THE CRY OF MILLIONS!

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW!

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was unable to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Chamberlain's Kidney & Bladder Remedy, with the ORGON KIDNEY & BLADDER REMEDY, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

State University.

Monday's Daily.

Everything at the University looks bright for the most prosperous year in its history. Today the attendance is nearly one-third larger than the first day of any previous year. It is impossible to give figures as many students at the time of going to press have not been enrolled. Regular recitations will begin tomorrow.

On this afternoon's train a large number of students arrived to still further augment the number that presented themselves this morning at the University.

MARRIED.—At the Baker Hotel, Eugene, Oregon, Sunday, Sept. 13, 1903, by Justice Kinsey, Mr. P. P. Pitzer and Miss Edith J. Guiley, all of Lane County, Oregon.

Crushed by a Truck.

PORTLAND, Sept. 21.—A fatal accident occurred this morning at Eighth and F streets, by which a young 8-year-old boy lost his life, apparently by his own carelessness. Brandon is the name of the deceased boy. He with other boys climbed on an Oregon Transfer Company's truck. The driver drove them off several times but they persisted in climbing on again. Finally young Brandon slipped and fell under the ponderous wheels. Before the truck could be stopped a wheel had passed over his body and with a yell of agony he fainted. He was at once taken to his home where everything possible was done for him, but to no purpose, as he died very shortly afterwards.

The Southern Pacific in Oregon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—The president, C. P. Crocker, of the Southern Pacific, said today that it was the purpose of his corporation to build 150 miles of feeding and general lines in the Willamette valley in Oregon.

Suit Against the Oregon Pacific.

SALT, Or., Sept. 21.—Action has been brought in the circuit court for Linn county in the October term which will probably soon bring the Oregon Pacific Railroad Company to time in the matter of the payment of its employees wages due for six months or more past. Papers were prepared and filed by District Attorney Bingham, and service has been had on the officials of the company. The action seeks to have the charter of the Oregon Pacific nullified, as it is claimed that the company has violated almost its every provision. It is thought this suit now instituted will spur the company to some definite action that shall be satisfactory to the employees.

Burtenshaw Indicted.

ASHLAND Tidings: The grand jury last week brought in a bill of indictment against "John Doe" (Burtenshaw), the scheming young lawyer who ensnared Mrs. Moore, a widow lady, out of $200 a few months ago in Ashland, "charging" her that against her collecting $1200. The indictment charges him with the crime of embezzlement and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. Burtenshaw has been down in the county since, it is understood, ever since the affair was aired in the justice court in Ashland and Burtenshaw's lawyer seeks a deputy sheriff was sent down to Myrtle Point after Burtenshaw but the Tidings has not learned whether he has yet succeeded in "making the return" of the prisoner. Anyway his trial can probably not come off until another term of court.

W. P. Shelley and family have removed from Elms, Wash. to Kirby in Josephine county.

The attendance at the public schools is increasing daily. Prof. Reid is getting the schools thoroughly organized. M. Wilkins has returned home from Chicago. He reports that great preparations are already being made for the World's Fair.

Recorder Dorris started to the Blue river mines Monday morning and will remain about a week. During his absence Geo. A. Dorris will act as recorder.

J. P. Schooling, of Harrisburg, was in town Monday. He reports that the stock for the water ditch which will furnish milling power at that place is about all taken.

The Eugene Canning and Packing Co. has an evaporator that does business on a wholesale scale. 35,000 pounds of green fruit were dried Sunday at one drying in 15 hours.

That Eugene is a church-going town is apparent to anyone who observes the crowds of worshippers that emerge from church buildings Sunday mornings and evenings.

James Warnick, who was injured by a fall from George Fisher's barn six weeks ago, made his first appearance on our business streets, with the aid of crutches Monday.

A. B. Mager found a couple of bee trees on the farm of Mr. Zumwalt, near Perrydale, and last Friday in company with Messrs. J. D. Belt and W. B. Davis he proceeded to gather in the fruits of the bees. They cut the trees down and captured over 200 pounds of fine honey for their reward.

Those little pocket banks which open when they are filled with just $5 in ten cent pieces, are great contrivances. Not far from Eugene a cute young man was owing a merchant a dollar. "I've got $4 in bank," gave me $1 more in ten cent pieces and I'll open it and pay up," he remarked. The merchant did so, the young man opened the bank, gave him $1, and left. Now the creditor is trying to figure out what he made by the transaction.

