HALSEY, Or., Aug 1, 1890.
An old soldier's story: In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea, since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy was brought to my notice. I use it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. Bending, Halsey, from its issue of Nov. 22:

"The following was written for last week's paper but was misplaced: The recent elections went Democratic by a large majority.
The next U. S. Senate will be Democratic by a large majority. New York, Illinois, Kansas and many other states elect mostly Democratic congressmen. McKinley was defeated for the governorship of Ohio.

Several months ago Mr. Henry Plummer, of Clements, Cal., who is subject to cramps, was taken with a severe attack. He had been accustomed to get relief by dosing with morphine, but the disagreeable effect that followed would make him miserable for hours after the cramp had been relieved. I persuaded him to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He was much pleased with it, as its effect was almost instantaneous, and no disagreeable after effects accompanied its use. Chas. Bam-best, Manager Farmers' Trade Union, Clements, Cal. For sale by F. M. Wilkins.

F. M. Wilkins, the druggist, wishes to remind his patrons that it is a dangerous policy to wait until taken sick before buying a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Every family should be provided with some reliable remedy for bowel complaints, ready for immediate use, whenever required, during the summer months, and this remedy is unquestionably far superior to any other. It can always be depended upon, and is pleasant and safe to take. It is put up in 25 and 50 cent bottles.

Oregonian Railway Sale.
Oregonian, Nov. 24: It is learned from good authority that the Oregonian railways, formerly known as the East and West Side narrow gauge, which were some time since bought by C. P. Huntington, have been sold by him to the Southern Pacific. It has been considered as a foregone conclusion, ever since the southern Pacific acquired the Oregon & California lines, that the narrow gauge lines would be absorbed into its system, but when Mr. Huntington purchased them and it was known that there was a disagreement between the Huntington and Stanford factions, and it was given out that Huntington would change the narrow gauge roads to standard gauge and extend the East Side line from Silverton to Portland, and from Coburg across the Cascades and Southeastern Oregon, to connection with a transcontinental line, it was supposed that the Oregonian system and the Southern Pacific would remain separate. In railroad matters, as in other things, it is always the improbable which happens, and some arrangement has been effected by which the Oregonian lines have passed to the Southern Pacific.
What effect this may have on the extensions of the East Side line is unknown. The track from Woodburn to Coburg is being made broad gauge, and the rails are secured to take the place of the light ones now on the line. The southern extension is graded to Springfield, where it is only separated from the Southern Pacific by the Willamette river, and the track from Coburg to Springfield will be laid with sixty-pound steel rails, but whether the road will be extended from Springfield over the Cascades or not remains to be seen. The extension from Silverton into this city has been surveyed, and a great deal of time spent in securing a good route and right of way, but work on this end of it, which was to have been built this fall and used as a suburban railway, has not been commenced. Whether the Southern Pacific, having connection with the Oregonian line at Woodburn, will deem it advisable to build a line from Silverton into Portland or not, is impossible to say.

The widening of the gauge between Woodburn and Coburg will be completed in a few weeks, when it is probable that regular trains will be run between this city and Coburg, via the Southern Pacific, to Woodburn.
Probably the sale of the Oregonian roads to the Southern will be a good thing for all concerned, and there have been so many stranger things happening in railroad circles of late, that the sale will scarcely surprise anybody.

Boss Reed's Reasons.
Speaker Reed has been heard from. He says that "Blaine is the one man in America who is most to blame" for the late political landslide. And not satisfied with that he acts the part of a spoiled child and hits Mc-Kinley a slap in the jaw and snites the senate between the harness. In speaking of the senate he says: "The dawdling manner of the senate, by which congress was kept in session so long and the passage of the tariff bill deferred, was a cause of the democratic victory."

The spoiled child might have spared Mc-Kinley, but he also charges him with a share of the responsibility, not for what he did, but for what he failed to do. He says that he told McKinley that he wished the bill put through by February, and adds that "if McKinley had been of the Randall stripe instead of the Carlisle pattern, such a thing as the delay had upon the tariff measure could never have occurred."

But the wrath of the present Maine boss of the lower house is greatest against the Maine boss of the administration. He says Blaine's attack upon the McKinley bill was an attack upon the republican party, and, between his sobs, he cries out in the anguish of his spirit, "it was an unjustifiable attack, too."

The publication of Reed's interview settles the question as to the position of the two Maine statesmen. They have put themselves at the head of rival republican factions, while Major McKinley is left out of consideration by both, one condemning him for lack of judgment and the other for lack of dash.

