DRUGS FOR THE NERVES.

Short Talk with a Brooklyn Apotheeary About Their Use.

An elegantly dressed woman of middle age, whose face bore traces of great beauty, entered one of the largest drug stores in Brooklyn, and walking quickly to the rear of the store, where one of the proprietors was busy mix-ing prescriptions, handed him a slip of paper. Before she had reached him proprietor had seen her coming and, stopping his work, had reached almost mechanically for a large bottle which stood on a shelf behind him and which was filled with some white substance. As he took the slip of paper, which was evidently a prescription, he simply glanced at it and proseeded to weigh out a certain portion of the contents of the bottle, which he wrapped up and handed to the lady. When she was gone an Eagle reporter, who had been standing by, asked the proprietor what it was he had given

"Bromide of potassium," was the laconic reply. "What is it used for?" was then asked.

"Nerves," replied the proprietor. "You have no idea, young man," he continued, "how much we see of that and kindred hypnotics every day. It is simply awful. No one outside of this purposes and the medical profesbromide of potassium, bromide of sodium and chloral every night to induce sleep. In spite of the old saving about a fool's ability to ask questions, it remains true that a man needs to know something before he can safely make inquiries. Telegram. Manufacture of Champagne Corks. Champagne corks, which receive their peculiar shape only when driven by power into the bottles, are almost exclusively manufactured in Spain and France. Of late years they are often put together from differently se-lected small pieces, which are glued upon each other by a peculiar cement, after which the corks are cut to the proper shape. This is done because the finest and softest grade of cork wood is rather scarce and very expensive, the manufacturers' price for the best quality of champague corks being about $36 per 1,000. STILL HAE A' STAKE A Boston broker lost a wallet containing $15,000 on the street and a newsboy found it and brought it to the owner. The man struggled with a terrible temptation mean and sordid for a moment, and then, forgetting self and casting to the winds his greed of gain as he trampled the temptation under his feet, gave the honest boy permission to go on the Common and play every day. "We can trust you," sobbed the grate-ful man; "we know that you will keep off the grass." And where is last year's candidate, who had things fixed for this year's slate! Who carried around, as you'd believe, a couple of counties in his sleeve! And where is the scribe with a vaulting will who tried a long felt want to fill, and courted shekels and renown with a minion paper in a bourgeous town? The lad has divided the world up fair, and holds but his own eight billionth share; the sweet girl grad, is a grand surprise, and conquers the world with weil made pies; the candidate with the deathless "gall" is fixing himself for another fall; while the journalist with the haughty crest has gone the way of last year's nest.
