Freedom

A touching story was told of Tamberlik, the tenor singer. Passing through Madrid one bright spring morning, he visited the bird market and bought every bird in it. He ordered the cages to be carried into the Plaza and opened. The sunny air was filled with a fluttering host, and from hundreds of tiny throats burst songs of delight. Tamberlik looked after them with tears of pleasure in his eyes, crying, "Go, and be free, my brothers!"

A similar story is told of a kindly old Virginian, who used to celebrate the Fourth of July by buying up all the caged squirrels, rabbits and birds in the neighborhood, and then setting them free, that they, too, might rejoice in the day of independence. The creatures to whom he gave happiness are long since dead, but the children who saw his kindly act have carried its influence through their lives .- Youth's Companion.

The Evil Eye.

The Corsicans are not the only people in the world who believe in the evil eye, for the Turk is so affected by it that he thinks it extends its influences to whatever animals belong to him. Strings of coral are sold on the streets and said to be a preventive against the evil. It is very curious to see the donkeys, crowds of which are found in the streets, with strings of coral twisted in their tails.

DIRT can resist

When he gets in a violent rage the very worst thing that a Turkish gentleman can threaten his donkey with is the taking away of the jewels which protect him from the evil eye, for in this way he will give him over to all kinds of cruelty and the possession of the demon. In the markets bits of coral are laid among the purple grapes or green vegetables with the hope that good luck will come to them and they will bring a higher price .- New York Sun.
