THROUGH THE WEARY HOURS

Of many a night, made doubly long by its protracted agony, the rheumatic sufferer tosses to and fro on his sleepless couch, vainily praying for that rest which only comes by fits and starts. His malady is one which ordinary medicines too often fail to relieve, but there is ample evidence to prove that the efficient blood deparent. Hostetler's stomach Bitters, affords the rheumatic a reliable means of relief. Check the malady n its incipient stages, when the first premoultery twinges come on, with this agreeable medicine, and avoid years of torture. Whatever be the rationale of the active influence of the Bitters upon this malady, certain it is that no evidence relating to its effect is more direct and positive than that which relates to its action in cases of rheumatism. Like all sterling remedies, however, it deserves a protracted, systematic trial, and should not be abandoned because not at once remedial. It is equally efficacious in dyspepsia, indigestion and kindred diseases.

MAKE YOURSELF A NEW BODY

Purge away the old, diseased and wornout body, said Dr. Brandreth. Replace the discharged matters of the system with good, simple food, and thus build up a new and sound body in place of one feeble and diseased. Every man should know that he must be "renewed" at least once in two or three years, else he would soon break down completely. This renewing process is easily brought about by purging with BRANDRETH'S ILLLS. They put new life into old bodies.

"What are the principal qualifications to become a lineman?" "A cool head. Any one could per-form the mechanical part of the work after a little experience, but to do it at an elevation of a couple of hundred feet on a slim pole, when a fall means certain death, is another thing. When a strong wind is blowing it makes the task particularly hard and dangerous. The spurs we wear, attached to our misstep means a fall. There's a knack in climbing up a pole properly, but it's not half as bad as the coming down. The sensation, I can tell you, is very peculiar to a new hand."

SEEN FROM THE POLE'S TOP. According to the statement of half a dozen linemen spoken to, some very strange sights have been witnessed by perience said he was working for a tele-phone company in Brooklyn and had been sent to repair a wire on Clark street. It was necessary for him to climb nearly every pole in the street, and while ascending one near the corner of Hicks street he was enabled to look diagonally into the windows of a house. Another lineman related a poculiar ex-perience he had while perched on a pole on Third avenue, near Seventy-third street. He had a pair of pinchers in his hand, and was in the act of twisting the two ends of a broken wire, when he heard a woman scream. He turned his head and saw a man in a room abusing a woman, who was screaming at the top of her voice. On the impulse of the moment he threw his pinchers through the window at the brute, who beat a hasty retreat. When he reached the ground the woman was waiting for him. She had called an officer and wanted to have him arrested for assaulting her husband by throwing the pinchers at him. The lineman was obliged to pay for a pane of glass, through which he had thrown the pinchers, notwith-standing be considers his act saved the woman's life. An Expensive Luxury. Queen Victoria has been a monarch fifty years. In that time she has drawn from her subjects in rents, annuities, etc., over $100,000,000. She has had besides pecial provision made by the government for all her family. Just now we are told that a jubilee fund has been proposed for her and that money to the amount of $5,000 per day is coming into that fund. Then, too, she sells butter made from her estates in Devonshire. Under such cirumstances we can all see how generous was the impulse which prompted her to raise the pension of the old, armless and legless soldier to the extent of 3s. 3d. per week Is it strange that England is growing a little tired of this business of oyalty; that on two or three occasions of late the queen has been publicly hisself? The gifts of this world are so distributed that sometimes it looks as though people were rewarded in inverse ratio to the ser-vices they render.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Jewish Pauperism in London According to The London Spectator, there is a great deal of Jewish pauperism in London. Last year, it says, every third Jew received aid from the state. The reason for this state of affairs is that a large number of Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, Sephardino and Mogreb Jews have immigrated to London.—New York TriA BELLE OF LINCOLN'S DAY.

Though That Was Years Ago, Mrs. Kate

Chase Is Still a Beautiful Woman. Mrs. Kate Chase sat in a large easy chair in the cosy parior of a woman genius in this city who was entertaining a few of her friends. She was the gentlest of them all, this woman with so remarkable a past-gentle and still so beautiful. She was dressed in the deepest black of the neatest, most elegant description, from which the warm pink glow of the cheeks and lips, the blonde glints of hair and occasional rays from the shy, sad eyes were the sole relief. She was the typical lady-not the lady of rush and hustle and advancement, of progress, platform or pen-but the lady of the drawing room, the bondoir, the carriage, quiet refinement, repose.

Although queenly in appearance when standing, she looked rather a little woman sitting down. Her form is fine lined, symmetrical, and just plump enough for height. Her head has a dignified but not haughty or aggressive set on a well turned neck, not noticeably long. Her shoulders slope just right, with a faint touch of womanly coquetry in their expression. The lines of bust and waist are simply perfect, her hands and feet noticeably small. Her face is oval in outline, the flesh looks firm, the texture of the skin is smooth and unspoiled by make up. She is a decided blonde of that rare class of blonde coloring which I can only describe as "sunset." Her forehead is rather low and wide, with slender arched brows and much refinement of expression in it.

Her eyes are the most difficult in the world to describe, however, but easy to illustrate. You see but a half dozen pairs like them in a lifetime. They are not large; they have a "hidden" look among the thick dark lashes, and they have always a look as if they had been crying hard-without the redness-the most "fetching" eyes on earth, irresistible in youth, suggestive of first loveyou doubtless can think of a pair among your lady friends. From the cast of her face one would imagine her nose to be a straight Grecian, but it has the slightest little tip upward which does not in any ing dints at the corners. Her hair is massed above her brow in large, loose rings of gold. A few glints of silver shade into the blonde in front of the ears, without attracting observation. Her fine black Henrietta cloth dress was tight fitting and double breasted, with crepe reveres, cuffs, foot band and buttons. Her bonnet was close, small, well set back, with a long crepe veil falling below her waist. A dull black flower pin at her throat was her only ornament. boots, sometimes give way; and then again the wood is often rotten, and one little hands folded in her lap, the varying expression of her face and the lighting and darkening of her wonderful eyes alone accompanying the changing thought. Her voice is musical and full of sentiment.

