LADY OF THE HOUSE—Do you still like our Charter Oak Stove as well as when we first got it, Mary?
SERVANT—Oh, every bit as well, Ma'am.
LADY OF THE HOUSE—I am expecting a friend to take dinner with us next week, on purpose to show her how nice our stove cooks everything, and I want you to have a nice dinner for us.
SERVANT—Indeed I will, Ma'am. There's no trouble to cook nice with that stove. The Wire Gauge Oven Doors makes it so much easier than other stoves I have been used to, and I have so much more time to make everything just right. Just look at that roll! I never have had luck with bread, biscuits or cake, now.
LADY OF THE HOUSE—Why, how do you explain it?
SERVANT—Well, I don't have to watch everything so close for fear it will burn. You know how careful you have to be with a naked candle. It is so apt to burn on top before it is baked through. The Charter Oak bakes it perfectly without any danger of burning. And then in roasting a turkey, I don't have to keep looking at it every five minutes. It roasts beautifully brown (biscuits are without being hard and tough, & you always raised my biscuits, but if it wasn't for the wire gauge oven door I know they wouldn't be near as nice. I hope I'll never have to look any where again where they haven't got a Charter Oak Stove on it.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them. When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Bioschere's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

That produces that beautifully soft complexion and leaves no traces of its application or injurious effects? The answer, Dr. Robert's accomplishes all this, and is pronounced by ladies of taste and refinement to be the most delightful toilet article ever produced. Warranted harmless and matches. F. M. Wilkins, agent, Eugene City.

By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price 25c a bottle.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Change is one of the irresistible laws of nature, and fortunately the change is almost invariably for the better. As an instance of this, St. Patrick Pills are fast taking the place of the old harsh and violent cathartics, because they are milder and produce a pleasant effect, besides they are much more beneficial in removing morbid matter from the system and preventing age and old ailments. Syrup of Figs is a cathartic and liver pill they are almost perfect. For sale by Osburn & Co.

Parents should be careful that their children do not contract colds during the fall or early winter months. Such colds weaken the lungs and sinuses, making the child much more likely to contract other colds during the winter. It is this succession of colds that cause catarrh and bronchitis or pave the way for consumption. Should a cold be contracted, lose no time but cure it as quickly as possible. A fifty-cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure any cold in a few days and restore the respiratory organs strong and healthy. For sale by Osburn & Co.

Best of All

Zongli medicines, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is in greater demand than ever. No preparation for Throat and Lung Troubles is so prompt in its effects, so agreeable to the taste, and so widely known, as this. It is the family medicine in thousands of households.

"I have suffered for years from a bronchial trouble that, whenever I took cold or an exposed to inclement weather, shows itself by a very annoying tickling sensation in the throat and by difficulty in breathing. I have tried a great many remedies, but none does so well as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral which always gives prompt relief in returns of my old complaint."—Ernest A. Hoyle, Inspector of Public Roads, Parish Terre Bonne, La.

"I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy."
For Home Use.

I have tested its curative power, in my family, many times during the past thirty years, and have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most serious affections of the throat and lungs, whether in children or adults."—E. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

"Twenty years ago I was troubled with a disease of the lungs. Doctors afforded me no relief and considered my case hopeless. I then began to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and before I had finished one bottle, found relief. I continued to take this medicine until a cure was effected. I believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—Samuel Griggs, Waukegan, Ill.

"Six years ago I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and soon developed all the alarming symptoms of Consumption. I had so little night's rest, bleeding of the lungs, pains in chest and sides, and was so prostrated as to be confined to my bed most of the time. After trying various prescriptions, without benefit, my physician finally determined to give me Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took it, and the effect was magical. I seemed to rally from it, and in a few days of other medicines, and after using only three bottles, am as well and sound as ever."—Rodney Johnson, Springfield, Ill.

A Modern Archimedes.

