

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

SATURDAY, JUNE 29, 1889.

Here are the Figures.

Federal appointments:
From March 4 to May 15, 1889, 9,500
From March 4 to May 15, 1887, 2,000

Harrison's gain over Cleveland, 7,500
Extracts from the platform on which Gen. Harrison ran for office: "We will not for keep our pledges because they have broken theirs, or because their candidate has broken his."

H. E. Hayes, Master of the Oregon State Grange, in his annual address, said:
"Patrons, you have labored faithfully for many years to place the Secretary of Agriculture in the President's Cabinet. We were all much rejoiced when this became a law of our land, little suspecting that we had woven a coil whereby the shackles of political bondage could be lashed the tighter upon our lacerated industry. Our agriculturists all over the United States were horrified and cried out: 'Old Roman! We will hold him! This office with one of our representative farmers, but he has treated our appeals with contempt, and has placed that department, so important to the success of our industry, in charge of a politician and lawyer. Whatever may have been President Harrison's motive in making this appointment, it is an outrage upon our people which he will not outlive.'"

Allen W. Thurman, Senator Thurman's son, entertained some aspirations as a gubernatorial candidate in Ohio. At the recent election of nominating delegates in Franklin county, his home, he was completely flattered out. A local journal, referring to his defeat, attributes it to the fact that he bolted the nomination of Hood for Governor five years ago and has since supported Republicans for local offices. From this it would appear that "Old Roman" has been an undemocratic son, viewed from the strict party standpoint.

Four large whales were seen in the bay near Point Ellis Sunday, blowing and thrashing about in the water. They appeared to be following up a school of salmon and would throw their large bodies out of the water and exhibit an enormous expanse of mouth and gleaming white teeth. The sight was quite a remarkable one, as it seldom they are seen so far in from the ocean.—Aurora Pioneer.

The experience of the past month in Eastern Oregon is likely to discourage extensive planting of spring wheat in future years. Up till the late hot weather, spring wheat was in fine shape for a splendid crop, but from all reports it now seems certain that much of it will not pay for cutting, except for hay. This is especially unfortunate this year, as many farmers had planted large areas of spring wheat.—E. O., June 18.

A large brush factory has been discharged 200 employees and has removed its works from the corner of Greenwich and Desbrosses streets, New York, to Columbus, O., because in the latter place the company can get prison labor for thirty cents per day. Great is the protection afforded honest workmen under the tariff.

The fastest time ever made in the United States by a locomotive was recently made on the Reading road, near Woolton, Penn. The locomotive, just turned out of the Baldwin works, in an eight mile run on the level track at full speed, averaged a mile in thirty nine seconds, equivalent to ninety-two miles an hour.

Prof. Seelye, of Amherst, O., boasts that he was once elected to Congress at a cost of five cents. The five cents were spent for a postage stamp, a sheet of paper, and an envelope with which to accept the nomination. Times have changed since then.

Official returns from every county in Pennsylvania show the majority against the prohibition amendment to be 189,000. The majority against the suffrage amendment, providing for a repeal of the poll tax qualification, is 235,540.

A late estimate of the mortality in the Cornsack Valley in consequence of the flood reduces the figures to 4,215. This is probably as near as we shall ever come to the actual facts.

Mrs. Hayes, wife of the ex-President, died from paralysis at Fremont, Ohio, Tuesday.

William Walter Phelps has been appointed Minister to Germany.

The Late H. C. Dale.

[From The Dallas Times-Mountaineer.]
H. C. Dale died at his home at Ellendale, Polk county, June 18th. His has been a checked and active life. From 1874 to 1879 he was sheriff of Yamhill county, elected on the Democratic ticket by large majorities in a Republican county. But he fell short in his accounts and was sent to the penitentiary for five years; pardoned in less than two years he leased a farm of Judge Boise and settled down, as good a citizen as before he entered the political arena. Henry Dale had a big heart, and we shall always believe he was an honest man when he was H. C. Dale, but like many another good man, while in office liquor was the enemy that dragged him down. Perhaps these words would be better unspoken; but reading a notice of his death, impresses him deeply upon our mind. It is well to know that he died a reformed man, an honored citizen in the community where he lived, leaving a wife, son and daughter to mourn his loss.

A Strange Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—James B. Hill, the contractor, who had his neck broken by being struck by a bale of hay on the 23rd of last May, died today. The third and fourth cervical vertebrae were badly fractured. Hill was completely paralyzed from the neck down, and yet was able to take some nourishment, and retained his senses. The case has few parallels in surgical history.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.—A few days ago an old gentleman by the name of John Thompson, living on McDowell street, about 12 or 15 miles east of Lebanon got on a horse without a bridle. He took a package on the horse, which seemed to frighten him. The horse began to buck and ran some distance throwing the old gentleman with some rocks, causing injuries from which he died in a few hours. Mr. Thompson was 70 years old.—Democrat.

Pardoned by a Higher Power.

Salem Journal, June 26th: This morning as the hands on the clock at the state penitentiary indicated that in ten minutes more it would be 6 o'clock, the spirit of Johnny McAllister, the youthful slayer of his father, took leave of its earthly fastenings and passed on to the great beyond.

The reader is familiar with the crime for which this mere boy was sentenced to a life term at hard labor. He killed his parent while he was sleeping, and his trial resulted in a life sentence. Less than one year ago Johnny, then but thirteen years of age, was brought to the prison. He was an industrious lad and was doing well in the shoe shop, where Mr. Downing had placed him to learn the trade. There he would work after the fashion of a boy and play as only children play. He would spin a top with childish glee, seemingly wholly unconscious of the great crime he had committed, and of the future before him as a life prisoner. After a few months he was taken ill and the doctors gave it as their opinion that he was falling into quick consumption. Growing gradually worse, Mrs. McKinnon, the noble and charitable wife of the warden, took the boy into her own household, that he might receive proper care and tender nursing. Works glided swiftly on and as the warm sun of spring found its way through the leaves and window and fell within the quiet chamber, it lighted the face of the dying boy. He continued to grow weaker until three days ago, when he was too weak to talk or even whisper. He then became unconscious and his kind attendants, B. F. Watkins and W. W. Saunders, saw that the end was near. They nursed him through his dying hours and at 5:50 this morning the little sufferer received his pardon from a higher power and his soul was at rest. He had gently passed away, without troubling his friends or his kind attendants. The deceased will perhaps be given outside burial, as he has relatives and friends living near—in Marion county.

While the people of the valleys of Oregon shudder at the thought of the recent inundation and destruction of life and property in Pennsylvania, they fail to reflect upon what might occur to themselves. There was an Indian tradition extant among the Callapooia and Clackamas tribes which was believed by many old settlers, to the effect that there was a time within the past century and a half when the Willamette valley was flooded from mountain to mountain. The remains of large cedar and fir trees which had been drifted far above the highest mark reached by any flood of which authentic history attests. The people of many parts of this state may yet receive a baptism which will be pointed to in after ages as another Noabian epoch of disaster and death.—Sunday Mercury.
