OH, MY BACK! STOP IT NOW. SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was afflicted with a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was left unable to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence met Dr. Hensley, with the DRUGGON KIDNEY PILLS, for my relief. I immediately commenced using the pills. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, as a few days I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the pills to all afflicted as I have been.

FRIDAY, FEB. 5.

Saint Valentine's day approacheth. Drummers a plentiful article these days. The Friendly saw mill at Corvallis started yesterday. Mr. Friendly used the celebrated McKenzie river timber.

M. S. Wallis, clerk of the State Board of Equalization, returned home last evening from Salem, the work having been completed.

Norris Brown, of Salem, well known in Eugene has accepted the position in that city as manager for the branch house of Knapp, Borrell & Co.

J. M. Owen and family, late of California, have moved here, occupying the residence on the west side of W. Blainette street, owned by Geo. B. Dorris.

Joseph Goldstone and brother will open a store in Southern Oregon in the near future. They are excellent business men and will make a success of their venture.

G. M. Winter's lease on the butcher shop between 6th and 7th streets on Willamette has expired, and a couple of gentlemen from Seattle are now conducting the same.

Joe Koch has remembered this office with a map of Eugene and Springfield and suburbs. Mr. Koch is a draughtsman and his work is his best recommendation.

E. J. Fraiser writes from Monterey, Cal., under date of the 22d, that he intended leaving for home Thursday last, and will arrive here on the 10th. His health has greatly improved.

Quite a number of farmers were in town today for the purpose of bidding on the railroad lands that were to have been sold for taxes by the sheriff and were disappointed when they heard of the postponement.

By some unaccountable process of typesetting and proof reading we were made to say in last week's GRAID that the marriage of Fletcher Lann and Miss Sawyer took place February 10, when it should have been February 20.

S. D. Fulton, of Polk county, is very enthusiastic over prune culture in the Willamette valley. He goes so far as to say that Italian prunes grown in the valley are superior to those grown in Italy. The climate is compared to that of Asta Minor, where prunes, olives and similar fruit can be found.

Corvallis Times: "Eugene is in darkness. The electric light works caught fire last Friday night, and before the flames could be extinguished both dynamos were destroyed. They will have to send East for new ones, and it will take several weeks to get the gins glimmering again."

The street lights in darkness, but our business houses are still using the electric light, one of the large dynamos not burning.

Coos Bay News: L. C. Garrigus has written our representatives at Washington to induce them to procure an order from the land department authorizing proof of timber claims to be made before the officers in the county where claims are located. There is no law compelling such proofs to be made at the land office; the requirement being merely an order from the officers of the land department. It would be a great convenience, as well as a great saving of expense to claimants, if proofs could be made here and the necessity of taking witnesses to Koseburg obviated.

Fairmount Notes.

February 4, 1892.

H. C. Hunter has finished a barn for J. P. Ramsey the past week.

R. C. Martin, from Creswell, visited friends here last Saturday.

Mr. Joseph Weeks left for the logging camp with A. J. Nickel last Sunday.

Born, Wednesday, Jan. 27th, to the wife of A. F. Lamb, a son, weight 9 pounds.

P. W. Davis entertained A. H. Dillard and L. G. Hallis, of Eugene, at his home yesterday.

C. P. Houston, formerly agent of the S. P. R. R., at Junction, was visiting at the residence of his uncle, C. A. Woolley, this week.

Mr. O. Green has moved into C. B. Davis' house from the place belonging to J. H. McClung, where they have lived for the past ten or twelve years.

A case of scarlet fever is reported at R. Lewis' house. It is not known yet whether it is the genuine or merely a case of scarletina.

The number of Sunday promenaders on the railroad track through here is on the increase; among them are noticed some of Eugene's best known people. Just wait till we get the sidewalk down 13th street, then we expect to have about 200 people out here from Eugene every Sunday, enjoying the bracing air and the fine view. Boss.

As Usual.

