Stoves by the Car Load.

For business energy and push and fair dealing Mr. Jacob Mitchell certainly stands at the head of our enterprising merchants. He had hardly been here more than one month when he saw the bright future for Engene, and finding his quarters too small and inconvenient, he rented on a long lease the Odd Fellows store room, which is the largest here and where, he can display his mammoth stock of stoves and tinware. In mammoth stock of stoves and tinware. In order to give the people of Lane county all the advantages possible in the way of a large assortment and very low price he has arranged with Eastern factories to get out his stock in carload lots, thus saving not only a big difference in freight, but also greatly reduced prices on each of the large purchases. This will enable him to sell at prices far below those of all competitors, He has just received his first carload of stoves and hollow ware and invites the publie to an inspection of the same at his mam-moth store room in the Odd Fellows build-

Fatal Balloon Disaster.

Arthur Cosgrove made a parachute jump at Albina Sunday that resulted in his death. He left the balloon when it was several thousand feet high. The parachute was slow to descend, owing to a brisk breeze that was blowing, and Cosgrove did not have the safety straps, usually employed by balloonists, around his wrists, and he got tired holding on. He was seen to change his hands several times and to hold on with one while resting the other. When 150 feet from the ground he was seen to let go, and a horror-stricken crowd of of spectators turned their eyes in another direction. He struck the ground in the middle of the street and all was over. His right arm was lacerated so as the bones protraded through the flesh, but no other mutilation of the body was noticeable and his face was perfectly natural. Cosgrove was 28 years old and lived with his wife and child in Portland.

GLEN O. POWERS.

After being duly sworn deposed as follows: * About a quarter after 7 o'clock, a. m. on August 12, 1890, myself and Harry Benton were together on the mountain sitting on a deer stand watching for deer, we heard a noise and we looked, and my cousin. Harry Benton, said, "there is a big buck." It was very brushy where we saw the object move, so much so that we could see but a very so much so that we could see but a very short distance. When Harry Benton saw the object he grabbed the little dog to cover his eyes and keep him from making a noise. He said: "You have to shoot. I will hold the dog." We heard the noise again and I saw the object in the brush. When I saw the object I there dithere is a saw the object I turned the gun around to my left, for I had to shoot this short left handed. When the object moved, I saw something red in the brush. I could not see the outlers, but could see object move in the brush. If the sun had not shined on his coat, I could not have seen the object at all. Be-fore I shot I made a noise to make the deer, as fore I shot I made a noise to make the deer, as I supposed, stop. The noise was like the deer, as of a deer, as near as I could make it. The ob-ject stopped as a deer does, then I fired as quick as I could. As quick as I shot or raised up and looked over that way, and could not see any thing or hear any thing new. We then walked slowly over to the place and we found there Mr. Walker dead. We then ran as fast as we could to tell the people what had hap-penel, and when about half way down the mountain we met Dr. Lane and two ladies, We told them, and Dr Lane said for us to go back immediately and get the body. Dr. Lane went with us and we went back on the moun-tains and got the body of Mr. Walker and brought it to my father's house."
