A Distinguished Clergyman's Testimony.

Rev. R. M. Pickens, President of the Methodist Protestant Church of South Carolina, writes from Greenville:
"About four years ago I was attacked with what the physicians pronounced neuritic rheumatism, accompanied with erysipelas. My appetite failed me entirely, and I had an intermitting pulse and very irregular pulsations of the heart. A terrible pain soon came into my chest and shoulders, and I became so helpless that I could attend to no business at all. The pain was movable, and would sometimes pass from one part of my body to another. Finally the erysipelas broke out on my left hand and arm, and produced much swelling. I was for eighteen months afflicted in this way, and of course used a great many kinds of medicines, but nothing gave me relief. Friends finally persuaded me to try Swift's Specific. I noticed a decided improvement while taking the first bottle. I continued its use until I had taken about one dozen bottles, when I found myself sound and well again, with no sign of disease left except a stiffness in my hand, a result of the erysipelas. While taking the medicine I gained on an average two pounds of flesh per week. I think S. S. S. a valuable medicine, and I frequently recommend it to my friends."

That produces that beautifully soft complexion and leaves no traces of its application or injurious effects? The answer, Wisdom's Robotine accomplishes all this, and is pronounced by ladies of taste and refinement to be the most delightful toilet article ever produced. Warranted harmless and matchless. F. M. Wilkins, agent, Eugene City.

Delays are Dangerous.
You say, well, 'tis only a slight cold, look out, it may lead to an inflammation of the lining of numerous air cells of the Lungs this is Pneumonia. Or to spasmodic contractions of the fibres of the air passages, which is Asthma; or the inflammation of the lining membrane of the throat and tubes which pass through the Lungs, which in the first stage is called Bronchitis, and may lead to consumption. Santa Abie is delicious in flavor, certain and perfect in its result. A few doses will relieve, a thorough treatment cure the above named diseases. Every bottle warranted by all druggists.

For Toilet Use.
Ayer's Hair Vigor keeps the hair soft and pliant, imparts to it the lustre and freshness of youth, causes it to grow luxuriantly, eradicates Dandruff, cures all scalp diseases, and is the most cleanly of all hair preparations.

AYER'S Hair Vigor has given me nearly bald for six years, during which time I used many hair preparations, but without success. Indeed, what little hair I had was growing thinner, until I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. I used two bottles of the Vigor, and my hair is now well covered with a new growth of hair.—Judson B. Chapel, Peabody, Mass.

HAIR that has become weak, gray, and faded, may have new life and color restored to it by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. My hair was thin, faded, and fell out in large quantities. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the falling, and restored my hair to its original color. As a dressing for the hair, this preparation has no equal.—Mary N. Hammond, Stillwater, Minn.

VIGOR, youth, and beauty, in the appearance of the hair, may be preserved for an indefinite period by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. A disease of the scalp caused my hair to become harsh and dry, and to fall out freely. Nothing I tried seemed to do me any good until I commenced using Ayer's Hair Vigor. Three bottles of this preparation restored my hair to a healthy condition, and it is now soft and pliant. My scalp is cured, and it is also free from dandruff.—Mrs. E. R. Foss, Milwaukee, Wis.

Protection and Wages.

[Daily Oregonian Aug. 24, 1882.]
The census of 1880 is full of excellent reasons why tariff revision in this country should be both immediate and permanent. Of course it does not discuss the question, but it collects and presents facts which will show the relations carry their lessons to all who will study them. Among the false claims of protection which it explodes is the pretense that our almost prohibitory tariff makes work plenty and keeps wages high. Hardly any formal answer is needed to that assertion. The antagonistic relations of labor and capital in those sections whose industries are most strongly protected would be a sufficient reply; but the census report makes a more elaborate one though in the same direction. The man whom the government commissioned to make a report on the iron and steel industry is Secretary of the American Iron and Steel Association, and not likely to furnish figures that tell against the protection theory, simply with that end in view. Iron and steel are the most heavily protected of all articles in common use. In 1880 there were 805 companies engaged in producing iron, and they produced 7,974,708 tons, employing to do the work 31,058 persons at a daily cost of $31,791, a few cents over $1 per day for each person, which is less than the average of workers in any unprotected business in the country. The total number employed in the production of pig and bar iron and steel was 140,975, who received $184,923 a day, or $1.70 each, their service coming more under the head of skilled labor than that of miners. This is certainly a beggarly pittance for skilled labor, and something that is without a parallel in less protected industries of the country.

