Press warm days are tapially developing the codlin moth and other fruit prests. During the past few days, say growers and horticulturists, the codling in the has multiplied on the apple trees, and not a few are found on branches. To save the crop of winter apples those who have experience in the matter urge spraying. They say now is the time to commence it, and they say the pumps should be kept going occasionally until the fruit is nearly ripened. They say this is necessary if we would have any sound winter apples this agason. In some young orchards the green sphis is found to an alarming extent, and in many of the older alarming extent, and in many of the obser-orehards the woody aphis is found. Gener-al Varney was here Thursday in the inter-est of the state board of horiculture and in examining an apple or opard in Silem he distributed by affected with found many of the trees to be affected with a scale which to him is a new one in the a scale which to him is a new one in the family of scales. It is very much like the much dreaded San Jose scale but is of a different shape. It is found on both twig fruit, and it is supposed, from the indications, that it hatches on the twig and afterwards moves on the fruit. Shippers of fruit say that to make fruit growing a the cess in this section, as elsewhere, the or-obardist must go at it in a business like way. He must fight the pests carly and late, and must in every way give the trees the most thorough attention.—Salem States-

Another human curiosity is reported from Montana in the person of a man whose skin comes off every year just like a snake's. He is attacked every year in July by something resembling a severe fever, and in about a week the skin begins to loosen, and in ten days or two weeks it is taken completely off. Several newspapers vouch for doctors who to them wouch for the truth of the yarn, but we decline to ablish a it as an actual fact.
