Staging in Early Days

EUGENE, Jan. 10, 18, 8. EDITOR GUARD:—An item appeared in table GUARD of Dec. 31st copied from the Ashland Tidings, in regard to the first stage and driver thereof across the Siskiyou mountains which I think is wrong in dates. In tains which I think is wrang in dates. In 1851-2 there were about twelve stage companies in California running to all parts of the State. In 1853 they held a meeting in Sacramento and joined in a joint stock company under the name of the C. S. C. Co., which was to commence the 1st of January, 1854, with Jas. Beach president, Chas. McCanlin vice president and Warren Hell control of the Canlin vice president. Caulin vice president, and Warren Hall general manager. In the summer of 1854 Chas. McCaulin sent his brother and a driver named Little Sam, by way of Portland with two Concord coaches to take them to Yreka to run between that point and Callahan's ranch, to connect with the Great bouse sad-dle train that run from Shasta. In taking them from Oregon City to Aurora Mr. Me Caulin was thrown from the box the wheel running over his head killing him. Sam had the remains buried and hired another man to help him through. When they got to Yreka Hugh Slicer, a nephew of McCau-lin's, took charge of the stock and as super-intendent ran a daily stage line to Callahan's intendent ran a daily stage line to Callahan's and put on a tri-weekly stage across the Siskiyous to Jacksonville with Little Sam as driver, and not Dan Cawley as stated in the Tidings. This was in 1854 and not in 1856 as the Tidings states. In 1855 the president of the company started to New York but was lost with the steamer Yankee Biade, when James Hayworth was elected. In 1856 they stocked the Pitt River route from Red Bluff stocked the Pitt River route from Red Bluff to Yreka, by way of Pitt river, McCloud val-ley and Shasta valley. This route was run but four months, when the Pitt River Indians compelled them to abandon the line on account of their hostilities. In those days staging was good in California. I have seen twenty stages leave Marysville every day and the same number out of to, besides what ran out of San Francisco, Stockton and other places in the mountains, carrying twenty passengers to the coach and thirty on the six-horse coaches. In 1860 they obtained a mail contract from Sacra-mento to Portland for $95,000 per year, which was a small sum for so long a route especially when they were paid in green-backs. In 1864 a party from Texas got the mail contract but failed to come to time, when the old company took it for two years at a large price. In 1866 Senator Corbett of Portland got the contract for four years, when Barlow & Anderson took it and held ars along with them? Should not an attempt be made to again introduce the study of French into our University course? It was formerly taught here and in an able manner too, yet, in its place an additional year of German is now given. We feel the need of a knowledge of French so often in our general reading as well as in our studies, and were the extra year now given to German, devoted to French it would, we believe, be of more practical