The Free Trade League of New York has issued a pamphlet which deals in a forcible manner with the infant industry plan. In this connection it says: "In the first place, our infant industries are a century old. In the second, the compiler of these statistics acknowledges that our superior skill places the world at a disadvantage with us. Thirdly, our iron ore and coal are generally situated so close together that the former can easily be worked with the latter. Fourthly, while the iron and coal of Europe are far down below the surface, ours are almost upon it. Fifthly, our iron and coal supplies are in close proximity to the market. Sixthly, they are adjacent to the great food-producing center of the United States, which is relied upon to supply half the food eaten by the iron workers of Europe. Therefore, without any protection at all, it is shown our iron masters could afford to pay one hundred per cent. more wages to their workmen than they do before foreign competition would affect them. But the protectionists do not care for demonstrations. When the next presidential campaign comes on they will have their threats to workmen posted up in their furnaces, factories and mills, just as they did in 1880, and not until the people who labor turn their thinking to some account, stop striking and redress their grievances by voting, will they make a positive advance toward independence and better circumstances.

Gns Wells at Fort Scott.
The town of Fort Scott, Kansas, appears to be in the enjoyment of special blessings, natural and artificial. The government sugar works are located here, and during the late sorghum crop harvest 16,500 pounds of merchantable sugar were daily manufactured, and the success of the sorghum sugar industry established.

One of the great natural resources of the place are the gas wells. We are indebted to the Fort Scott Tribune for the following particulars: There are now some twelve wells, from which uncoupled millions of cubic feet are daily flowing. At night they glow like gigantic torches, with flames twenty feet or more in height, which illuminate the surrounding country. Pipes have been laid through the town, supplying light and fuel to everybody at a cost of almost nothing. Various manufacturing industries are now beginning to locate at Fort Scott, and others are coming in. The future prosperity of the place seems to be well settled.

From Prineville.

ED. GUARD.—Thinking that you would like to hear the true condition of affairs here, I will give it to you as near as I can from what I know of the weather and condition of stock here generally. We have had nearly a month's snow, nearly 14 inches deep. The thermometer has several times in the past two weeks registered 30 degrees below zero, and twice 45 below, but stock stands up better than last winter as there has been no wind. On Wednesday, the 11th, we had a genuine blizzard for about two hours, wind from due west and snow blowing and drifting so that a person could not see to travel at all. Persons that have lived here sixteen years say they never saw a blizzard before. It looks very much like rain at this writing. The loss of stock will be heavy as the hay is nearly fed out and the grass is under snow. Several persons have frozen ears and toes, but no deaths are reported as far as heard from.

Two new turret ships are about to be laid down in Cronstadt for the Black Sea. They will be sister ships, in almost all particulars alike. Their displacement will be 8,000 tons. For protection of center ship and machinery, steel armor 20 inches thick will be used decreasing toward the keel. The breastwork and turret armor will be 16 inches. They will be armed with four 12 inch guns in each turret, and will carry four 9 inch guns, eight Gatlings and a torpedo apparatus.—Army and Navy Register.

It is evident that the Sultan does not know Mr. Jay Gould or he would not think of asking him to build a railroad in Asia Minor. He would build a road at the Sultan's expense and then own it.

Praise for the Michigan doctor who found out how to give cats typhoid fever is premature. The cats recovered. When the doctor has found out how to kill a cat so that she will stay killed he will be entitled to the thanks of his grateful country.

Gen. Hancock.

In a book recently published, edited by Mrs. Hancock occurs the following concerning the part the dead hero played in his campaign for the Presidency:
The campaign followed, and in nowise differed from others. Our home was invaded from the beginning to the end. All was turmoil, excitement and discomfit of every kind. The conclusion was eagerly wished for, by none more so than Gen. Hancock himself. The ordeal to him was severe, requiring herculean strength the entire campaign. Indeed, he was never afterwards so robust in health.

