A Great Idea.

Chicago's proposition to tip the Chicago river the other way, so that instead of flowing into the lake the lake will flow into it and through a canal into the Illinois river, and so on to the Missis-ippi and the Guif of Mexico, he raising a very interesting the Mexico, is raising a very interesting dis-cussion. It means a new outlet for the great lakes, and the eventual destruction of Niagara Falls, as some frightened paper in Canada announces. Just what would follow a disturbance of the equilibrium of the lakes cannot now be predicted. A mountain so disturbed takes its reverge, and becomes year hard to manage. If the mountain so disturbed takes its revenue, and becomes very hard to manage. If the lake should begin outting its way and despening its channel, the St. Lawerence might become a streak of mud and the Mississippi be so increased as to overflow into the basins and depressions in the valley and actually transfer the great lakes by creating a lake system to the southward from Quincy, III., to Natchez. Many a man has got the worst of it fooling with water, and Chicago would better be careful lest she lose her position as a lake port entered to the contract of the southward of the state of timber lends of the southward with the provisions of the act congress June 3, 1878, entitled "A lest she lose her position as a lake port en-tirely by running lake Michigan down the
