The Platform.

The following is a resume of the democratic state platform adopted in Portland:

The indorsement of the democratic platform of the national conventions of 1884 and 1888; condemnation of the McKinley bill; indorsement of the democratic position in regard to tariff for revenue only, and condemning the system of a protective tariff; "that we believe in the free coinage of silver, making it of an equal monetary value as gold," and that paper currency be redeemed in gold or silver at the option of the holder; condemnation of the extravagant expenditure of money for unworthy pensions, as demonstrated by the republican policy of equal reward to the veteran of the field and the campfollower of the war; that United States senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people; favoring of legislation preventing use of money for corrupt political usages; approval of legislation making eight hour's a day's labor on public buildings; legislation for equitable and just system of taxation; demanding survey of the public domain in this state and forfeiture by railroads of unearned lands; recommend the passage of laws continuing the work of government improvement of the Columbia and Willamette rivers and condemning republican filibustering scheme of crippling the Inland Empire by a temporary portage railway at The Dalles; and that proper legislation be taken to prevent the Chinese emigration to this country, indorsing the Geary bill and condemning the proposed amended bill of Senator Dolph's.

Wilson, member of congress from Washington, has a style of advertising himself entirely different from the commonplace and prosy way adopted by Hermann. He takes two witnesses, presumably newspaper reporters, and gets into a row, real or sham, with a watchman and two of his assistants, one of whom he knocks down "in true Western style." Then he goes and lays his ear to the ground and listens to hear the murmurs of approbation that shall come from Washington state to Washington City.—Ex.

The democrats have nominated men for county judge and clerk who may be relied upon for clean, economical administrations, who will not make the offices a burden to the taxpayers. They could not have procured in Lane county men more entitled to the hearty support of the people. They are men of strictly temperate habits, and being economical in their own affairs can be relied upon to be the same with the affairs of the people. That is the kind of men the people want in those offices, and we predict they will show their appreciation of such men by their vote on June 6.

It is hoped that the projectors of the Siuslaw railroad will furnish the bonds required at once, thereby showing their reliability. If they do, our people will raise the $100,000 subsidy in less than one week's time.

George Nolan, of Astoria, a Lane county boy, has been nominated by the democrats for presidential elector. He is a graduate of the state university and a man of ability.

One thing is quite certain about the coming political battle. The prosecuting attorney, and member of the state board of equalization, will hail from Eugene.

Veitch, Bilyeu, G. A. Dorris, Lane county was highly honored.

Sylvester Penoyer has the courage of his convictions. He was not selected for the parade, but when actual service shall be required his name and merits will place him in the front.

Robert M. Veatch.

Portland Daily Dispatch: The nomination of Hon. R. M. Veatch, of Lane county, for congress, is a strong and excellent selection, and one which will meet the special endorsement of the farmers and producers of his district. Mr. Veatch has represented his county in the lower house of the Oregon legislature several times, and is now serving his second term as senator. He is an honest man. He has a reputation of being an objector, rather than otherwise, as his objections are made in the interest of the people and economy of administration. He is always on the side of the people, and has never been found in questionable practices when in the discharge of a public trust. Mr. Veatch is very popular in his own county and among the people generally of his district, and while some think Mr. Hermann has a sure thing, we predict that Robert M. Veatch will be his successor in the next congress. The people want more farmers and fewer lawyers in congress, and Oregon will add one farmer to the list.

The state convention has presented a strong ticket. It should be elected. The farmers will be busy for a week or two finishing the work of putting in spring crops. The presidential prospects in the Chicago national convention appear very favorable for Cleveland.

Salem Journal, Rep.: There are some good things in the republican platform but there is so much rubbish it is hard to find them. The United States supreme court has decided that state legislatures have power to fix the rate per mile that railroads may carry passengers.

Robert M. Veatch should receive the vote of every farmer in the district for congress. He is in sympathy with the producing element of our country. Portland Daily Dispatch: Hon. M. L. Pipes' nomination for judge of the second judicial district will meet with a hearty support from the people. He is an able lawyer, has proven himself competent and is very popular among the people. He will no doubt be elected, if merit and qualification for the position are taken into consideration.

The selection of A. S. Bennett for supreme judge is in line with that sound policy that recognizes the claims of men who have done efficient public service. Mr. Bennett is recognized as an anti-corporation man who is not susceptible to the influence of the Union Pacific railroad that seeks to dominate eastern Oregon politics.

The impression seems to have gone out quite extensively that in voting the new Australian ballot the elector shall designate his choice of candidates by marking a cross upon each of the names voted for. This is an error. The names voted for must be left intact, the others receiving the cross or mark as a token of their obliteration by the voter. The same rule applies in cases where the ballot is cast by affirmative or negative answer to a printed question.

Does Not Expire Until 1894.
 WASHINGTON, April 20.—Sherman has notified the senate that a further examination of the Chinese immigration question has convinced the foreign relations committee that the Chinese exclusion legislation would not expire till 1894.

Election in Louisiana.
 NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—Indications are now that Foster's (dem.) majority will reach 30,000. He got a large negro vote in many parishes. Fitzpatrick's majority for mayor is estimated at 5000. The count is not completed.