At 7 o'clock on the day of the election, he yielded to the extreme weariness and prostration that ensued from his five months' labors and went to bed, begging me under no circumstances to disturb him, as the result would be known sooner or later, and tomorrow would be time enough. At 5 o'clock the following morning he inquired of me for the news; I replied: "It has been a complete Waterloo to you." "That is all right," said he, "I can stand it," and in another minute he was again asleep. An extraordinarily balanced temperament, it then occurred to me as often as before; one that was never comprehended by his superiors, or, indeed, by those who were the nearest to him. The only disappointment that he gave expression to was the difference that his defeat would make in the future of many of his friends, who had suffered long and in various ways in consequence of their adherence to his cause. He accepted, however, the situation as a soldier, not as a politician. Still, he desired to live long enough to see his party once more in power.

His defeat determined him never again to permit his name to come prominently in a political sense before the people, so displeased was he with the lack of earnestness that was observed and reported by active, disinterested friends on the part of some of those in charge of the campaign, and the inaction of many of the pretended leaders, who manifested their discontent by indifference throughout the campaign. With all this, including the successful attempt to amalgamate tickets, which were drawn by hundreds who have since testified to the fact, from Tammany boxes, his popularity and strength before the people could not be concealed, for the successful candidate received a plurality of only 7018 out of a popular vote of 9,000,000.

Pixley on the Tariff.
Frank M. Pixley in the current number of the Argonaut speaks for as many of the people on the Pacific coast, as follows:

The lumber mill owners of Oregon and Washington Territory, the lumber dealers of San Francisco—the men who have monopolized forests, and cornered the retail trade; who have, by a conspiracy as unlawful as it is immoral, placed themselves in position to plunder every farmer who would build a house, barn or fence, every inhabitant of city or village who would erect for himself a home, and every mechanic who would make a box, and every fruit grower who would use one—have united in a petition to Congress praying that this infant conspiracy be not throttled by removing the tax of two dollars per thousand feet on lumber. This lumber conspiracy imposes an unnecessary tax of from four to eight dollars per thousand upon lumber sold in California, and in the presence of the inexhaustible forests in British Columbia and of perishing forests in California, we see no very good reason why Congress should add these mille factors in lumber to the extent of a two-dollar-per-thousand-foot tariff. Perhaps this kind of legislation may protect Maine and Michigan, but it is a wrong to consumers and Michigan, but it is a wrong to our producer, we should be glad if we had free trade in this article. The same opinion is entertained by us in reference to coal and iron. We look upon sheep as a public enemy, and would be glad to see every one—not properly herded, in an enclosed field that belongs to their owner—manufactured into immediate mittos. They do more damage to our forestry, and in scattering noxious weeds over our plain and valley, than they are worth. There are two sides to this tariff controversy, and it is only one side that is being heard by petition, and that is the one that is united in some manufacturing industry to extort money from a disunited and inharmonious consuming constituency by excessive and burdensome taxation to protect and encourage what they style their "infant" enterprise. We think it is about time that the American manufacturer should stop pleading the baby act, and stop invoking government protection for "infant" industries and take his chances with a tariff that is for revenue. There should be no special laws for anybody that do not contribute to the general good.

ICE FOR THE O. & C.—The construction of a large ice house for the O. & C. R. B. at Ashland was begun this week. It is located between the tracts north of the present depot building, and will be large enough to hold a great quantity of ice. As soon as it is completed it will be filled with great cubes of ice shipped hither from one of the Arctic lakes up in Idaho. This is the first building commenced of the several that will be required for the railroad. The cars will take ice at Ashland for the convenience of passengers and the eating house also to be established there will also need a constant supply through the Summer months.

Justice Lamar, as is well known, is a very absent minded man. A few days he boarded a "bob-tail" street car in Washington in company with his friend Senator Cockrell of Missouri. The ex-secretary walked dreamily up to the box and dropped a quarter through the slit. "Why, Lamar!" exclaimed the senator, "what are you doing? You put a quarter in the box." "Why, so I did," replied Lamar, "and I know the fare was only five cents." And thereupon he slipped a nickel into the box, thus paying thirty cents for his ride.
