

EUGENE CITY GUARD.

L. L. CAMPBELL, Proprietor.

EUGENE CITY, OREGON.

FOREIGN LANDS.

England Annexes Another Island.

A GERMAN SPY SENTENCED.

The French Senate Accepts July 10 as the Date for the Grain Rate Reduction to Take Effect.

The Costs in the Baccarat Case were $350,000.

It is Proposed to Build an Underground Railway in Paris.

Wales reads the American papers to see what they say about him.

Paris is grumbling about a plague of mosquitoes, due to wet weather.

The harvest in Austria and Hungary will be below those of late years.

An underground railway for Berlin is being discussed by German engineers.

Six-hundred-year-old Switzerland, oldest of Republics, will celebrate this year.

It is said the Princess of Wales has never uttered a word of reproach to his Royal Highness.

The Jewish persecution is extending to all foreigners in Russia, especially to Germans, Poles and Tartars.

According to the last census the population of Hanburg is 622,530, a gain of more than 100,000 since 1885.

The Sultan has prohibited Turkish ladies from wearing French costumes in the streets of Constantinople.

It is stated in Tangier locusts fall in the streets like rain, and the sound of their falling resembles a heavy shower.

Dispatches received at Madrid from Manila say that England has annexed the island of Sibuyan, which is claimed by Spain.

The Marquis of Lorne, who has always been snubbed by the Prince of Wales and has the Queen's ear, sympathizes with Germany.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who is said to be too mean to gamble, laughs at the scrape into which his extravagant brother has got.

A commercial treaty with the United States has been signed at Madrid, Spain. It will be published August 1, and goes into operation September 1.

The Tribunal of the Seine at Paris has sentenced a German named Schneider to five years imprisonment for taking photographs of French fortifications.

Coal in the province of Almeria in Spain is so dear that there is great rejoicing over the discovery of an inferior quality in large vein near Albanez.

The French Senate has accepted the bill of the Chamber of Deputies fixing July 10 as the date upon which the reduction in grain rates will go into effect.

The Hamburg authorities have decided to enlarge the docks at Wandrath Island. The work will cost 20,000,000 marks, but will be of immense value to the port.

De Lesseps is to be prosecuted for pushing his Panama canal scheme, and yet his canal shows by his last report a profit of $7,625,000 on the year's business.

The Germans recently captured by Turkish brigands and released a few days ago have staid at Dresden. Banker Papa has died in consequence of wounds inflicted by the brigands.

The rabbit pest in Australia is supplemented with a visitation of locusts. In a portion of that country the roads and fences are covered to a depth of three or four inches with the insects.

The Holy Synod has issued an order that all members of the Greek Church must attend church on Sunday and polemics are to be detailed near all manufacturing establishments to see that the order is observed.

A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says that the insurgents in Catamarca have overthrown the Provincial government and installed a Provisional government. The fighting was not serious, and the causes of the revolution are local.

The future plans of Mr. and Mrs. Parnell indicate that after a period of seclusion it is their intention to change their social life. Mrs. Parnell talks of leaving Brighton and taking a large house in London. If she wins the probable suit she will be rich and able to entertain.

Belgian railway officials, after three years of investigation, report that under ordinary circumstances the average railway train in passing over one mile of track wears from it two and one-fifth pounds. This natural destruction of track amounts for the whole world to about 1,330,000 pounds daily.

The vigilance committee in London Whitechapel has been reawakened to activity by an undoubted warning in the shape of a letter, in which "Jack the Ripper" announces that he is about to perform another "operation." He adds he has been nearly caught twice, but will never be taken alive.

The importation of opium from Persia into the Transcaucasian districts hitherto has been free. In consequence of this the natives have become opium smokers to a very large extent. A law has been promulgated, therefore, prohibiting the importation of opium in any part of the Transcaucasian region.

An official dispatch from Santiago, Chili, received at London, asserts the revolt makes no progress, and that the government's forces have taken possession of the ports, without opposition, in the provinces occupied by the rebels. The rebel army is asserted to be discontented because of bad food and lack of pay.

Politics have become so quiet in Turkey that the Sultan, following the Mohammedan law, has been enabled to arrange for the ceremony of circumcising his three youngest sons. Five thousand poor children, according to the habit, underwent the operation the same day in different parts of the city. Illuminations, distribution of sweets and festivities attended the event, which, in all, cost $100,000.

According to the late field marshal the year 1802 should see the final solution of the present European situation, and the renewal of the Triple Alliance is likely to provoke the crisis. It is further alleged that Count von Moltke submitted his views to the Emperor on the occasion of the Monarch's visit to Lubek, and that this is the explanation of the pessimist speech made by William II. at that time.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the Canadian Premier, raised to the Peerage.

Henry Irving expects to visit America this summer.

Prof. Lebaron Russell Briggs has assumed the duties of Dean of Harvard College, succeeding Clement I. Smith resigned. Prof. Smith had been Dean since 1882.

The Casowitzs has been a most industrious student, and is now one of the best informed men of his age in Eastern Europe. He is especially well versed in the higher sciences.

F. G. Kelley has resigned from the postmastership of Centerville, Mass., after a service of fifty-two years. The surprising thing is the resignation—not the length of service.

The King of Ashantee is allowed 3,333 wives. Many of them are the daughters of the chiefs of tributary tribes over which the King has jurisdiction, and are sent to him as hostages.

