

At a Whist Table.

Whose deal is it?"
 "Who dealt last?"
 "You, didn't you?"
 "I don't know."
 "Oh, it's Mr. B's deal."
 "Why, so it is!"
 "What's trumps?"
 "Diamonds."
 "Diamonds! Well, if I ain't got the awful hand!"
 "Well, I just haven't got a thing."
 "I never did have quite such awful luck."
 "Whose play is it?"
 "Let me see, what's trumps?"
 "Diamonds."
 "Oh, so it is; how stupid of me to forget."
 "It's your play."
 "Oh, is it; what lead?"
 "Spades."
 "Let me see, now—um—um—spades led and diamonds are trumps?"
 "Hurry and play."
 "Oh! if you didn't have ten trumps."
 "Who took that trick?"
 "You mean this."
 "Oh—oh! if you didn't make four! You're a fool! Whose deal is it?"
 "Then they say it all over agsin.—Time.

The Col. J. C. Breckenridge who has lately been appointed Inspector General of the Army in place of the recently deceased Gen. Jones, is a brother of the present distinguished Democratic Congressman from the old Ashland district of Kentucky. He remained with the Federal army on the outbreak of the war, while his brother, a mere boy, volunteered in the service of the Confederacy. Just so General Jones remained in the Federal army, he being in command at Harper's Ferry when the war broke out, while three of his brothers, C. Breckenridge, Walter and Thomas, joined the Confederate army, and a fourth brother, Catesby, joined the Confederate navy. These facts show the divisions brought about in families by our fratricidal war.
