What is it?
That produces that beautifully soft complexion and leaves no traces of its application or injurious effects? The answer, Wisdom's Robertine accomplishes all this, and is pronounced by ladies of taste and refinement to be the most delightful toilet article ever produced. Warranted harmless and matchless. F. M. Wilkins, agent, Eugene City.
HALSEY, Or., Aug 1, 1890.
An old soldier's story: In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhea, since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found that that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. Hensley, Halsey, Or. For sale by F. M. Wilkins.

What Mary Meant When She Said "Rats!"
KANSAS, NOVEMBER 4, 1890.
(The women did it—John Sherman.)
From Kansas City Star.
I was one of them "fool farmers"; yes, I'll own it like a man; There was plenty of us fashioned on the same peculiar plan; And I've lived out here in Kansas more than five and twenty years, A growin' poor and poorer as it certainly appears.
I seldom read the newspapers; I worked too hard for that, And never knew why I got lean while other men got fat; I didn't fool with politics; I had too much to do.
But I always voted as I shot and as they told me to.
The day before election, jest imagine my distress
When I ketch'd my wife a-readin'—now whatever would you guess?—
A free-trade publication, and, to make it worse, she said!
She'd read it regular each night before she went to bed.
And, do you know, that wife of mine jest faced me up and down
That farmers slave to make a few monopolists in town?
I always try to get around these warm domestic spats,
But when I praised protection and she laughed and answered "rats."
I bristled up; it kindled all the sentiments of strife
To think this free trade stuff should be corruptin' of my wife;
I quit her then and there before her argument was through,
As every good protectionist makes it a rule to do.
That night we had a camp fire and our congressman was there.
We gave him "John Brown's Body" when he went to take the chair;
I wore my old blue uniform to spite the Democrats.
But all the time I wondered what my Mary meant by "Rats."
Our Congressman was eloquent, he made a stirrin' speech;
I could almost see the battle's smoke and hear the bullets screech.
And when he bade us vote as we had shot at Malvern Hill,
We rose with one accord and cried with one acclaim, "we will."
We sang the good old war songs and we ate a mess of beans,
And we passed the evening pleasantly, recallin' bloody scenes;
And we took the straightout tickets and we pinned 'em on our hats,
But all the time I wondered what my Mary meant by "Rats."
When I reached home I noticed that my Mary wore a smile,
Which seemed to me as indicating storms ahead or bile;
To head her off I said: "You'll call me early, mother dear,
"For to-morrow'll be the liveliest day free trade will have this year."
Next mornin' jest at sun-up, as I woke and rubbed my eyes,
A-wonderin' what she meant by "Rats" I saw to my surprise
My clothes and boots and hats all ranged in order on the floor,
And bearing each a card I'd swear I never saw before.
My flannel shirt displayed this sign: "Taxed 95 per cent."
My trousers "Taxed 100"—so this was what "Rats" meant;
My vest said "Taxed 100" and my shoes "Taxed 25";
My coat and hat "200" with "Protection makes us thrive."
I went to fill the basin and I noticed as I came
"Taxed 45 per cent."—Great Scott; the towel said the same!
The soap was marked at "20" as I dropped it on the floor,
I chanced to see a scuttle full of coals chalked "24."
I passed into the kitchen and it gives me pain to state
That my wife had on a woolen dress stamped "only 58";
And in shooting out a guinea she made a little dive
Which showed a pair of stockings with a card marked "35."
The baby in his little bed was lyin' fast asleep;
I always held the little chap as most uncommon cheap;
But when I saw them cards on blanket, pillow, crib and sheet,
I felt a lump rise in my throat; I knew that I was beat.
No matter where I went I struck them pesky little signs,
The stove, the plates, the knives, the forks, the window sash and blinds,
The scissors, needles, thread, all bore that terrible per cent;
Bigosh, I didn't care to see what card was on the rent.
That was the soberest meal I ever ate in all my life,
And as I left the table, in remarking to my wife
That I was goin' to the polls, she helped me with my coat,
And said, "I reckon, John, I needn't tell you how to vote."
I walked down to my votin' place; it looked like every yard
Was full of farmers' implements which bore a little card,
And seemed to say from plough to spade from thresher down to axe,
Good morning, John, and don't forget the tariff is a tax.
I voted straight—O, yes, no doubt of that; I voted straight.
But not exactly in the way expected of my state;
And I showed the boys the little cards provided by my wife;
—That night our Congressman took leave of public life.
I was one of them "fool farmers" drivin' five and twenty years;
But I've learned a little common sense, as doubtless now appears.
You can run and tell McKinley, and say —don't forget to state,
That we've voted out in Kansas, and we've voted darned near straight.