Wealth of the Northwest. A citizen of Montana claims to have invented a machine for raising water, somewhat on the principle of the Archimedes screw of ancient fame. The inventor claims that he can, with this new device, raise water to any desired elevation. In case his machine will do this work the costly irrigating canals built in many of the western states and territories will be discarded. The inventor states that from a stream on his farm he conducts water to levels two hundred feet above it, thence by ditches all over his farm. Just where the power necessary to do all this labor comes from is not stated but probably from the surplus water in the stream or head.

Opening Up Brazil.
The new Republic of Brazil has an area about as large as the entire territory of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, and nearly of the same size as Europe. Its population, including Indians and negroes, who were recently emancipated, is barely 10,000,000. London, Paris and New York contain about as many people as this great country with its rich soil, desirable climate, valuable mines, and forest production unsurpassed by any other country of the globe. The climate is very healthful. It is not unaccountably warm, for the temperature is reduced by the vast forests and the great amount of water in the streams. Brazil can boast of more miles of navigable rivers than any other country. Boats of a large size can sail on the Amazon and its tributaries for 30,000 miles, and at times when in the middle of the river land cannot be seen.

It is claimed that the first strictly agricultural colony in America was planted in Brazil, yet there is only one acre in two hundred of this rich land at present put to use. A well-informed writer recently referring to this new Republic says that the citizens of that country are almost entirely of Portuguese descent.

The Portuguese love the Spanish about as well as the Irish do the English, and accordingly the country that has settled the other portions of South America has sent few immigrants to Brazil. Portugal was not populous enough to settle it, and the countries of northern Europe that have sent so many people to the United States and Canada have not furnished Brazil with many settlers. Most of the people of northern Europe have preferred to go to a country that had a republican form of government and which enjoyed religious liberty.

The few who went to Brazil complained of being lonesome. There were not enough of any nationality outside of two cities to enable them to have much companionship or to exert any political influence.

The new government announces itself as being desirous of securing settlers who will develop the unoccupied portions of the country, which include the greater part of it. With this view it is preparing to encourage colonies from various countries to settle in localities where they can form communities by themselves and retain their customs. Brazil is attracting much attention the world over, and by the judicious management of government affairs will experience a large and profitable immigration.

D. S. Terry's Life Insurance.

The Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company has used Sarah Althea Terry, Clinton H. Terry and C. G. Seyle, administrator of the estate of David S. Terry, deceased, to compel them to accept the amount of a $5,000 life insurance policy which the late Mr. Terry had on his life, less $106.95, which he owed the company, a premium. The company says it is informed that Mr. Terry died intestate in Lathrop, Cal., on the 14th of last August, and as there is a dispute as to who is entitled to the life insurance the company asks permission to pay the money into court and let them settle their differences among themselves.

F. Cain, trackwalker for the Southern Pacific railroad company, was murdered Thanksgiving night between 10 and 11 o'clock by unknown parties five miles south of Riddle. He was shot with a Winchester rifle from behind, through the heart while just outside the door and dragged into his house and the door closed. They searched his trunk and room, and took a watch, a 32-calibre Smith & Wesson revolver, and a small amount of money. There is no clue to the criminal. Two tramps were arrested on suspicion the next day. They came from the south but were released after an examination by Sheriff Agee. Cain was a young man, and well-liked by all who knew him.

The directors of the California Athletic Club Nov. 27th matched Jack Dempsey, middle-weight champion of the world to meet Billy McCarthy, middle-weight champion of Australia, in January, for a purse of $1800, the winner to meet young Mitchell, champion middle weight of California in March at San Francisco.

Mrs. Chas. Crocker's will divides property (valued at $11,000,000) equally between her three sons and one daughter. She left a memoranda containing bequests, to various charitable associations, amounting to nearly one million dollars, which will be carried out by her executors.

Public Roads.

[Salem Journal.]