Her home is in Washington, but she was on here making a visit to her daughter Ethel, who is a member of them while perched on a crossbar of a Richard Mansfield's company. — New pole. One of them in relating his ex-York Cor. Pittsburg Press.

> A Woman's Invention for the Blind. Mile. Mulot, of Angers, has invented a method by which the blind can easily correspond with those who see. The invention is, therefore, a marked improvement on the Braille system of raised letsize of a sheet of note paper. The blind person spreads it out and impresses the letters required on white paper, under which there is a colored pad which gives them a blue appearance, and they are thus not only brought out in relief for are also visible to the eyes of those who see. One of Mile. Mulot's blind pupils has been able, by means of this system, to take part in a competitive examination for the diploma of elementary teacher, and to "distance" some of the candidates who were in possession of their visual faculties.-New York Telegram. A Prophecy Fulfilled. If Carlyle predicted as far back as 1866 the greatness of Bismarck, his wife is to be credited with prophetic instinct in forecasting the baseness and ignominy of Pigott. In her diary, under date of April 27, 1845, occurs this entry: "Young Mr. Pigott will rise to be a Robespierre of some sort. He will cause many heads to be removed from the shoulders they belong to, and will eventually have his own head removed from his own shoulders." As an instance of successful prophecy that passage is certainly remarkable. If Pigott failed to become a Robespierre of any recognized type-for Robespierre can be anything the biographer or historian chooses to make of him-he certainly has cut off more heads than poor, credulous Macdonald's, and

He Was Running the Train. A good story is told about one of the Maine Central engineers, says The Baugor Commercial. GIVING THE LAND A NAME. After a short sojourn in this newly found country, Lief, in company with his followers, returned to Greenland, encouraged his brother Thorwald to embark in the same vessel in 1002 for the recently discovered territory, to which was given the recent of t was given the name of Wineland (Vine-

No evidences of human habitation were visible, nor did he find the lairs of animals. Afterwards sailing eastward they came to a cape upon whose sandy beach they landed. Having crossed this projection, to their surprise they saw three boats made of skins, partially buried in the sand, beneath which nine men lay hidden, eight of whom were caught and killed, one managing to escape. Later visible, nor did he find the lairs of anikilled, one managing to escape. Later these Northmen were attacked by the Esquimaux, to whom the eight so recently killed probably belonged. There wald, fatally wounded in the encounter, was buried on the promontory where he fell. His crew returned to Greenland with a rich cargo of timber.

THE SECOND EXPEDITION.

The sagas make mention of another expedition, undertaken by Thorfin Karlsfue, who enlisted as his associates sixty men and five women. Sailing from Ice-land in a southerly direction, they ar-rived at the place where Lief had built his huts. After landing the cows and a bull to graze, which they had brought with them, Karlsfue ordered his men to fell trees and prepare timber for the ship's cargo; and while thus engaged they saw emerging from the woods many Skraelings. Happening to appear where the bull was feeding, and being rather of a ferocious spirit, he bellowed loudly, and made an attack upon them, which led them immediately to retreat.

After securing re-enforcements they returned, and although they were not able to make themselves understood to the Northmen, by means of signs, however, they were enabled to barter furs for such other commodities as the Northmen were willing to sell. When the natives had withdrawn, Karlsfue caused a strong wooden fence to be placed around his booths, which proved to be a wise precaution, as a short time after-wards the Skraelings returned, when a fierce fight ensued, in which many of the Esquimaux fell. The Northmen soon becoming weary of their abode in so strange a country, and exposed to the frequent attacks of the natives, in the spring returned to Greenland.

THE THEORY OF IRISH COLONISTS. The third expedition was undertaken in 1011 by Freydissa, a daughter of Eric Red, in company with 200 Icelandic traders, but as no further exploration of this country was entered upon no new facts were obtained.

The theory of the population of Amer-ica by Irish colonists has been founded on the mention of a saga writer who observes that Wineland must have been "Flvittramannaland," or the Great Ire-land. It is not improbable that a similarity in the sound of the language of the people caused the name of a smaller body land in the eastern hemisphere to be given to a part of the country by its first discoverers. Be this as it may it is cer-tain that the theory has never been authenticated.

Thus we became acquainted with the Icelandic history of certain portions of the western bemisphere, as given by the sagas of the Icelanders.

The discovery by Christopher Colum-bus of West Indies in 1492 was perhaps the result of a trip made by him to Ice-land in 1477, at which time the discovery of unknown lands to the southwest of Greenland and Iceland was made known to him by the sagas of the people of Iceland.—Gen. C. W. Darling in Home Journal.

Concerning Hydrophobia. Our knowledge concerning the condi-tions under which the poison which creates hydrophobia acts has been somewhat advanced by the recent experiments of M. Galtier, of Paris. According to the experiments the dried virus has its poisonous properties destroyed in from four to six days. On the other hand, earlier experiments of the same savant show that an animal which has died of rables may retain the poison in that part of the brain called the medulla oblonga for six or seven weeks. It is evident that this fact may be of importance in cases where persons have been bitten by animals supposed to be rabid. If the body of the creature has been buried it may be possible to exhume it after many days is to be apprehended. In this way unfounded anxietics may be allayed.—Popular Science News.