A 5-year-old son of Rev. Shangle, who lives sixteen miles north of Oakland, was probably fatally injured last Thursday. He was felling a large fir tree, and his two little boys were standing at an apparently safe distance watching him. The tree in falling struck a tall dead tree growing between the top of it and hurling it with great violence to the spot where the children were standing. Both were struck, but the youngest was not seriously hurt. The eldest boy, however, was struck squarely on the head and is hardly expected to recover.

Heeta Head Lighthouse.

The West, Sept. 18.

Mr. A. J. Brownlie, a gentleman connected with the government work of constructing light-houses on the coast, is in Florence. Yesterday he visited the proposed site of the Heeta light-house and returned last evening overwhelmed in an ecstasy of delight over the location of the site and the future possibilities of the project. The tower will be one hundred and sixty feet above sea level and the tower will be fifty feet high making a total distance to the light proper from sea level of two hundred and ten feet. The lenses to be used will cost $13,000, will be a flash light and will be shipped direct from London, England. The light will be visible at sea a distance of thirty-six miles.

Oregon vs. California.

Salem Journal.

The fruit display at the State Fair was sufficiently large, fine and various to raise the question in the minds of many whether Oregon would not become a competitor of California as the champion fruit state of the Union. This question once raised will not easily be put down. It is doubtful if old Oregonians will live to realize it, but younger generations of Oregon will witness their state dangerously rivaling the fame and reputation of the region to the south. It will not be in the production of citrus or tropical fruits, but in the volume, variety and quality of fruits most consumed by the great masses of American people. There will be little room left for doubt in a few years that portions of Oregon can turn off year after year a larger product in market value of marketable fruits than any section of California or any other state in the Union. There are records today of this season's crop of peaches in the Willamette valley of $750 to $1000 from one-fourth of an acre, and systematic culture of the peach is only in its beginning. Not one hundredth part of the natural peach lands of this valley are in that kind of fruit. The capability in point of yield of the prune, the pear, the nectarine, is yet in the unknown stage. A region that grows Bartlett pears as easily as Illinois does corn has a fruit future.

Eastern fruit dealers all agree that the Bartlett pear of this valley, as produced with ordinary culture, without irrigation, is superior in flavor, just as fine in flesh, and has better keeping quality than the irrigated products of California of the same fruit. It is better to eat, it is better fresh or canned, it is a better seller on the fruit stand. This is not an experiment. This has been tested for several years wherever carloads of Western Oregon pears have been sent to Eastern markets to be sold alongside of California pears. The same is true of plums, cherries, prunes and apples, and no good authority can deny it. And this is all to be said of a region that has yet to send its first fruit to Eastern markets. This is to be said of a region that has only sent a few cars annually, and many of those have been marketed through California brands. Well may California tremble, once Oregon gets off her swaddling clothes and fairly plants her feet in the fruit markets of the world.

The route of the Southern Pacific railroad through southern Oregon and northern California is a poor one for winter operation and for freight carriage at all times. Eventually a road will branch off at the head of the Sacramento valley and across the mountains to the east, then build north and enter the Willamette valley through the Middle Fork pass. The grades would be easy and an immense saving in operating expenses would be realized. A Modoc county, California, paper says of this route:

It is no longer a secret that the Shasta Lumber Company is making preparations to continue their road on into their timber belt and across the range into the valleys beyond and where terminate it is not now safe to predict. All of last week representatives of the company were securing rights-of-way from owners of land in the Cow creek valley between the dump and the undesirable government land, which offers no barrier to the right of the company to build over, and from what we can learn success attended the undertaking. This is for the continuation of the road now under construction from Anderson, and which must eventually be a Southern Pacific connection with an eastern trunk line, as well as a winter route to Portland, connecting with the O. & C. at a point in the Willamette valley.

Should be Prosecuted.

Mr. J. J. Dubrille, who has returned from a month's stay at Upper Soda brings some additional particulars of the wanton slaughter of deer by Indians in that locality. He says that about 100 Indian bucks, who came across from the Warm Springs, are hunting while their squaws earn a few dollars picking hops in the valley. The Indians claim that the sheep men have turned their flocks to graze upon the mountains, destroying their blackberry patches, and they have vowed to seek revenge by killing off the deer.

These Indians station themselves along the trails where the deer come down and slaughter them. Mr. Dubrille saw five Indians with five skins, many of them being fawns. They leave the carcasses of many fine fat deer, taking nothing but the hides. It is believed at Upper Soda that these Indians have killed this fall not less than 1000 deer in this wanton manner. They certainly ought to be prosecuted. Many of them are still hunting in that vicinity.