If there be any one thing more than another that demands more imperatively the attention of our legislators at present on behalf of the producing masses in the country, it is the road law. The present road law respecting the manner in which roads shall be made is worse than a dead letter. It yearly entails vast outlay of money and an immense deal of labor without any reasonable approach to satisfactory results. The thing of appointing or electing supervisors who many times know nothing about the work they have been chosen to do, and who in other instances, care nothing about the responsibility of their position, is an outrage upon mankind. But that feature of it is not a whit worse than that of attempting to force men to work out the tax which they regard generally as an imposition, and at which they work as if paying a penalty which has been unjustly imposed. A salaried functionary should look after the roads and the work upon the highways should be done by contract, to be accepted by the commissioners when approved by the road master. Something should be done to enable the country people to realize the benefit intended to accrue from the tax paid for the purpose of constructing public highways. No country on earth is so wretchedly accursed with bad roads as the United States. No people in the world give so little attention to such an important matter. Our legislators should be brought to correct these flagrant abuses without further painful delay.

One of Amelie Rives' Tricks.

Miss Amelie Rives had a host of admirers when she lived in maiden meditation at the home of her ancestors, Castle Hill, Virginia. She was a petted and spoiled beauty, and treated her lovers with absolute rudeness. Once, when a dozen gentlemen called upon her in the morning, she entered the parlor in a bewitching riding habit, uncased herself, mounted her horse, rode an hour or two, and finding the gentlemen waiting for her on returning, she went to her studio back of the parlor and amused herself by drawing caricatures of her admirers, representing them sitting in various attitudes of idiotic vacancy.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

An exchange says: It is reported that the Morning Oregonian is making arrangements to erect a large building up town, after the fashion of the leading newspapers of the country. The plans are now being drawn, and the architects will be called upon to produce a beautiful building. It is not known what amount it is proposed to expend on the structure. It is understood that the Oregonian people endeavored to buy the half block on Alder and Fourth streets, owned by the Baptist church, recently purchased for $120,000 by Henry Weinhard, but the price was considered too high for them.

Chook Co.—The Waldo exchanges are circulating a report that Eastern Oregon sheepraisers are disposing of their flocks in large numbers. Wonder where they get their information? In this country very few stock sheep have been sold that were driven out of the county.

A few weeks ago, Mrs. Phillips gave birth to a girl baby with five fingers on each hand. An extra finger was attached to each of the little or last fingers and were perfect in form. Last week Dr. Belknap removed the extra fingers and the little girl is getting along nicely.—Review.

DIED: In this city, October 28, 1889, Pete Shumaker, aged fifty-four years, eight months and fourteen days. Pete was an individual who attacked us on the 21st in front of the post office with a cavalry saber being offended at an editorial criticizing the policy of the Car of Russia towards Turkey. We let daylight into him in our places, and we paid his doctor bill and funeral expenses. He sleeps well. He is better off. Death loves a shining mark. Eastern papers please copy.—Arizona Kicker.

Private Daizell is another Republican who does not go into mourning over the news from Iowa and Ohio. He says that the soldiers made the Republican party and the boys are "mad as wet hens over the Tanner business." They walked in their tents. That defeated us." But this is not all. Private Daizell looks into the future and sniffs danger. "The soldiers are watching," he continues. "They will double this deficit next year unless that surplus is shovelled out per contract."

Vaccination is compulsory in England and optional in France. In the large cities of France the number of deaths from small-pox was 1,556, or 31 per 1,000 of the living population. In the large cities of England in the same period the number of deaths was 332, or .04 per 1,000. Does not this, asks the Hospital, say something for vaccination?

Corvallis Times, Nov. 30: Rev. I. D. Driver preached an able discourse at the M. E. church in this city Sunday evening. Mr. Driver is traveling through the State in the interest of the establishment of a Protestant hospital at Portland, soon, the cost of which is to be $150,000, should the movement prove a success.

Eighty-seven persons have been killed by electric light wires in New York since the beginning of the year 1889. No wonder the people of that city are determined that the deadly wires must go under ground or some place where they will not be a constant menace to human life.

The Dallas Board of Trade is undertaking to furnish the Waco county farmers with wheat for the coming season. It will cost $5000 to obtain the supply. For the outlay the Board proposes to be secured by "a mortgage on the farm."
