

Montana Is All Right.

B. Platt Carpenter, Governor of Montana under Arthur, and now a leading Republican of that State, says: "The Republicans have supported them in this outrageous proceeding."

Washington Returns.

The Washington returns have been canvassed and show a Republican majority of about 1000. There were 40152 votes cast for the constitution, 1879 against; 16537 for prohibition, 31418 against.

The Chicago Tribune, a Republican paper with more conscience if not more brains than the Oregonian, says:

"It is an insult to common sense to affirm that the tariff enhances the prices of wheat, corn, oats, cattle, hogs, horses or mules, poultry, butter, cheese, milk, hay, fruits, vegetables, cotton or tobacco leaf."

The S. F. Examiner now comes in a new dress and a make-up corresponding to the New York dailies. The Sunday edition consisted of 40 pages and had original contributions from many of the leading men of California.

Indianapolis has 2,800 colored votes. It is said they went Democratic at the recent city election, because the negroes appointed in the local positions by the Democratic postmaster turned out and not replaced by their own color when his Republican successor came in.

With the fact that Blinger Hermann is to be overthrown as a candidate for Congress because the announcement that Hon. C. C. Beckman is to be entered in the race as the Southern Oregon candidate for Governor.

Gen. Green B. Raum, formerly commissioner of internal revenue, has been appointed Pension Commissioner in place of Corporal Tanner, who rendered it unpleasant for the present administration by raiding the public treasury.

Ex-Congressman Findlay, of Maryland, a second cousin of President Harrison has been appointed a member of the Venezuela Commission by his kinsman. Since March 4, only 14 of Harrison's relatives have been placed in office by the President.

It is rumored that the Prince of Wales is afflicted with an incurable disease that will, in all probability end his life before many months. Unless Queen Victoria abdicates, it is possible that the prince will never sit upon the throne of Great Britain.

Gen. Hartranft died at his home in Norristown, Pa., on Oct. 20th.

And now that the value of timber land in this country is recognized, and it is beginning to be assessed, it is suggested to the Astorian that it should be insured. An insurance agency to insure owners of timber land against destruction or loss by fire would be something new, but it will arrive, eventually. A singular anomaly will arise in this instance—the better the timber land the less need is there to insure it; where the giants of the forest stand together the sunlight shuts out, and no undergrowth there is little likelihood of fire. So, also in general throughout this region for several months in the year, short term policies covering July, August and September will probably be the most popular style of timber insurance in the near future.

The new contractors on the Oregon Pacific's eastward extension have arrived at Albany with a portion of their plant, consisting of seven car loads of stock and outfit, including 60 mules, tools, etc. This will at once be shipped to the front and work commenced, about 800 men being employed. "We will finish the work to the summit of the Cascade mountains, a distance of about 40 miles from the end of the work now done," said one of the contractors, "as soon as possible. This will depend somewhat on the weather, but we expect to complete it this fall and winter."

Saturday morning Ben Clelan and L. Knox, two boys aged about 17 years, were hunting ducks on the river in a boat, above Albany when a frightful accident happened to the former. In taking his gun from the boat, one barrel was discharged, the contents of the shot entering his right arm near the shoulder, tearing it off, leaving the arm hanging by a few shreds. His companion brought the unfortunate young man to Albany as fast as he could row the boat, where the arm was amputated. It is thought he will recover.

Private Dalzell continues to publicly mourn the fall of Tanner. His latest remark is this: "A private can no more hold an office than a negro or a leper. The promises of more pensions which poor Tanner was trying to carry out were intended only to be valid till election. They were all lies, the men who made them all knaves, and we all fools for relying upon them."

There is little doubt that the oldest grave of a white man in Oregon is the one in Astoria, on which is chiseled on a rough sandstone slab the name of Alexander McTavish. He was drowned in crossing the Columbia in 1814. The deceased was one of those Scotch members of the Hudson Bay Company, who led the van of civilization in the Northwest.

Our exchanges, says the Astoria Pioneer, emphatically assert that the "bustle must go." We know of a store from whence the bustle departed long ago. In fact, there never was any bustle about it, simply because the proprietor never spent a dollar for advertising.

Corporal Tanner seems not only to have had the faculty of putting his own foot into it but of inserting the unwilling feet of his friends as well. Damaguy does not always pay and it is to be hoped that President Harrison is sufficiently impressed with this fact not to try it again.—West Shore, (Ind.)

He is Now a Democrat.

[S. F. Examiner.] Boston, October 13.—The President-elect of Harvard is now a full-fledged Democrat. To-day at the Bay State Club dinner he stood up with such solid Democrats as Gen. eral Collins, Ex-Mayor O'Brien, William Aspinwall, and William E. Russell, candidate for Governor, and in a noteworthy speech said he was henceforth a Democrat, and told why. He said the principles of the party were the principles of his own earnest conviction.

Contrasting Cleveland's administration with Harrison's, he declared the latter could not bear comparison. He praised Cleveland for being the first to stem the tide of vast expenditure in the Pension Office. He had prevented the waste of the nation's wealth at the sacrifice of his political welfare.

BROAD PENSION VIEWS.

While on the subject of pensions, he said, so far as he himself was concerned, he was in favor of pensioning not only soldiers, but old office holders who have outlived their usefulness after faithfully serving the nation; and not only them, but school teachers and all other persons included in the category of servants of the public. But in these days of pension extravagance and deceit and hypocrisy, both in application and forms of granting pensions; it was impossible, he declared, to tell the difference between fraudulent paupers and honest sufferers from wounds sustained and diseases contracted in time of war.