J. W. Hanville, living four miles south of McMinnville, has a sure-enough artesian well on his farm, says the Yamhill Reporter. He started to dig a stock well, and after excavating 17 1/2 feet, bored down fifteen feet with a two inch auger. Here he struck a vein of such pressure that the auger was forced out and before he could get out of the well was in water up to his knees. The water continued to rise and fill the excavation until it overflowed the surface and is now the source of a small stream. Mr. Han-ville intends piping the well in order to test the pressure.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.
About four years ago my attention was called to Dr. Hiller's Cough Cure, since which time I have used it with old and young with the most satisfactory results. In fact I keep it always on hand. R. J. TRUMBULL, of men, San Francisco, Cal. For sale at E. H.

A sure cure for the whiskey habit: Dr.
Livingston's Antidote for drunkenness will cure any case of the liquor habit from ten the drunkard. The antidote can be given in a cup of coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. The Antidote will not injure the health in any way. Manufactured by the Livingston Chemical Co., Portland, Oregon, or from Osburn & DeLano, Eugene.

J. W. Kimbrell, of North Powder, was interviewed by a Chronicle reporter on Sunday evening. Mr. Kimbrell is and has been employed in surveying and platting the Umatilla Indian reservation, as the same is appraised by Commissioners Somerville, Eddy and Morehouse. From him we learn that the sale of these lands will probably open about the first of May or June next and that a magnificent opportunity will be offered to all to secure some of the choicest lands in the Northwest. The sale will be managed by our own efficient and gentlemanly land officers, Cleaver and McClelland, which of itself is a guarantee that every thing will be straight and honorable.—

In the White House.
It was natural enough that the blinds of the White House should be drawn and that a deathly silence should pervade the mansion. Only Baby McKee as he tried on and took off the old white hat, showed signs of life. Throwing aside the heirloom he crawled upon his revered grandpa's knee.
"Is any one dead, gran'pa?" he asked timidly.
There was no answer.
"Are you sick, gran'pa?" he asked again.
No answer.
"What makes you feel bad, gran'pa?" he continued.
The silence was dreadful.
"Where did you go when you went away, gran'pa?"
The little fellow puzzled over the continued silence of his grandparent.
"Did you go home?"
The president sighed and wearily answered "Yes."
"What did you go home for, gran'pa?" the child continued.
"To vote, Benny," said the grandfather.
"Did you vote, gran'pa?" he asked.
No answer.
"What did you vote for?"
"Elijah! Elijah!" called the president.
"Yes, deacon," replied Elijah.
"Will you take Benny out in the afternoon and let some office-seeker kiss him?"
"Yes, deacon," and the secretary led the child to his daily sacrifice.—Chicago Times

The Oregon Pacific.
The people of Oregon, and especially those of the Willamette valley and Eastern Oregon, are deeply interested in the future of the Oregon Pacific railroad, and the movements of the company are watched with interest by the public.

The cause of the road being placed in the hands of a receiver recently was on account of default in payment of interest on bonds due October. The petition was signed by parties holding $1,500,000 of the bonds, who selected Mr. Hogg to represent their interests. The West Shore is authority for the statement that the company will be reorganized and placed on a solid financial basis and the work of extending the line will be resumed at an earlier day.

The original intention was to build from Yaquina Bay, Oregon, to Boise City, Idaho, a distance of 600 miles. The line is now completed from the initial point to Coe, a distance of 140 miles from Yaquina and 60 miles eastward from Albany, and is being operated the entire distance. It will be refreshing news to parties holding time checks and other obligations of the road to know that at last there is a prospect of a settlement being reached: The line has labored under difficulties from the day it was started, caused principally by attempting to make $50 to $100 worth of construction work. A good business awaits the completion of this road, and it is to be hoped the new management will be able to carry the enterprise to a successful completion in a creditable manner.

The exact length of the trestle that fell at Lake Lahah was 600 feet 9 1/2 inches, instead of 600 feet as announced in the Statesman by guess the first morning after the wreck. In the entire trestle there are 126 bents, which are twenty feet apart. The rails used at this point of the road are thirty feet in length, and by the different counts thirty-eight or forty were involved in the wreck. Mr. Prunty counted thirty-eight and Mr. Frantz forty. In the entire trestle there were 170 rails. There are sixty-five on each side of the track from the break to the south embankment, where the trestle commences.
The whole length of the trestle is 2550 feet, and its height above the ground is ten feet in some places to twenty in others.—

Prineville Review: Where Prineville shall get its wood, in the future, is a question well worthy the consideration of those who expect to make this their home in years to come. Already good juniper wood is becoming a scarce article, wood haulers being compelled to go out on the desert from ten to sixteen miles in order to get a good article, and at the present rate of consumption, about 1500 cords a year, this supply will soon be exhausted. Then the people of this town will have to either burn pine wood, which is an inferior fuel, or coal will have to be discovered in this vicinity. A small vein of coal has been discovered near the head of Ochoco, and it is not unlikely that coal in large quantities exists somewhere in the country.
