How to Make a City.

How to Make a City.

E. C. Pentland, editor of the West Side, visited Spokane Falls, and writes a long and very interesting letter to his paper, descriptive of that wonderful city and the rapid progress it is making. In conversation with A. M Cannon, one of the leading mee of the place, he asked him how he managed to build such a prosperous city. "By our enterprise, he said, "we had faith in our town. When I came here in 1878 I had only $200. J. M Glover and J. J. Brown and myself purchased the town site. We made up our minds to either have a city here or bankrupt ourselves. That determination has made all of us our fortunes. In 1883 we had only three or four hundred people. I alone have given in cash subsidies over $50,000. The people here have dousted $50,000 in one way or another. In the early days of the town we could not get lumber, so we ourselves built a sawnill. I have taken stock in every way. We propose making the Review equal to the Oregonian. We must have a good paper, and if it does not pay, we will make it pay. The first town lots we sold we let people have their for almost nothing if they would only build. After the Northern Pacific was completed, we found that we needed a road to the Palonae country, so we built 15 miles of the road with home enterprise. The Count d'Alene mines trade was wanted, and so we built a road to them. The Scattle & Lake Shore road was wanted, and so we built a road to them. The Scattle & Lake Shore road was wanted, and so we built a road to them. The Scattle & Lake Shore road was wanted, and we gave $175,000 toward it. We gave a boous of $100,000 to the Northern, which will connect us with the Canadian Pacific railroad. We managed to get the terminus of the Washington Central railroad, which has 50 willow developed by the country is not provided by the country and all that portion easily the country and containing about 20 acress) all in Tp. 19 of We managed to get the terminus of the Washington Central railroad, which has 50 miles already built, and now comes the Rockford road, which will connect us with the Canadian Pacific railroad. We have We managed to get the terminus of the Washington Central railroad, which has 50 miles aiready built, and now comes the Rockford road, which will connect us with the Canadian Pacific railroad. We have the termini or advantage of seven railroads. The water power of the falls is 214,000 horse power. The reason we have succeeded is because we have been enterprising. We wanted people; when they came we found them work. We spent $3,500,000 on our streets. All our street railway lines were built by home capital. In spite of all the money that I have given away I have made money. (Mr. Cannon's wealth is estimated at $2,000,000). Mr. Brown and I are putting up a brick in which will be an opera house which will cost $300,000. All the fine buildings are being built by men fixing here. H. Bolster came here three years ago with only $0 but he has been energitic and shrewd, and now he is worth $200,000. Portland is not an enterprising city. Take the same amount of enterprise here and our twen would possibly bave had 3000 instead of 22,000 in eight years. In 1881, I purchased the corner 100 feet by 120 where we have tened to a $2,000 in eight years. In 1881, I purchased the corner 100 feet by 120 where we have tened to a $2,000 in eight years. I built a brack there costing $15,000 and in November, 1888, I was off-red $112,000 for the property.

He decides that Chinese laborers going from one country to another are entitled to unrestricted transit through the United States. This makes it easy for any Chinaman out of the country to find his way back here where he may remain without the least chance of discovery. But this decision may have been expected from an Attorney General appointed by Harrison, whose whole course in the U. S. Senate on the Chinese question is in perfect harmony with this decision. There is nothing surprising about the decision .- Ex.

The Portland Mercury of last Sunday has the following: The question of establishing a daily Democratic paper in this city is again being agitated. It has been understood for several months past young Mr. Hearst, proprieter of the San Francisco Examinor, has signified his willingness to publish a first-class daily in Portland, provided a reasonable subsidy was raised by the people to show that they were in earnest about the matter. With such an opportunity before them, if the Oregon Democracy fall to embrace it, they deserve to be forever in the rear. If Mr. Hearst were interested in a rearrest about the rear. From this the farmers should learn an important lesson. The material out of which sacks is made is all imported, none being grown in this country. The duty on raw material is 25 per cent. And on the sacks 40 per cent. This adds at least 2 cents to the price of every sack which the farmer bonys or uses.