LINCOLN'S EXAMPLE A GOOD ONE.

Reverting to State issues, Dr. Elliot said that this year two Harvard men headed the respective tickets, but that one of them, the Republican, had refused the offer of the Democrat, Mr. Russell, of a public debate on the issue of national politics. Harvard's President said he was sorry to know that a son of Harvard had rejected a public encounter, even in a political campaign, and he thought Abe Lincoln's example in participating in a political debate with Stephen A. Douglas was good enough for any Harvard man to follow. Mr. Brackett's managers have declined to debate because such debates are of Southern origin and custom; but President Elliot said, even if they were, they were capital good things. His speech has aroused immense enthusiasm and is the big sensation of the campaign.

Smokeless Powder.

The ordnance department of the United States army has decided to investigate the subject of smokeless gunpowder. An army officer says: "However slow our army officials may appear to have been in experimenting with smokeless gun powder, they have kept abreast with the times upon all occasions. Where its claims were presented by official test in Europe, the United States had its representatives present and there have been several official reports filed upon this subject with the Secretary of War. Although the attempt has been made to keep the composition of this new explosive a secret, we are pretty accurately of what it is made. Dynamite and gun cotton enter largely into its composition. Castor oil is also used in some samples. The combustion of one sample of smokeless powder produces such an overpowering stench that it sickens persons compelled to be in the vicinity. In other cases the results are so uncertain that the practical utility of the invention is matter of serious doubt. If it is discovered that practical and permanent results are likely to be the outcome, tests and investigation will be carried on indefinitely, until the merits or demerits of the invention have been developed."

There hangs upon the front door knob of the room recently vacated by W. T. Ellis, solemnly, yet reverently, swinging to and fro, in the gentle zephyrus that whispers the sad and mournful strain of his untimely departure, a piece of black cloth, which has been placed there by some small boy in memory of this manly man, whose angelic hovering about our city reminds us of a picture of the compassionate cherubin, so tenderly hovering over the Ark of the Covenant. This emblem of respect and heart felt gratitude is very suitable indeed. It is an old rag that had been used for months to wipe the ink from the rollers and type, until it was as black and filthy as were the deeds and actions of the man whose memory it is calculated to perpetuate. It is said, he is gone.—Albany Herald.

Harry Bowmer, of the Milton Eagle, was treated to a surprise on his return home the other day. A number of Milton people had pledged $242 to pay off the indebtedness of his house and lot, in appreciation of his services on behalf of the town.—Tribune, Pendleton.

May Remain a Mystery.

The Prineville Review says: It is often said that "murder will out," but it does seem that this old saying is sometimes slow in being verified. In Crook county within the past few years a number of crimes have been committed which are shrouded in mystery and seem liable to so remain. For instance, not less than half a dozen fires have occurred in the county during the past two years which were undoubtedly incendiary, yet there has not been a single instance in which the person who kindled the fire has been convicted, and in most cases it has been impossible to guess whom the incendiaries were. And again, the disappearance of Geo. Nutting last May, which is generally conceded to have been the work of some one, is still a mystery, and the parties most interested in discovering his murderer have abandoned the search entirely. When such crimes as those mentioned above can be committed and the closest investigation fails to discover the perpetrators it seems there is little protection of life or property. But there seems to be no remedy, since most do not call in witnesses when they commit crime, and if they have sense enough to keep their mouths shut after it is done they are usually safe from detection.

SAVED.—When the steamer Alaskan went down off Cape Blanco last May, it was supposed that Charles Albert, one of the crew, was drowned. When the boats put out to sea Albert was one of the thirteen who remained on board and was cast into the sea with wreckage when the vessel foundered. Some of those in the boats reached shore, but it was supposed all who had remained on the vessel had gone down. Mrs. Mooney, the mother of Albert, now residing in Oakland, mourned her son as lost. For weeks she hoped for tidings from him, but finally gave up all hope. Last Saturday evening, however, she received a letter post-marked Hong Kong, and in the handwriting of her son. He stated that after the steamer went down he floated on a piece of wreckage for seven days, sustaining life on a few peaches, which he had provided himself. At length when nearly dead he was picked up by the bark Kittie, lumber laden from Portland to Hong Kong. After a tempestuous voyage, in which their masts were nearly carried away, they arrived in Hong Kong on the last of August, from which place he sailed for Portland. Young Albert stated that he had worked before the mast on the voyage and would return with the vessel to Portland where he expected to arrive in January, when he will return to his home in Oakland.

THE CHINAMAN DEAD.—Several days ago on the north-bound local train, which was loaded with passengers for the fair at Portland some hoodlums on board threw an empty whisky bottle from the car into a gang of Chinamen near Oregon City. The bottle struck one of the Chinamen on the head and in breaking out a frightful gash. The wounded Mongolian was taken on board the train and the services of Dr. J. L. Hill, of Albany, and another physician on the train were called, who did all they could to stop the blood, but to no avail, as the Chinaman died from loss of blood on reaching Portland. The affair was hushed up as much as possible, but the young men who threw the missile have been very uneasy since the affair. Some young men from Lin county are said to have been in the crowd. A later report says the Chinaman is recovering.
