The Latest Swindle.

"Do you know the latest swindle for farmers?" asked a gentleman yesterday. "It beats the Bohemian oats. A glib tongued agent goes to a farmer and makes a bargain with him to furnish him cinnamon beans, something new, just out, and for which there is great demand, in the production of cinnamon oil, which is pressed from the beans. The beans are worth $30 a bushel, and he will agree to give the farmer $5 for each cinnamon tree grown from the seed he furnishes, when it has reached the growth of five feet, and he will bind the contract by a good and sufficient bond. The seed beans the farmer gets are common red beans saturated with cinnamon oil, and which seldom reach the growth above six inches. The farmer will wait a good while for the return of his $30."—E.

It has been only about two years since Lane county farmers bought $15 a bushel wheat. But still, we think, some "bean" sockets might be found.

The census returns from Idaho show why the Republican leaders in Congress were so anxious to force the admission bill through without waiting for a count. The population of Idaho is 84,229, or less than half the number that will be required to elect a single Representative under the new apportionment. Idaho, says the S. F. Examiner, is now a state with the right of electing two Senators and a Representative, while New Mexico, with over 150,000 inhabitants, is still a territory with no vote in either house. New Mexico has the bad judgment to give a Democratic majority, and will therefore have to stay out in the cold until a Democratic congress takes charge of affairs at Washington.

HALSKEY, Or., Aug. 1, 1890.

An old soldier's story: In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea, since then I have had a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I use it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. Bending, Halsey, Or. For sale by F. M. Wilkins.

Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs! All our breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them. When which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well. Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Halsey's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Ascended one of the Three Sisters.

Prineville Review, Aug. 30.

G. W. Slayton, who returned on Monday from a trip to the Cascade mountains, reports having ascended the middle one of the Three Sisters on the 21st with a party from Eugene. Their party consisted of thirteen persons and they left their camp, eight miles from the mountain, at sunrise and arrived at the glacier about 11 o'clock, where they lunched, and then began the ascent. The glacier, Mr. Slayton says, is grand, though difficult to travel over. It is several miles in length, and consists of snow from 100 to 150 feet in depth, and often there are deep crevices which appeared to reach to the bottom and are several feet in width. These have to be jumped, and unless one is sure-footed occasion considerable danger. When within a half mile of the summit they came to an abrupt cliff of ice which seemed impossible to ascend, though Mr. Slayton, who was probably more venturesome than the rest, began chopping steps in it with a hatchet and going up until he reached a place which was very abrupt, when he then thought it advisable to descend, but finding this impossible, he was compelled to keep on climbing until he reached the summit, where he arrived about an hour ahead of the rest of his party, who did not venture to follow him and took a more circuitous route. Only three of his companions succeeded in reaching the summit of the mountain, the rest giving out further down the mountain. The summit, he says, is composed of loose shell rock and large boulders and is not at present covered with snow.

The view from the summit of this mountain, which is estimated to be between 10,000 and 11,000 feet above the sea level. Mr. Slayton says is indeed grand, and well repays one making the ascent. There one is perched "way up in the heavens, where the air is intensely rare, and looking down the almost perpendicular sides, he experiences a feeling which makes him want to hold on to something to prevent his falling; he is on the summit of one of the highest peaks of the Cascade range, and looking in every direction, he sees a wonderful panorama of nature's own painting. Looking to the east he sees the broad deserts and treeless hills of Eastern Oregon with an occasional green spot in the brown, indicating the different ranges of timbered mountains. To the west he can look far in the direction of the Pacific, but the eye will not reach the grand old "father of waters," while apparently almost at his feet stretches the beautiful Willamette valley, fringed on either side with a band of green, and in the center may be seen the many thriving towns and cities of the valleys. Along the Cascades may be seen a number of lakes nesting down in the mountains which appear to be sheets of silver surrounded by the green foliage of the dense forests.

In the good old times when Cleveland was President of the United States, illegal private raids upon the treasury, which were manifestly robbery for the so called purpose of paying unjust private pension claims, were promptly vetoed, Grover courageously assuming the responsibility. Now, on the contrary, Harrison sneakily permits such dishonest measures to become laws by the mere withholding of his signature, too cowardly to veto what he is well aware is a premeditated attack on the public purse. If these pension purloinings are permitted to continue without protest, it won't take long to bankrupt the country.

