The blind followers of the rejected "protection scheme" are still engaged in the effort to extend the circulation of "protection literature" in the vain hope of replacing the "wool" over the eyes of the people. One of the schemes is to club the American Economist, an organ run entirely in the interasts of protected manufacturers, with every republican and independent paper in the country. But it will not win.

During November and December A. ~. Keeney had a horse and a cow killed by trains of the Southern Pacific Co., the former being appraised at $65 and the latter at $25. He presented his claims to the company and received no reply until yesterday, when he was informed by the claim agent that as he was convinced that the stock had been intentionally placed in the way of the trains he would allow no damages. That there is not the least grounds for such pretended suspicions is self-evident and Uncle Jack purposes to institute a suit at once to recover that which is justly due him. The section foreman at Creswell might be able to explain how the agent at Portland came in possession of such unauthentic statements.

Railroad Probabilities.

A Portland dispatch of Feb. 3 has railroad news of interest to Lane county, as follows: General Manager Koehler, of the Southern Pacific, was seen vesterday about matters connected with his road and its numerous connected with his road and its numerous branches. Concerning the extension of the Woodburn-Coburg branch from Silverton into Portland nothing has been decided. Some twenty-five hundred tons of steel rails are now on hand, sufficient to lay about twenty-eight miles of road. Thes are now on hand for the extension from Corvallis to Junction City. The few gaps which exist in the company's acquirements of right of way are now being filled up. The intention to build this road has not been abandoned. Grading has been completed on an extension from Coburg to Springfield and the bridge over the McKenzie has been swang. As soon as good spring weather sets in the track soon as good spring weather sets in the track will be laid and trains will then run from Springfield to Woodburn.

The Bogart Bridge.

In the issue of Feb. 21st of the Guano. Commissioner Parker charged that Thomas Barbre, supervisor of the district, had built a bridge across the Bogart slough on the east side of Lost Valley precinct under contract with the county court for $100$, and then used road and subscription inhor and subscriptions of money with which to build it. Mr. Barbre replies as follows:

Our worthy contemporary of the West unjustly criticizes the members of the legislature who voted against wazen road bills, and the governor for veloting them. The West apparently is offended at the failure of the bill, because $3,000 of the common spoils was to be spent on a wagon road leading towards Florence.

If it is to be viewed as a matter of sectional advantage, we would advise our contemporary to take his pencil and figure the proportion Lane county would be compelled to pay toward the wagon road schemes. He will find it close to $5,000.
