

Fifteen Scandals in Two Years.

To the untruthful remark that "no public scandal blurs the record" of the two years of Republican rule...

Scandal No. 1.—Selling "protection" and excessive profits to monopolists for money used to elect a president.

Scandal No. 2.—Awarding the raising of a corruption fund with a position in the cabinet of a president.

Scandal No. 3.—Expending the money thus procured in the open purchase of votes.

Scandal No. 4.—Utter disregard of civil service reform pledges and a galaxy of respectable appointments for discreditable party service.

Scandal No. 5.—Shameful administration of the great pension bureau for the benefit of pension sharks.

Scandal No. 6.—Prostituting the most honorable public office in the world to a purely family affair.

Scandal No. 7.—The president of the United States as a gift-taker and tool of real estate boomers.

Scandal No. 8.—Stealing the representation of the United States senate of a new state.

Scandal No. 9.—Creating a state of mining camps for the sole purpose of retaining partisan control.

Scandal No. 10.—Evicting democratic members of the house of representatives for the same reason.

Scandal No. 11.—Usurpation of power by a speaker to insure the passage of partisan measures.

Scandal No. 12.—Disgraceful scenes and gross vulgarity in the house, the direct result of the speaker's action.

Scandal No. 13.—Making a fraudulent census for partisan advantage through a re-portionment of congressional representation.

Scandal No. 14.—Government officials looting public lands regardless of a very mild rebuke.

Scandal No. 15.—Squandering the money of an overtaxed people to get rid of a troublesome surplus.

The World does not stop with enumerating these blots upon the Republican record of the last two years. It gives the details, time, place, names and figures. It is a record for which the whole Republican party ought to be sorry, and it probably is, when it remembers the result of last November's elections.

A Lane County Man.

The Evening Star, of Washington, D. C., published a picture of Hon. H. H. Giltry, a former resident of Eugene, and known by the majority of the people of Lane county, with the following notice:

A very important position is that of principal legislative clerk. The man who fills it must know a great deal about practical legislative procedure and no one ever accused H. H. Giltry of ignorance as to his duties. Mr. Giltry was born in Illinois in 1852 and spent six months in crossing the plains to Oregon, accompanied by his father and mother. He is still a resident of Oregon. He received a classical education at Salem, Oregon, and was given the degree of A. M. Admitted to the bar, Mr. Giltry practiced for some time. He is a past grand master of the Odd Fellows of his state. He entered the secretary's office on June 11, 1879, as index clerk, and one month later was transferred to the desk he now occupies in the Senate chamber. His duties comprise the indexing on books of bills, petitions and memorial memoranda of the action or inaction of the Senate. He calls the roll of the Senate on all yeas and nays votes and in all these years has never made a mistake in his results. When the chief clerk is absent Mr. Giltry takes charge of all legislation on the desk.

Democratic Common Sense.

The following from Hon. Roger Q. Mills is full of common sense:

The splendid fight we have made against the high tariff has beaten, disorganized and scattered our foes, and it was only for us now to go to the legislature and divide our own forces and restore the Republic with their force bills, bounties, increased tariffs, distresses and spoils of the people."

The Democratic party will not wrangle over free coinage. When it gets the opportunity to make a tariff issue, it will force it. But until Federal taxes are reduced to the revenue only basis, there can be only one leading issue—the reform of taxation and the overthrow of tax supported monopoly.

The Dalles is excited over a story that George Snipes has given the Union Pacific railroad company forty acres of land about two miles west of the town on which to locate car shops, and start a new town to be called New Chicago. It is stated that the company will abandon their present line along the river and will run the road south of the Dalles in order to avoid the drifting sand which now so frequently causes delay.

The case of Richard Everding vs. Joe Simon was decided in the supreme court Monday in which the lower court was affirmed, and a victory for Simon. This is the case brought from Multnomah county to test the legality of the act passed by the legislature of 1889, whereby Joseph Simon holds the office of police commissioner of Portland indefinitely. Under the decision, Simon can hold the office until the charter is changed by a vote of the people.

The United States in 1865, when it had in operation the greatest army this country ever saw, appropriated for the war $1,030,000,000. The republicans congress, which has just adjourned, has spent $1,030,000,000, or nearly as much as the enormous cost of the army in the last year of the war. The republican party is the party of high taxes and extravagant expenditures. The Democratic party is the party of low taxes and economical appropriations.

The fourth trial of the gambler Sandy Olds for killing Emil Webber in Portland two years ago was concluded at Hillsboro last week and resulted in a verdict of manslaughter. Olds was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary. He had twice before been convicted of murder in the first degree, and had the sentence of death by hanging pronounced upon him, the supreme court granting him new trials each time.

When Hon. O. N. Denny arrives in the Willamette valley in June from his many years' sojourn in China and Corea, says the Albany Democrat, he will find the valley well filled with Chinese peasants as a monument to his generosity and interest in Oregon, and will also find a stuffed one on nearly every mantle and in many store windows.

