LADY OF THE HOUSE—Do you still like our Charter Oak Store as well as when we first got it, MARY?
SEBASTIAN—Oh, every bit as well, Ma'am.
LADY OF THE HOUSE—I am expecting a friend to take dinner with us next week, on purpose to show her how nice our stove cooks everything, and I want you to have a nice dinner for us.
SEBASTIAN—Indeed I will, Ma'am. There's no trouble to cook nice with that stove. The Fire Gauge Oven Doors makes it so much easier than other stoves I have been used to, and I have so much more time to make everything just right. Just look at that roll! I never have had luck with bread, biscuits or cake, now.
LADY OF THE HOUSE—Why, how do you explain it?
SEBASTIAN—Well, I don't have to watch everything so close for fear it will burn. You know how careful you have to be with a tacked custard, it is so apt to burn on top before it is baked through. The Charter Oak bakes it perfectly without any danger of burning. And then in roasting a turkey, I don't have to keep basing it every five minutes. It roasts beautifully brown without it, and without drying it up like the light ovens do. And you know how crisp the biscuits are without being hard and tough. You always praised my biscuits, but if it wasn't for the wire gauge oven door I know they wouldn't be near as nice. I hope I'll never have to cook anywhere again where they haven't got a Charter Oak Stove off-hand.

That is to say, your lungs! Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them. When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Bosche's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

An Enoch Arden.

Captain Peter Bayne, who was shipwrecked on the schooner Ino of San Francisco near Point Barrow, Arctic ocean, in 1887, where he remained two years before he was relieved, has returned to Port Townsend and found his wife married to Wm. J. Forbes. Forbes was employed by Bayne to attend the ranch at Whatcom. He finally induced Mrs. Bayne to secure a divorce on the grounds of wilful desertion and failure to provide, notwithstanding the fact that she had received provisions constantly from Baine's employers, S. H. Frank & Co., on Battery street, San Francisco. Forbes corroborated her statements and the divorce was granted. They were married in Dungeness, Wash., last October. The woman had two children by Bayne, a girl and a boy, aged 9 and 7 years.

Mrs. Bayne is a daughter of Rev. B. F. Vandeventer, formerly of Tulare, Cal., later a Methodist minister of Seattle, and now of Winnemucca, Nev. During the time Bayne was near Point Barrow he whaled from shore and captured twelve large whales, a large number of walrus and seals and plenty of ivory, aggregating a value of $60,000, and therefore returned comparatively wealthy. He sued out a warrant charging Forbes with adultery and conspiracy. Forbes escaped. The woman endeavored to shield Forbes by threatening to swear her second husband clear of any charges preferred by the first. Bayne found his wife secreted there and persuaded her to surrender the children. She has been married six weeks.

Bayne and his wife were highly respected in Whatcom, where they had a comfortable home, and the Vandeventer family are well known all over the coast. The prominence of the parties creates a sensation on the Sound. Mrs. Forbes (Mrs. Bayne) said she was led by Forbes to believe that Bayne had deserted her or else she would have written to him. She is a beautiful woman, intelligent, and until her husband's departure was religiously devoted to him. Bayne will take the children to Nevada and support his former wife the remainder of her life. Forbes had induced the woman to prove up on Bayne's property as an abandoned wife, and had nearly secured the title to the property when Bayne unexpectedly returned. The property is now valued at $10,000.

Bell's telephone monopoly is confronted with two dangerous enemies. Gray's telegraph is one of these and Esauik's type writing telegraph the other. Gray's device transmits writing perfectly, and properly applied would take the place of the telephone, having the additional advantage of greater secrecy. The other device is not so well known. The system has been in operation between Chicago and New York for some time, using one of the Postal Telegraph company's wires. Its use in short circuits was proven practical some time ago but kept secret. Robbed of technicalities, the system is simply one by which a type-writer at one end of the line is made to transmit currents of varying intensity which operate a typewriter at the other end.

The Corvallis Times says S. H. Oliver, who was a few days ago committed to the asylum from Marion county, has been a Benton county charge for many months. He imagines himself a large land owner and also a great physician. The old gentleman has had a checkered career. At one time he owned about $30,000 worth of Benton county dirt, but his stubborn disposition dragged him into so many law suits that his wealth disappeared like an Oregon snow. He has no relatives here and has wandered about for years in a semi-demented condition.

Now that the Russian influenza has found its way into the American category of diseases, there will be as many sufferers from it as there are from "Bright's disease," and hereafter, when a man allows wet feet to give him a cold in the head he will have "Russian influenza," and the very name with its consequent scare will carry many to their eternal accounting. In the meantime the country grandmothers, who don't know anything about "Russian influenza," will be curing diseases with exactly similar symptoms in the good old fashioned way of driving off a bad cold.

D. P. Thompson, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Portland, began his western career as a blacksmith at Oregon City. He says that at one time he and another man shod a packtrain of 120 mules in three days.

The Albany Herald tells this pathetic story: Christmas eve Judge Strahan who occupies rooms upstairs in his block on First street, hung a nicely dressed turkey on a nail on the wall outside near one of the rear windows to let it mellow by freezing for his Christmas dinner. It was about twenty feet from the ground and as there was no stairway or other building within reach, he thought his Christmas fowl would be quite safe. When he went to get it, however, he was chagrined to discover that some miscreant had taken a long pole, deliberately lifted the turkey from the nail and unlawfully converted it to his own use. Christmas turkeys were scarce this year, and there was not another purchasable for love or money, which left a vacant spot on the Judge's dinner table. Should the thief ever become known and happen to appear before his honor on the supreme bench, there will not be any question as to his receiving the fullest penalty of the law.

A few days ago three young men attending a Portland school were returning up the valley to their homes, not necessary to state where, when they were taken in by the news agent, who by the way should be kicked from the road, in the following manner. Taking four cheap books, he put a $5 bill in one of them and offered the choice of the books for $1, an old trick and a fraud. One of them bit very quickly and of course got nothing. The trick was done like this. The news agent placed the bill in the second book from the top, leaving the edge sticking out just enough to be seen, and in the next book or one next to the bottom and in the opposite end, he had a piece of a government stamp. While talking he managed to turn or reverse the books and the job was done. This is evidently a common practice of the agent and he should be shipped, though students should have more sense than to gamble.

The Oregon City Courier tells in the following how the residents of that settlement would rather go to hell than work for Jesus in Oregon City: "On the evenings of the last of a series of revival meetings at a church not a great ways from Oregon City the preacher made the request common at such meetings, 'Will all those who will work for Jesus and desire to go to heaven please arise?' A few arose, mostly faithful sisters of the church. He then asked, 'Will all those who desire to go to hell arise?' With a rash about 40 arose. The humor of the appeal sent a roar of laughter throughout the congregation and even the two ministers smiled.

Change is one of the irresistible laws of nature, and fortunately the change is almost invariably for the better. As an instance of this, St. Patrick Pills are fast taking the place of the old harsh and violent cathartics, because they are milder and produce a pleasanter effect, besides they are much more beneficial in removing morbid matter from the system and preventing ague and other malarious diseases. As a cathartic and liver pill they are almost perfect. For sale by Osburn & Co.