P. T. Barnum left a personal estate which inventories $1,585,590, and 5 per cent. of that sum, less the $1,000 limit, amounts to $4,225,955, which the State will get as its share of the sum total.

Jonathan Trumbull, the famous Revolutionary hero of Connecticut, is now honored with a souvenir spoon bearing his name and statuette of "Brother" Jonathan for his chief decoration.

Pierce N. Welch of New Haven is the donor of the proposed new dormitory at Yale. The building will cost $180,000. Mr. Welch is not a Yale graduate, though interested in the university.

Just now Oliver Wendell Holmes seems to be a favorite topic with the magazines. The current issues of both Harper's and Scribner's contain articles about him and also portraits of him.

Archbishop Tasche, who for two decades has been the head of the Roman Catholic Church in the Canadian Northwest and the foremost Canadian prelate, is lying at the point of death at Winnipeg.

General Butler's "Autobiography and Reminiscences" will be published in French, English and German; but not more than one language will be really needed for the General to make himself understood.

Hon. Stephen Coleridge, son of the English Chief Justice, is an artist of no mean ability, and has a collection of paintings of the Lake country on exhibition at present. Ruskin commented some of his landscapes.

King Milan recently won $25,000 at baccarat at one sitting. He scooped in the Parisian gamblers of the Cercle de la Royale in a kingly manner, and would have had no scruples about clearing out a Traby-Croft company.

As a reward for his services in exploring the Mackenzie and Yukon river districts in the far-away Northwest William Ogilvie of the Dominion survey has been awarded the Marchionni medal by the British Royal Geographical Society.

John Burns, the British Socialist and labor agitator, is a man of wide reading and great cultivation. He was educated at one of the famous English public schools, and was an early and profound student of Ruskin, Carlyle and Adam Smith.

Munkacy's new picture, which he began two months ago in Paris, will represent Christ among his Disciples. It will be exhibited all over Europe and the United States, and will be added eventually to the Berlin national gallery.

The great statue of Pope Leo XIII, which Count Joseph Loubat is to present to the Catholic university at Washington, will be shipped to this country within a few weeks. It is reported to be a fine piece of work, and represents the Pope seated upon his throne and wearing the triple crown.

Sir Prescott Gardner Hewitt, the eminent English surgeon who died recently, had been president of the Royal College of Surgeons for the last fifteen years, and previously occupied the chair of human anatomy and surgery in that school. At the time of his death he was one of the Queen's sergeant-surgeons and surgeon-in-ordinary to the Prince of Wales.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

Lady Macdonald, widow of the late premier of Canada, Sir John Macdonald, has been raised to the peerage as an acknowledgment of her husband's long and distinguished public services. The news that the Queen had conferred the peerage on her was received by Lady Macdonald with great pleasure. It is said she will be called Countess of Erskineville.

Princess Elizabeth of Ratibor defies aristocratic prejudice and confesses her purpose to marry Carl Miller, a forest-guarder. Berlin society is shocked to its foundations, while the father of the darling Princess is compelled to give his consent to his daughter's marriage to her choice. The old Duke of Ratibor is head of the house of Ratibor and Corvy and brother of Prince Hohenzollern, Statthalter of Alsace-Lorraine.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Arab Maxim on Equine Treatment.

HOW TO DRIVE A HORSE.

The Cutting of Green Feed and Giving to the Stock Can Be Done to Advantage in Summer.

The Arab Maxim is, drive a horse with moderation until he has sweated and dried off three times. If the general conditions are right he can then be pushed with safety, provided he is a suitable beast for driving, the object being to make time. What are the conditions?

In large degree these are the mode in which he has been fed prior to making the journey or taking the drive. It is a very bad practice if you have a long or sharp drive to make, to feed freely the day before entering upon it, as not a few very indiscreet men have done. The preparation, to be of service, should be continued for days, or even weeks, that the system may be made staunch by the muscles being nourished for such a period in advance of the effort that the fibers will be firm and enduring under long and continued strain.

Being upon the road for a drive or journey, if the horse shows want of energy, belches wind from the stomach, and later passes it from the bowels, this being accompanied by more or less distension of the abdomen, he will certainly disappoint any reasonable expectations as to performance. If when in good condition he has capacity for getting over the ground and showing power of endurance, he will show neither while in the condition referred to. The brain is dull while indigestion holds sway, whether this be from recent overfeeding or from long continued indigestions as to kinds or amounts of food given.

The horse depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

It is a wise driver who closely observes the condition a horse is in when he starts out for a drive, whether this be a long or a short one. If the horse, usually "up on the bit," ready and willing to "reach out," starts sluggishly and without spirit or bite in his gait, the observing and considerate driver will wait him for awhile, awaiting developments; as the horse, if usually willing to perform, will quicken his pace without any promptings as soon as his brain and muscular system gets the better of the depressing influence that has held him down. When a horse starts lazily, the driver depends upon his brain for energy—so does the man; and indigestion, as every man knows, will lower brain manifestations as it also lowers the bodily powers.

PORTLAND MARKET.

A Resume of the Condition of the Different Departments.

The oppressive weather seems to be beneficial to trade. It makes great demand for fruits and vegetables, and other lines fare well. The fruit dealers have all they can attend to. Cherries, bananas and lemons are plentiful and sold rapidly. Receipts of strawberries are light, but are fully equal to the demand. Oranges are high and scarce. The