Ex-Senator J. F. Wager, of Umatilla county, has gone to California. His whereabouts, in that state are unknown. The Pendleton East Oregonian says: The contents of a letter he wrote before leaving Portland intimated that he would not be alive very long. It is hoped though that he is not in such ill health as he seems to think himself.

Senator John J. Fogalls' voice sends up from under the Democratic avalanche these words: "The views of Western Republicans, or those who have hitherto been identified with the republican party, have undergone an essential change on the tariff question, and among such there is now a demand for tariff revision and reduction."

It is a significant fact that the woolly spile was never known to exist in this county until after the McKinley bill raised the tariff on wool.—Marshfield Sun.

Fourteen Feet of Water.

The West of March 29 gives the following account of a steam schooner crossing the Siuslaw river bar drawing 12 feet: On Friday last past the Record from San Francisco arrived off the mouth of the bay at this place, and remained over night, as the tide was low on her arrival. Saturday morning the vessel started for the mouth of the river to direct the course of the Record over the bar and into the bay. The Lillian, on which we took passage, performed the threefold duty of carrying a few people—among whom were Mr. W. F. Stevens, one of the owners of the Record, and Jas. T. Barron, of the Lighthouse service stationed at Portland, Oregon—remaining at the mouth of the river as an object for the Record to approach, and signaling her when to cross the bar. There were but few breakers, and although every indication for a successful entry of the steam schooner on the outside, all the passengers became more or less excited while waiting for the tide. Precisely at two o'clock and fifteen minutes Captain Bergman swung the Lillian into place and sounded two long blasts from the whistle which were answered by the Record, that lay just inside the bar. The schooner then came straight away, with two leaden sounding, steering direct for the Lillian, and as she neared the bar she asked, by whistles, if her course was right, and was responded to by Capt. Bergman in the affirmative. At two o'clock and twenty minutes and at just three-quarters the Capt. Bergman announced that she was over the bar, and soon we heard the leadmen calling five fathoms, five and a half and "that will do" from the captain of the Record as they hauled in their leads.

After the steam schooner had landed at Hurd & Davenport's wharf in Florence, the vessel was towed into the harbor, accompanied by Mr. Stevens, and we heard the latter gentleman ask the question: "Tell me, Captain, accurately, the least depth of water you found on the bar." We also heard the response given to our owner of the Record, "just 14 feet." We also heard Capt. Bergman state his surprise at finding the depth of water as much after the reports given him, and that he could cross that narrow bar at the same stage of the tide fully loaded, and his steam schooner draws 12 feet. Coming as this does from an old sea captain on his first entry into our port, it will be of little use to the Record, unless it is to give the Record a new lease of life.

The Record is a staunch steam schooner, 100 feet long, 24 feet beam, owned by Rinehart, Stevens & Co., the extensive mill firm, who recently sold their large sawmill in Mendocino county, California. The Record is one of many steam schooners this firm owns, and was built expressly for the lumber trade. This one draws the least amount of water, and was not here until recently loaded to draw 10 1/2 feet, and will return to the mills and drawing 11 1/2 feet of water and carrying 200,000 feet of lumber.

Charity as a Business.

There is a family living in the old house of Dr. Ross in Canemah which is so very decidedly, extremely, distressingly poor, not to mention the meekles among the children in rags, that the charitable ladies of Canemah are interesting themselves in their behalf. But the needs of this family, whose name is in Clements, are so great that they have forced the charity of the public by duping the stores. Mrs. Clements, under stands the racket. She goes into a store and in tender, magnetic tones relates a sad story of poverty and sickness that would melt the heart of a horse, and winds up by asking whether the kind-hearted storekeeper won't sell her this roll of butter, or that side of bacon, or yonder pile of tobacco—her little ones are so hungry—and she will bring the money to-morrow. The merchant can't resist and she carries off the goods, but always forgets to pay the bill except when forcibly reminded. One merchant has been obliged to present them with groceries to the amount of $25, another a sack of flour and a big side of bacon, another oranges, lemons, etc. The poor, poor woman even tried to buy an accordion for the ragged children but her check would not pass as pay for their price. The Clements family worked their scheme of charity with success among the people of Eagle Creek. They came here from Eugene.

Statesman: There is perhaps no labor so tiresome as that which its performer sees is to accomplish no good. And it is just in this way that Howard and Curtis, the two self-appointing convicts in Oregon's state penitentiary, have been laboring every day, for days and for weeks long months. For ten long hours every day they drag over the same well-known path a heavy piece of pig iron. This is their punishment for maiming themselves in the hope that they might escape labor. It is just punishment, and it has been successful, for since these wretches have been dragging the weight behind them there have been no more self-imposed amputations.

A real estate dealer, of Port Townsend, Wash., in a private letter to a gentleman in this city, says: "What can you say of times in Oregon? Here it is quiet and dull, money tight, taxes long, credit poor, interest high, people leaving town except gamblers." This shows that we, of Oregon, are no worse off than the people of booming (?) Washington.—Roseburg Review.

W. Lair Hill received $17,000 for codifying the laws of Washington. The press of the state says his work is incomplete and the pay he received for it an extortion.