A few months ago Luther Benson lectured in Eugene on temperance. He was a magnetic, eloquent speaker, and here told us he had been unable to resist the drink habit, once a year falling before it. He returned East to his home in Indianapolis, and in a dispatch of Jan. 25, the result is told as follows: Luther Benson, having just returned from a temperance tour in Washington, Oregon and California, wound up in a terrible drunken spree tonight, and was taken to the Springs Hotel, where he is being treated. "When the tiger comes," says he, "I can no more resist the temptation than I can fly, and it comes once a year. I see a real tiger, a tiger as natural as life. It appears before me. When I first see it it is asleep, as peaceful as a lamb. In a little while it opens its eyes and looks about in a dreamy way. Then it begins to move and its eyes begin to glare at me. Pretty soon it begins to move its jaws and show its teeth. Then it springs at me and with those great jaws around my neck, completely overpowers me. No one but me can resist it. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Secretary James G. Blaine has finally spoken. Under date of yesterday he has written Chairman Clarkson of the republican national committee, formally announcing he is a candidate for the republican presidential nomination. The full text of his letter is: "I am not a candidate for the presidency, and my name will not go before the republican national convention for nomination. No one but me can resist it. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed. I have tried to resist it, but I have failed."

ALBANY, Or., Feb. 6.—James Wallis, a farmer living near Albany, has disappeared. It is supposed he has gone to California. He sold his wheat Wednesday and received $1350, and started away on the south bound Oregon land train. His family thinks he left in company with a young widow named Mrs. Veach, the daughter of W. W. McCou. He has a wife and four children and was a well-to-do farmer. He had recently been paying undue attention to Mrs. Veach, and his wife was so much in her company that she was upbraided him for his conduct. He leaves an indebtedness of $1000 or more. All his property has been attached, which will leave his wife without means. She is prostrated over the affair.

ASTORIA correspondence: "This judicial district is likely to have a new judge after the next election. The judge is 'tired,' and don't want to be elected again. People will talk and the papers say queer things about that Mr. Olds' trial and sentence. If that fool fisherman had stolen a two ton safe full of silver dollars, instead of a paltry fish he couldn't have fared much worse than he did. Some people are born great, whilst others have greatness thrust upon them. That's what's the matter with yours truly."

John Wannaker, our postmaster general, has decided that love letters and poems of passion shall be excluded from the mails as all such stuff leads to marriage and marriage is a lottery, and any such consummation shall be treated the same as the Louisiana business.

The failure of the Cannery Company is to be deplored. The most enterprising citizens of the town took stock, and this failure will operate to discourage them from making investments in the future to build up the town.

Lex Talionis.

In an article on retaliation the Portland World illustrates the possibility of it as follows: "Not many years ago the Hon. Joseph Simon and the Hon. D. P. Thompson were arrayed against each other as rival candidates for the office of mayor of the city of Portland. Both gentlemen were striving for the many-sided supremacy to which the mayorality is a massive stepping stone, and the contest was memorable for its keen alignment of forces and vigor of prosecution. The unconsolidated Portland of that day was shaken to its center by the agony of the fight. When the smoke was cleared away it was found that Mr. Thompson had won by the slender and tremulous majority of one vote. Mr. Simon appealed to the courts, and in the court of the last resort, John P. Waldo presiding, the case went against him, and David reigned in peace. The iron was rusting Simon's soul, meanwhile. Another election came on—a state election this time, in which the election of a state supreme judge was involved—John B. Waldo and R. S. Strahan being the rival candidates. The hour of Simon's revenge had struck. He caused a large number of republican tickets to be printed whereon the name of Strahan appeared instead of Waldo. It was enough, the judicial ermine dropped from Waldo's shoulders like an avalanche from an Alpine rock. The whirligig of time went on—"bringing in its revenges." The battle flags of another election were unfurled, with Hon. D. P. Thompson as the republican nominee for governor. The rusty iron in Simon's soul now fairly smoked with swift corrosion, for the hour of opportunity had again struck. The result was a sickening slaughter of the stately banker—a slaughter nearly as red as that of the Alamo, which had no messenger of defeat—and "personal politics" will long have a bitter taste in the mouth of the victim. The whirligig of time still went round and round. A seat on the bench of the circuit court of the United States became vacant. Here was a prize for—a prize-dazzling to the eyes of even the most successful lawyer. The audacious hand of Hon. Joseph Simon was reached forth to grasp it. A stately and somewhat saturnine banker suddenly appeared on the scene and plucking the iron from his soul, the iron that was rusting there—struck down the audacious hand, and so far as Mr. Simon is concerned, the winter winds are wailing "Lochaber No More."