It is reported that divers have found the lost wreck of the "Brother Jonathan" in the ocean about two miles from Crescent city and her valuable load of treasure may possibly yet be recovered. Even the pathless ways of the hidden deep are not beyond man's exploration.

Country Editor (out west)—This has been a lucky day for me. Faithful Wife—Has someone been in to pay a subscription? Editor—Well, no; it wasn't as lucky as that; but I was shot at and missed.

F. M. Wilkins, the druggist, wishes to remind his patrons that it is a dangerous policy to wait until taken sick before buying a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Every family should be provided with some reliable remedy for bowel complaints, ready for immediate use, whenever required, during the summer months, and this remedy is unquestionably superior to any other. It can always be depended upon, and is pleasant and safe to take. It is put up in 25 and 50 cent bottles.

An Albany Party Up the Three Sisters.

[Albany Democrat, Sept. 6th.]

J. A. Guise, E. D. Cusick, J. A. Cumming and Harry Cusick returned last evening from a sixteen days' trip through the Cascades, full of more than common interest, as their route will at once suggest: From Albany the party went to the McKenzie, stopping awhile at Belknap, noted for its hot springs; thence crossing over to Clear Lake, by way of the McKenzie, having a pleasant experience at the falls of that river, romantic with its rugged surroundings and grand rainbows. At Clear Lake a couple of hunters came in with ten deer. The Albany party were not out for slaughter and only killed enough game, as they traveled, for their own wants, hence they have no exciting fish stories to tell.

From Clear Lake they went towards the famous Three Sisters, the pride of Albany, their three white caps being seen in grand prominence on any clear day from our streets. Arriving at the foot of the mountain on the 27th of August, the next morning they started out at 7:20 o'clock on mules, reaching the snow line at 9:30, where they left the mules and continued on foot. The trip up is just safe enough to be interesting, and yet full enough of risk to have an adventurous nature. Though the party took ropes the ascent was easily made without their use, and in safety, though there are many yawning crevices that stand ready to frighten the timid. The ascent from the snow line was made in a little over four hours, a distance of four miles, which took the party to Copis peak, the one generally ascended.

There is no snow at the summit, the ground being clear and smooth. Here the view is a magnificent one—the Willamette valley lying before them in all its beauty on the west, and in all directions the panorama is a broad one.

The bottle of names was increased by theirs. It already contained those of A. Hasbrouck, Boyd Taylor and Capt. G. W. Davis, of the Vancouver barracks, who ascended in 1873. T. C. Jenkins, S. B. Eakin, Jr., J. J. Walton, C. M. Hill, S. Hill, W. I. Vawter, J. N. Goulet, O. H. Renfrow (twice), F. Dunn, A. V. Peters, G. W. Stayton, Harry Benton, John Straub, Glen O. Powers, Mand Offitt, Evelyn Morgan, J. B. Waldo, Don Smith, Davey Smith, Dan Bass, Mary E. Test, Emily Bristol, C. L. Winter, E. E. Potter, D. R. Collins, J. H. McClung, S. E. Horace, Walter, J. S., Willie and Charlie McClure and E. H. McAllister.

The descent was made to the snow line in about an hour, a very lively feat. The young men made the remainder of the trip home without adventure, much benefited by their experience.

La Grippe.

A dispatch from Paris bears the information that this dread disease which has re-appeared in Paris, is found to be of a primary and very severe type, and is more fatal than cholera. The recent visitation has developed a swollen tongue covered with festering blisters. Eating, drinking and speaking are intensely painful and difficult. There is a violent fever and the temperature of the spine is extremely high.

The disease is also appearing in several places in England combined with choleric symptoms.

Berlin, August 30.—In addition to the epidemic of influenza, a more dangerous one of typhus fever has broken out among the soldiers stationed at Glaton, and all the pioneers of the Fifth Battalion are now isolated and cannot take part in any of the forthcoming maneuvers.

Salem Statesman, September 5th: An item in yesterday morning's Statesman represented that Clatsop county was the banner one of the state in the matter of paying up taxes. Sheriff Croisan called the writer
