Fall Creek Findings.

Mrs. Griffin has been visiting with her daughter near High Bank for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Kissinger, of Succor Hol-low, visited at Mr. Wilmot's Sunday last.

Mr. Wheeler, of Springfield, and Mr. Jas per Hills, of Jasper, were in this vicinity last Friday looking for a location for a logging camp, but ye correspondent failed to le whether they decided on a place or not.

Walker Young, drove a part of his cattle up in the mountains the first of the week on the outside range. He intends taking the balance before long. This range affords grazing for large droves of stock which are riven there every spring.

Arbor Day was observed last Friday, but the time being so short, after school com-menced, there was but very little time to make arrangements and prepare a pro-gramme. And the school house and grounds being out in the commons it was useless to set out trees and shrubbery as the festive cow wandereth around over the yard in search of something to satisfy her cravings would have broken the tree down. It was decided to wait until the house and grounds were inclosed and then it would be of some use to think of beautifying them.

Rumor has it that a surveying party will soon be put in the field between here and the terminus of the railroad just below Jasper. Where this originated, whether it is eliable or whether some one who has great hopes and anticipates that a party will be sent out—has had a revelation, or on retir-ing to his lonely chamber, at night, has had the nightmare and dreamed it and has gone forth "Proclaiming it to the world," we are not prepared to say. If this news is authentic it will be received with hearty applause, not only here on Fall Creek but far on where they are badly in need of a railroad which d open up a vast farming, grazing and lumbering country and encourage immigra-Look Shanp.

coming from Seaton to Florence, she shipped an unusual passenger. When about midway on her trip, and running at full speed, a mearmaid actually flew in over the bow and alighted on the fore part of the boat There is a curtain at the front of the boat to protect passengers from the storm and wind, and the fabled marine animal came in under the curtain in full view of the passengers This unexpected appearance of the sea nymph so frightened those on board that several ladies fainted and one man jumped overboard. Capt. Cox, of Florence, and E. J. Frasier, of Eugene, who were on the Mink at the time, state that it was a queer looking little animal with fin-like wings, and a face resembling that of a human. The mermaid remained only a moment, and be-fore any of the frightened parties on the bost could recover from their scare suffi-ciently to capture it, the maid slid into the Hoodiumism. - Three fourteen-year-old boys last week, near the Masonic cemetery, attacked a couple of smaller boys who were gathering flowers, and capturing one of them took a cord, and placing it around his neck put the other end over a limb of a tree and put the other end over a limb of a tree and then started on, when the boy pulled out his knife and attempted to cut the cord, when the trio returned and took the knife away from him. He remained in this position for quite a time when a passerby cut the string and liberated him. The boy's neck bore the marks of the cord until the next day. The culprits should be severely pun-ished by parents.

Militia Trials.

The findings of the court martial in the cases of Capt, Sladden and Lieut. Yoran of Co. C. O. N. G., of Eugene have been made public. The Oregonian of April 16, gives the same as follows:

Captain Sladden was found guilty on the charge and the first specification, and not guilty on the second specification. The following is the sentence of the court:

"That he be reprimanded by orders from regimental headquarters, and that said orders be published and posted in each company headquarters of said Second regiment for a period of thirty days."

Lieutenant Yoran was charged with diso-

Lieutenant Yoran was charged with disobedience of orders, in violation of the 21st article of war. Specification 1 states that he was ordered to take charge of the drill squad of C Co. and drill them at least two hours each week, as per company crders No. 1, but he did not drill the said recruits once which is in violation of the laws of the O. N. G., and articles of war.

The accused was found guilty on the first specification, not guilty on the second and guilty on the charge. The sentence of the court is: "That he be continued under arrest for thirty days, also be reprimanded by the regimental commander in ders, and also pay a fine to his company fund of $10."

The proceedings, findings and sentences on these cases were approved by Governor Pennoyer, commander in chief. In the case of Lieutenant Yoran, however, the sentence of Lieutenant Yoran, however, the sentence appeared to be excessive to Governor Pennoyer who modified it as follows: "So much of the sentence as requires him to be continued under arrest for thirty days and to pay a fine to his company fund of $10 is hereby remitted. As thus mitigated, the sentence will be duly executed."