A recent number of the Princiville News contains a scurrilous article, evidently prompted by petty spite and to gain personal revenge, in which the Jewish citizens are maligned and misrepresented. The prejudice against the Jews is a survival of the dark ages, when they were denied all civil and religious rights and subjected to persecution on every hand. With the advent of a higher civilization the conditions changed. The rights which had been withheld were granted him by civilized nations, and his genius has been sensibly exerted on literature, art, politics and the financial transactions of the world. He is not a wanderer as the article referred to intimates, except it be where a despot, like the czar of Russia has done, turns millions of the suffering people from the homes occupied by them and their ancestors for centuries. The Jews do not settle in a place temporarily. They secure property as soon as possible, become members of the body politic, and perform all the duties of citizenship. In matters of public improvement and enterprise they are abreast of the times. It is seldom that a Jew is heard to oppose any proposition that will add to the material prosperity of a community. It is the glory of this North American republic that men are not ostracized on account of name race or religion, but are held in estimation according to their intelligence. In this enlightened age no people can be subjected to unjust persecution. The spirit of the News editorial is manifestly unfair and will have an effect opposite to that intended.

Another tax dodger has been waked. This time it is the Oregon & California Land Co. which owns the railroad land grant along the line of the Southern Pacific in Oregon. For years the officers of the corporation have been returning to the assessor of Lane county whatever number of acres of land they pleased. While owning or entitled to 260,000 acres of land they were content to pay taxes on only about 50,000 acres and that at a very low rate until the present year when the valuation was raised.

Corporations are popularly supposed to have no souls. This one does not lack check. After misleading the assessor and securing an assessment on only a portion of the lands owned by the corporation on its own statement, it seeks to bar the county from recovering just taxes on the land subsequently discovered as not having been returned by the assessor, and which were assessed by the sheriff according to the law which defines his duty where he finds land which through mistake or otherwise failed to be assessed.

The corporation avers that $2 per acre is an excessive assessment. When it is considered the lands in question are held at prices ranging from $2.50 to $15 per acre the assessment will appear reasonable. The lands of the poorest settlers in the mountains are not assessed at less than $2 per acre, and this corporation owning thousands of acres of the finest timber lands in the state should not escape, as heretofore, paying their just proportion of the public taxes. The tax dodgers will come to a just accounting in the end.

While horses are smashing records and lowering the records for speed in all classes, breeders and feeders of cattle are not asleep. The recent heavy weights exhibited at the fat stock shows in this country and in Europe seem to point to the time when beef steers to dress from 1000 pounds up will be the rule rather than the exception.

East Oregonian: David Hill declines to receive his salary as United States senator—some $4000—for the period preceding his formal taking the oath of office. His point is that he was not really a senator until he was sworn in. David is right, and we congratulate him upon his equity and good sense. It is a good example for a "rising man" to set. He adds another jewel to his dividend.

Blaine's letter of withdrawal from the presidential race was probably the result of his delicate health. He did not feel equal to the herculean task that would have been imposed on him during the campaign and the task of reconciling warring factions of the party if elected. The dream and ambition of his early and mature manhood have vanished. His name will not be recorded among the presidents.

Blaine is the strongest man, politically, within the ranks of the republican party. His name would have aroused some of the old time enthusiasm, and secured a victory if possible at all. His hold on the Irish vote would have been extremely dangerous to democratic prospects. This withdrawal leaves the field practically clear for Harrison's renomination.

The experiment of calling the Oregon state legislature in special session would be a dangerous one. Besides costing the state a large amount of money what assurance is there that anything for the benefit of the country would be accomplished? No condition exists now that did not exist when the legislature met in January 1890. It was then in session forty days. A special session, or the pay at least, is limited to twenty days. Is it probable that this body in a short session would pass appropriations that were refused when it had ample time for consideration? For all practical purposes, except a special session, the terms of most of the members of the present legislature have expired. The members would not feel that sense of responsibility which rested upon them when they first took their seats in the legislative halls. A new legislature will have felt the popular pulse and coming fresh from the people where questions have been discussed will more nearly fulfill the public will.

The Dr. Keeley bi-chloride of gold cure for dipsomania, or in plain terms, drunkenness, the tobacco and opium habits, is held a secret, and will doubtless run its course of popularity as other fads have done. It is asserted that the treatment has the effect of destroying men's ambition and energy while the vicious habits are liable to gain supremacy at any time. Pecuniary gain may induce adventurers to flood the market with nostrums recommended to cure the liquor and tobacco habits, but the experience of the past, which is likely to be that of the future, is that for those who have formed the habits there is but one way of safety and retreat, and that is total abstinence. All other remedies but play on the credulity of mankind, and though they may be occasionally successful, most probably attain success by destroying the natural vigor, leaving the victim with little ambition for stimulants, narcotics or anything else.
