the Sialaw in every particular. Good lands and reliable locations for homes. Men are working the road at every opportunity, aside from the regular road work. Consequently the roads are getting to be first-class for the mountains. The settlers take great interest in the road to keep it in good condition. Good substantial bridges are put in wherever needed. Schools in the several districts, and are carried on with good success, the number of pupils being rather limited, additions being made often. A great many are investing in property in Florence. Very recently some have built on their property, but the scarcity of lumber stopped the building, as the small saw mill could not fill the demand for lumber. We understand that a large saw mill is to be built next summer on the bay with a capacity of 50,000 ft. per day.