Two Wicked Women.
Albany Herald.
A pair of modestly attired women with an unlimited amount of "conversational power," have been stopping in this city for a few days, plying their vocation as timber locators. They solicited business from women chiefly, and promised to locate their victims on fine timber claims for a modest fee of $75, holding out brilliant inducements to make them rich in a short period of time, in a manner that would have excited the jealousy of Captain Stone or any other of the timber land swindlers who have worked this racket abroad.
The two women seem, however, possessed of a faculty of gleaming successfully in the field gone over, and by reducing the price from $150 to $75 they have found a few victims in Albany, who will probably a little later discover that they have paid a couple of female "locators" a fat fee for the privilege of buying as timber land some burned mountain quarter section of land upon which after having seen it they would be unwilling to pay taxes.
The most dishonest part of the work of these timber swindlers is that they usually show the investor some desirable piece of timber land, but when they make the location the unsophisticated buyer finds that the land they have secured is perhaps in another section and contains no timber save a huge lot of burned logs and a few dead snags.
There is plenty of good timber land in Oregon, but it is not often obtained by paying fees to timber locators, whether they be men or women. In fact those functionaries, who have swindled unwary people out of thousands of dollars in this state during the past year or two, are to be shunned as upright people would shun the devil.

What a Fall Is There!
John I. Ingalls, U. S. Senator from Kansas and Vice President of the body of which he is a member, has long been one of the most conspicuous figures in Washington. He has three times been sent to the senate but always with a suspicion that he got there by money paid by corporations that had use for his tongue, and a very foul tongue it was. On the eve of the Chicago convention he telegraphed a trusted delegate to "put up a Western Grand Army man and a New York money bag and they would be elected no matter who they were." It proved that there was more truth than poetry in his message. In an address to Irish delegates not long ago he denounced the Irish government as only Ingalls can denounce anything, and he said the people of the United States "had lived to regret Waterloo." Since then he has published a magazine article in which he says that: "Pure politics is an iridescent dream. Government is force. Politics is a battle for supremacy. Parties are the armies. The Dealogue and the Golden Rule have no place in a political campaign. The object is success. To expel the party in power the aim. In war it is lawful to deceive the enemy, to hire Hessians, to purchase mercenaries, to mutilate, to kill, to destroy. The commander who lost a battle through the activity of his moral nature would be the derision and the jest of history. The modern cant about the corruption in politics is faigning in the extreme. It proceeds from the tea-and-stard and syllabub dilettantism, the frivolous and desultory sentimentalism of Episcopians." When that was written a few months ago Kansas was the Republican Banner State, but it has now vomited Ingalls out of its mouth and there is not much syllabub dilettantism (whatever that may be supposed to be) nor many frivolous Episcopians there either.—S. F. News-Letter.

Sunday Welcome: Wm. Guthrie, a sportively-inclined barber who works on this side of the Willamette river, and heretofore slept in East Portland—when business engagements at the card table didn't keep him over night in Portland—on Thanksgiving Day left his faithful wife and five children, and cautioned the storekeepers not to trust her in future on his account. When Guthrie married his wife she had about a thousand dollars. It is unnecessary to say that she has not got it now, or her husband's desertion would have been deferred. From all accounts the mother and children are to be congratulated on the departure of Mr. Wm. Guthrie, and although perhaps not believed by them in their loneliness, there was never the less more cause for them to offer thanks on the 27th of last month when he sought a new bed and board, than fell to the lot of any other family in East Portland—at least so say her relatives.

The Yaquina Republican says that the Oregon Pacific company is taking out the machinery of the old tug Favorite, which will be overhauled and converted into a compounded engine, and then placed in the new schooner to be built by the company. It has not yet been decided where the schooner will be built, but it is probable it will be done at mill 4 or some other point on the bay. The dimensions are, 160 feet keel, 34 feet beam, 14 feet depth of hold, with a capacity of seven or eight hundred tons burden.

Albany Democrat: Mr. J. P. Robertson, of Salem, informs us that steps are being taken to organize a State Farmers Alliance in this state. There is great restlessness among farmers of the northwest at the vicious policy of high taxation so persistently promoted by the Republican party. This policy seems destined to prove to be the rock upon which the party will yet founder.

It is claimed that Russell & Co., manufacturers in Massillon, Ohio, have reduced the wages of twenty-three democratic employees because they voted for Warwick instead of McKinley. This caused dissatisfied farmers to institute a boycott against Russell engines and threshers. Messrs. Russell & Co. must begin to realize that there are two parties in the United States.
