Knocked Out.

Salem Journal: Judge Boise decides that the railroad companies cannot remove their cases to Judge Deady's court.

The points relied on by District Attorney Bingham, Attorney General Chamberlain and Commissioner Colvig in their arguments in opposing removal of the cases to the federal courts were briefly as follows: That there was no diversity of citizenship, that no federal question, or question involving a law of Congress or the constitution of the United States was necessary to a decision of the cases. In case of the S. P. Co. it was argued that it was a domestic corporation. The fact that the U. P. Co. was

They offer to furnish a fine life size picture for one dollar which amount they collect in advance. All patrons are required to sign a contract which provides that they also agree to purchase a frame for the proposed picture, and here it is the swindle comes in. In due course of time the enlarged picture and original photograph comes back to the of time the enlarged picture and original photograph comes back to the owner by express with an expense bill varying from ten to twenty dollars, for a cheap, gaudy frame and this has to be paid before the picture is delivered. The contract previously signed protects the swindlers from arrest and the agents are reaping a good harvest from the thoughtless persons who are induced to order an enlarged picture at so cheap a price. Chief of Police Young, of Salt Lake City, receives many complaints but is powerless to prevent the fraud and advises people to be very careful how they give up valuable pictures and money with no assurance that the contract will be filled in any particular. One of these swindlers passed through this city recently and will probably try to work the country. Anyone patronizing him will surely be swindled.—Wasco Sun.
