EUGENE CITY, OREGON.

SOME CURIOUS FACTS.

According to an Authority All That Discolor is Not Brass.

"Every jeweler has doubtless met with many curious incidents in his business career, but I think that a recent experience of mine is worth relating. Shortly after the holidays there came into my place a pleasant-looking young man who expressed a desire to look at some gold necklaces. It is needless to say that I sold him one. It was fourteen carats and very pretty. Two days later the door was flung open and in rushed the young man, boiling with rage. He threw the necklace on the counter, demanded the return of his money, and threatened to expose me as a swindler. It took half an hour to learn his story.

"It seems that after presenting the necklace to his lady love he had taken her to a reception, ornamented with his present. After the first dance there was a commotion in one corner of the room, and the rivals of our customer's best girl were tittering among themselves and whispering about her.

"The young lady looked in the glass and almost fainted at the sight. Her beautiful neck was almost black from the friction of the necklace. She changed her mind about fainting, returned home with her brother and sent the necklace back to her young man with a note that she did not like his brass.

"I tested the necklace in his presence and proved to him that it was pure fourteen carats. About that time a young physician called to purchase a scarf pin. He had overheard part of the story and asked to hear the balance, as he believed he could throw some light on the subject. Pretty soon he laughed outright, and said: 'Why, sir, the trouble is with your girl and not the necklace. She has too much sulphur, iron, mercury, salt or lead in her blood, and as any of these substances has an affinity for gold the explanation is clear. I have patients for whom mercurial medicines have been prescribed, and the result is that their fingers upon which rings are worn discolored at once.' My customer cooled off and carried his purchase away.

"In connection with this subject, a good story is told at the expense of a Maiden Lane denier. He gave his sister an eighteen-carat ring as a present. He is a practical joker, and she asked him if the ring was gold. He replied that it was. That evening the young lady had occasion to remove the ring from her finger, and she noticed that the skin was greatly discolored. Jim has carried his jokes too far, she exclaimed, and opening the window threw the trinket into the street; some gamins picked it up. When my friend learned of the incident, he came to me for consolation, and I explained my own experience. His sister is sorry for her haste.

FRENCH CANADIANS.

The "Sud" Factor in Political Life Across the Border.

Perhaps nothing will surprise the visitor more than the persistence of the French type in Canada, and naturally its aggressiveness. Guaranteed their religion, laws and language, the French have not failed to assimilate, but have had hopes—may be still have—of making Canada French. The French "national" party means simply a French consolidation, and has no relation to the "nationalism" of Sir John A. Macdonald. So far as the Church and the French politicians are concerned, the effort is to keep the French solid as a political force, and whether the French are liberal or conservative, this is the underlying thought. The province of Quebec is liberal, but the liberalism is of a different hue from that of Ontario. The French recognize the truth that language is as integral a part of a people's growth that the individuality of a people depends upon maintaining it. The French have escaped absorption in Canada mainly by the concession to them of their civil laws and their religious privileges.

The French have always been loyal to the English connection under all temptations, for these guarantees have been continued, which could scarcely be expected from any other power, and certainly not in a legislative union of the Canadian provinces. In literature and sentiment, the connection is with France; in religion, with Rome; in politics England has been the guarantee of both. There will be no prevailing sentiment in favor of annexation to the United States so long as the church retains its authority, nor would it be favored by the accomplished politicians so long as they can use the solid French mass as a political force.—Charles Dudley Warner, in Harper's Magazine.

HOME AND FARM.

INVESTIGATION INTO THE ORIGIN OF HOOD CHOLERA.

The Superiority of Carrots and Mangle Wurtzels as a Food for Milk Cows—Yield of an Acre of Land in Strawberries.

There are in this country, according to the government statistical bureau report, 44,012,537 head of hogs, breeding animals and young pigs.

Select seed corn carefully from the best stalks, choosing the choicest ears, and then hang them in a perfectly dry place where they cannot freeze.

A grindstone conveniently placed ready for use, leaves no excuse for working with a dull axe or other cutting instrument that never does good work.

Leather, as it slowly decomposes, gives off fertilizing matter. Some people like to bury old boots and shoes near grape vines or trees where their valuable qualities are realized.

To make hens lay, make a mush of coarse corn-meal, boiling in a large red pepper in each two quarts of the water. Cook for an hour and feed hot. Boiled apple skins seasoned with red pepper is also good.

During the summer a great deal of rubbish collects in the garden, and perhaps in the orchard. All this ought to be raked up and burned, or otherwise disposed of. If left on the ground, it furnishes food for insects.

