A Revolution in Navigation.

The Scientific American is authority for the statement that a new and interesting experiment in marine propulsion is to be tried soon in New York harbor. We allude to the new water jet boat invented by Dr Walter M. Jackson of New York City. The vessel is 100 feet long, 100 tons burden, with a boiler intended to yield 1,500 h. p., used to eject a small stream of water—a three quarter inch jet—from the stern post, at the keel line. The water is to issue under the enormous and unheard of pressure of 2,500 lbs. to the square inch, and a speed of between thirty and forty miles an hour is expected by the owners—a velocity far in excess of any other craft afloat. The stern water jet issues from a faucet which takes the place of a rudder. The faucet is operated by a lever in the pilot house. A jet pipe also extends from the main pump to the bow, where a similar faucet is located, which is also connected with the pilot house lever. Thus the pilot has absolute control of the vessel. By simply moving the lever, the boat can be instantly started, turned, stopped, backed, or made to spin around on its axis like a top. All this without stopping the driving pump. No jarring, noise, or vibration is felt, even at the highest speeds. The promoters are confident the days of marine engines and propellers are numbered, and will soon be thrown out of all first class ships as old iron. Saving in space, greater economy in fuel, increased safety, improved comforts for passengers, are mentioned as a few of the important results that will attend this outflow of high pressure water.

The water jet, as a hydraulic system for the propulsion of vessels, has been many times tried with excellent results, but has not proved economical as compared with with the ordinary marine engine and propeller. On the trials of his small experimental boat he used a jet only three-eighths of an inch in diameter, with a water pressure of 600 pounds to the inch, and obtained a speed of ten to twelve miles per hour. Many experiments were then made with this boat. The apparatus was crude and hurriedly made but the results yielded much new, instructive, and valuable knowledge concerning the practical propelling powers of small jets at high velocities; and this new knowledge is embodied in the novel craft which is now receiving her finishing touches. One hundred thousand dollars, clean cash, have been put into the little vessel by the contributions of a number of able citizens, who fully believe in the correctness of the ingenious inventor.
