Goobers, sometimes vulgarly called peanuts, will be served, it is said, to the memory of the Laureans. Resolved. That writing fall poetry is not a feminine weakness. We suggested this not as a question of rhyme but as a question of the time, for on our deak lies a list of Laurean poets furnished by an obliging sub-scriber, and as long as a Laurean open session. Of course we have not space for its publication. The system of rhetoricals this year is more comprehensive than that of last, gathering in its meshes all from the greatest to the least. The Sub-Fresh will appear with recitations at public rhetoricals, and those below will write compositions. Another new feature is that each class has a choice between four subjects thus giving greater UNIVERSITY MUSICAL DEPARTMENT.

The musical department has a goodly number of pupils in attendance and fair

The class in theory and musical history is doing good work and even the younger pupils seem interested and anxious to acquire musical knowledge.

Bhythm, accent and tempo have been studied, and also the history of musical notation from its rise to the time of St Am-brose. Something has been learned of the lives of Beethoven, Schumann, Bach and sessment of property in Lane county re-turned by the assessor for the year 1888. Haydn. The lessons are varied occasionally by vocal and instrumental music.

The class in sight singing, composed of children, has made a fair start and is now being drilled on the scale and intervals, pitch, time, names and easy rote songs. The first reader in the Normal schools of Boston highest is used. It is the spinious of the highest musical authorities that every child could be
