The smaller streams of Arizona quite in the country. Seeking to make are all of one class, running fullest in the spring and almost failing in the summer. Those that run into the plains sink in the sands, and are lost for the major portion of the year. The question naturally arises. Why not store the winter water in suitable catchment reservoirs, to be spread on the thirsty lands

This proposition has been appreciated, as is shown by the location of dam sites for water storage purposes in many parts of the territory. The Walnut Grove for the severity of the trespass law dam, owing to faulty construction, was farms, orchards and meadows would a lamentable failure, but before it gave way showed by the fine body of water impounded the entire practicability of the scheme.
