James E. Campbell.

A more gallant fight was never made by a political leader than that made by Governor Campbell in Ohio. Although defeated he is crowned with glory. Governor Campbell extorted the admiration even of his political foes. He entered the canvass under most discouraging conditions. He was confronted by the ablest leader of the opposition, who had the power of monopoly to back him and the wealth of the protected industries at his command. It was also Governor Campbell's misfortune to be antagonized by a revengeful faction of spoilsmen in his own party, who preferred a sacrifice the cause of democracy rather than to have a governor whom they could not control. And all this, too, in a state with a normal republican majority. A man with less nerve than James E. Campbell would have hesitated to accept leadership in the face of such discouragements. But he never flinched.

Governor Campbell fought the battle single-handed. McKinley had Sherman, Foster, Foraker, Reed and all the great republican lights to aid him. Every Federal office-holder was a campaign work-er for McKinley. All the protected industries contributed to the republican campaign fund. Yet Campbell kept his flag flying. He conducted his campaign with an energy and ability seldom equaled and never surpassed. He traveled all over the great state of Ohio, speaking in every county, and sometimes making as many as five speeches a day. And they were-model speeches. His joint debate with McKinley is memorable. After that Reed and Sherman, and oven the lead mention even the loud-mouthed Foraker,

Mr. John Hall, a fruit buyer of Myrtle Creek, in an interview with the Roseburg Plaindealer said: I havn't made any special effort yet, to push peach growing, though I am satisfied there is a great deal of money in it. In this country Mr. John Hall, a fruit buyer of am satisfied there is a great deal of money in it. In this county we can raise extra fine, large, luscious peaches, which find a ready market either as green fruit or dried. Of the latter I have cured and sold about half a ton this year and made a very fair profit. Prunes are, however, much more profitable, as the bearing trees are much more prolific, the yield is surer, and the trees and fruit require less care. I pay a cent a pound for prunes on the tree and you can judge of the returns by one incident of pur-chase. I bought one man's crop this fall and paid him an average of returns by one incident of pur-chase. I bought one man's crop this fall and paid him an average of $260 an acre; he had 108 five-year-old bearing trees to the acre, which run four bushels of sixty pounds each to the tree. The shrinkage of fruit in the dryer is about 66²/₃ per cent; or in other words it takes three bushels of the green prunes to make one bushel of dried, which finds ready sale at six to eight cents a pound. When the interest, money invested, natur-al risks of business, transportation, wages and all that sort of thing are taken into account, the handler has a good deal of expense on his hands, but with all there is a very fair margin of profit left. We are just now making arrangements that will be still more advantageous to the orchardist and the dryer. It has been ascertained that dried prunes bought by Portland whole has been ascertained that dried In the second prunes bought by Portland wholeof the legislature skip out to avoid appearing before the grand jury. State Senator Williams refuses to testify because he might criminate himself. The code of California however provides that a bribe taker must testify and his testimony may not be used against him.

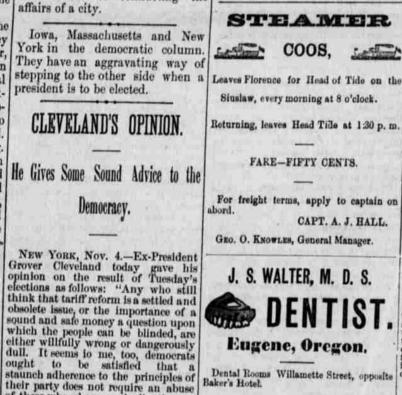

The Benton Leader says: Among the other able men who are men-tioned as possible candidates for congress in the first district, on the democratic ticket, is Robt. Veatch, of Lane county. Mr. Veatch is a

Veatch is not to be the candidate, let it be some other man with strength, and not one who goes begging for the nomination and then drags the party down to defeat. We feel safer after learning from the Salem Statesman: "There is no intelligent foreigner anywhere Butter and Eggs, Veal Calves, but looks with more respect upon the American flag now that James G. Blaine is on duty at Washington."

It is hard to understand how the nation survived while Mr. Blaine took recreation at Bar Harbor. Perhaps the Statesman can explain.

The Albany Herald says there is some talk of a citizens ticket being nominated in that growing city. It is right. There is no politics in the matter of conducting the even the loud-mouthed Foraker, were anxious to keep out of Camp-bell's way. They were afraid to meet him in debate. It is no fault of Campbell's that the democratic banner does not wave in victory over Ohio today. He performed all that one man can do, and his party is proud of him. His defeat rules him out of the race for presidential honors, yet the democracy of the nation will not be unmindful of the valiant services James E. Campbell rendered to the cause in his late canvass in Ohio.– Portland Telegram. Profit in Fruit.