Sweet Sauce: Beat up the yolks of four eggs with four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar; add a tumblerful of sherry and a liquor glass of brandy, put the mixture in a jug; place this in a saucepan of boiling water on the fire, and froth up the same with a chocolate mill.

Mashed Potatoes: Boil a quantity of potatoes and pass them through a sieve. Put them into a saucepan with a good lump of butter, and salt to taste; add a little milk, and work them well with a spoon on a slow fire for a few minutes, adding small quantities of milk as it is required, until they get of the desired consistency.

Potato Pudding: Boil four large potatoes and pass them through a sieve; stir into them powdered loaf sugar to taste, and the yolks of two or three eggs; add a few drops of essence of lemon, then the whites of the eggs, whisked to a froth; mix quickly and pour into a plain mold, buttered and bread-crumbed, and bake for twenty minutes in a quick oven.

An acre of land will produce five or six times as many strawberries, in bushels, as it will of wheat, and the prices usually obtained for strawberries are more than three times as much as for wheat. One acre of strawberries will bring as much profit as fifteen acres of wheat, while the cost of raising the strawberries is proportionately but little more than that of producing wheat.

An extensive apple-grower in Illinois is said to plant only half as far apart as the trees allowed stand permanently, and then he brings three-fourths of them into bearing as soon as possible by grubbing, letting them produce all they will until the permanent ones need the room. The grubbed trees are then cut out and the others have all the needed space for growth and productiveness.

Have you a good stock of carrots and mangle wurtzels in your cellars for your milk cows? If you have you are a lucky man. If you have not, it is too late now to provide them, but make your calculations to sow the seeds of them liberally the present season. You will never complain that you have too many of such roots for your stock. Cows, oxen, horses, and sheep actually seek green food in winter as much as in summer.

There is no doubt whatever about the benefits to be derived from a well-conducted creamery, observes a Dakota farmer, not only to the farmers, but to every one within the limits of operations. It gives the farmer a cash market for his cream, and enables him to pay cash for supplies. It gives him an inducement to better his stock, and to employ better and more profitable methods of caring for them, in addition to many other benefits.

Cold Slaw: Put three tablespoonfuls of vinegar in a saucepan with a little salt and pepper; beat two eggs very light and mix with a teaspoonful of sifted flour, a teaspoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of sugar and a half teaspoonful of ground mustard. Set the vinegar on the stove, and when it boils stir in the mixture, adding half a cup of milk. Cook for two minutes stirring constantly. Pour the sauce over the shred cabbage and let it become cold before serving.

Oysters a la Boulette: Put one quart of oysters in their own liquor. Let come to a boil, turn in a hot dish, strain. Put two ounces of butter in a saucepan. Put heat, sprinkle in a tablespoonful of sifted flour, let cook one minute, stir and add a cupful of the oyster liquor. Take from the fire and mix in the yolks of two eggs, a little salt, a very little pepper, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one grated nutmeg. Beat well, return to the fire, heat well, but not boil. Drop in the oysters. Dish and boil.

Salad dressing for Oysters: Take the yolks of three raw eggs, a small tablespoonful of mustard, a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of white sugar, an atom of cayenne pepper, a cup of oil or butter melted, a small half-cup of vinegar, the juice of a lemon. Beat the eggs very light with the sugar and the mustard and mix with the vinegar. Turn the mixture into a bowl and mix in the oil and vinegar in small quantities alternately, and, just before pouring over the salad add two cups of whipped cream. To whip cream, let it stay on the ice a few hours, then whip with an eggbeater.

Potato Balls: Take half dozen potatoes, boil them, pass them through a sieve, and work into them in a bowl one egg of cream and the yolks of three eggs; add pepper, salt and nutmeg to taste, and some parsley finely chopped. When they are well mixed and smooth, take them up by tablespoonfuls, roll each in a ball, flatten it and flour it slightly. Lay them in a pan with plenty of butter melted, and cook them slowly. Turn them over when one side is done, and serve hot as soon as both sides are colored.

The agricultural department after careful investigation into the origin of hog cholera, is said to have proven conclusively that it results from the use of carrion food dropped by buzzards, while the habits of the hog are such that one in a herd being attacked will soon spread the disease. Typhus fever in man has been traced to the use of infected meat, of animals slaughtered to avoid the disease. Thorough cooking of pork in affected districts will show prevent man's liability to typhus fever from that cause. Immediate isolation of affected animals is recommended.