Jacksonville Times: Three prospectors, named Moore, Green and Sager, about a month since left their wagon and outfit at Chas. Leno's ranch at the head of the Klamath marshes, while they ostensibly went out towards Diamond lake on a prospecting tour. A few days since Moore and Sager returned to Leno's after the wagon, stating that their partner had become lost in the mountains and had probably perished. As the missing man was known to have considerable money on his person at the time he left for the lake, foul play is more than hinted at. The lonely mountains about the mysterious lake have witnessed many a sad tragedy which will never be recounted by man.

R. M. Day went to Portland Monday morning to attend the annual convention of undertakers.

David B. Hill has been misrepresented and maligned more than any other prominent politician in the United States. It is needless to state that the abuse comes from the men who most fear him. The Empire state has never failed to indorse him by vote and resolution. At the State convention held at Saratoga Wednesday the delegates interviewed expressed their choice for presidential candidates:

For David B. Hill.....246
Grover Cleveland.....86
James E. Campbell.....3
William C. Whitney.....3
Arthur P. Gorman.....3
Alfred C. Chapin.....1
Non-committal.....143

The King's county delegates were solid for Hill until they found that their man could not be nominated. Then they cast their votes for Cleveland. The irony of fate. In 1888 Brooklyn and King county ruthlessly slaughtered Cleveland.

The state of New York, an empire in itself, whose laws are adapted and used by every state in the union, has never been better governed than during the period Hill has filled the gubernatorial chair. A number of radical changes now admitted to be for the best, have been made on his recommendation. The taxes of the state are the lowest for a quarter of a century. The state convention did well in endorsing the man that never failed of endorsement at the polls.

The authorities of the town of South Bend, Wash., recently fined a book peddler $20 for soliciting subscriptions without a license contrary to town ordinance. The action having been severely criticised by another paper, the South Bend Herald justifies it on the ground that they "have business houses here where all these things can be secured without the aid of traveling agents who pay no part of the expenses of government, and who can neither be depended upon for the fulfillment of promises or payment of board."

Helen Williams has established a miracle factory at Douglasville, Ga. She offers to initiate a class in all the mysteries of "mental science" in from four to six weeks; perhaps a little longer as quoting the language of her circular, "I cannot consent for a single student to go away until I have brought him or her to the full power and privilege of mighty and saving truth."

In Europe a man studies from four to six years to acquire a knowledge of the science of medicine. Helen's short cut to reach the same goal is only a few weeks.

Inquiries are frequently made as to how the parties stand in congress. The Fifty-first congress had 177 republican members, of the house, 154 democrats and 1 independent republican. In the Fifty-second the house will stand, according to the result of last November's election: Democrats, 236; republicans, 87; alliance, 8.

Telegram: Some bloodthirsty papers are objecting because it was possibly a United States vessel that afforded Balmaceda an escape from "justice" as they call it. If Balmaceda had been successful, it would have been some of the other fellows who would have been fugitives from "justice" from his standpoint.

The fate of Balmaceda is a sorrowful one and illustrates the uncertainty of those who depend on public favor for honor and position. A few short weeks ago he was in supreme power. Now he is in a suicide's grave with a howling mob execrating his memory.

Criminals have a hard time to escape from the Pacific slope. Hemmed in by the mountains and ocean they have small chance to get away. The Tacoma bank robbers now realize that the way of the transgressor is hard.

The present rain will be of great benefit to this section. The grass will be restored and given a start and the ground made ready for the plow. Webfoot seldom fails when showers are needed to revivify the products of earth.

The University of Oregon commenced work today for the school year of '91-'92. The attendance is good and a prosperous year is indicated.

Tacoma ladies, one hundred in number, have organized a Rainy Day Club. Their frocks are to be shortened to the shoe-tops.

The Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, who has been progressing favorably, has had a relapse, and is again in a precarious condition.

Jupiter Pluvius is unfriendly to the annual Oregon horse race that is paid for out of the state funds.

Grain and Grasses.

The Salem Journal says that Lane county's exhibit at the State fair comprised 800 to 900 specimens of grasses and 420 of grains. There were about fifty varieties of wheat alone, showing heads nowhere else produced in the world. The grains were all of this year's product. Sixteen kinds of clover from one to eight feet high, half of them native. It was a very creditable exhibit and was the work of the men who raised the articles there, by Messrs. Wilkins & Sons.
