

Eugene City Guard.

SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1892.

Who Feels It.

Dr. Loomis, who is holding a federal position and drawing $8 a day from the government, has nothing else to do at present but glide easily about Lane county and whisper soft and seductive words into the ears of the farmers and laboring men, who receive perhaps $1 per day for hard work, advising them to support the party that is rendering them such inestimable benefits by taxing them from 25 to 150 per cent on nearly every article in common use.

The gentleman is mistaken. The people do feel it; and as an evidence we may point to the mortgages on farms and homes; the strikes of laborers of daily occurrence; the increasing poverty in our cities and centers of population; the army of tramps that throng our highways; the languishing condition of agriculture and the low prices obtained for its products.

The gentleman made a mistake. It is the millionaires and beneficiaries of this outrageous system of class legislation that do not feel it. By the means of tariff laws, they like the leech, draw the life blood from the common people, and are not content when filled and inflated, but ask for more, and by the power of the party that Dr. Loomis pleads for they get a fresh hold on the victims. They feel it.

Exercise a Choice.

The result of the election in Lane county next Monday will be one of two things. Either the republican or democratic candidates will be elected. There is no reason whatever to believe that any candidate of the peoples party can be elected. Misguided voters have become hoodwinked by the reports of the strength of the third party. There are a few precincts where the vote of that party will be considerable, but in most of the precincts their vote will be light and unimportant. The choice of the voter will be between the democrats and republicans.

Upon the issues of tariff reform and an honest administration of public affairs for the benefit of the people instead of monopolies, the democratic and peoples parties are one. If the honest voter has a choice between the two old parties he should exercise it, and not indirectly aid the party whose principles and policy he is bitterly opposed to, by throwing away his vote on a forlorn hope.

The following from Benton Leader can be vouched for by the citizens of Lane county who have an intimate acquaintance with Mr. Dorris. The Leader says: Mr. George A. Dorris, democratic candidate for district attorney, was in town this week. He created a very favorable impression. His reputation is that of a successful lawyer. Those who know him best say that he has one quality that is very essential in a prosecuting officer. He has splendid common sense, is a good judge of men and things, and will not be easily imposed upon by people who frequently bring merely personal quarrels and trifling disagreements before the grand jury, to the great cost of the county. He knows when he has a good case and when he hasn't, and that is shown by the record in his civil practice. Besides, he is straight and honorable. This county will give him a majority, and no doubt the district also.

J. E. Noland's discharge of his duties as sheriff has been above reproach or criticism. Service of all legal papers entrusted to him has been made promptly and without loss to litigants. Criminals and offenders against the laws have not escaped arrest, and by his watchful care few escapes have taken place from the rotten, insecure jail, and those were promptly recaptured. Tax collections have been made with dispatch, and the tax roll was never in a better condition for cleaning up. His record as an officer cannot be called in question.

The Wall-street advocate of monopoly who is now stumping Oregon is a fairly entertaining speaker, says the Portland Telegram, but he will make few if any votes. After gaining a little reputation and notoriety as a Michigan congressman he went to work for Jay Gould on the New York Tribune. Gould owned a controlling interest in the Tribune, and run it, of course, in the interest of the people. One of his hired men of some brains is Mr. Horr, who has come out to Oregon to tell us how we should vote. Some of us will conclude to vote against Mr. Gould's candidate.

The suspense of the candidates will soon be ended. There has been more agony than usual this year on account of the presence of four tickets in the field. In all probability there will be a large number of ballots thrown out on account of voters not being posted on the Australian system. Read up.

A Question for Mr. Alley.

The West makes a long defense of Mr. Hermann and claims for him almost everything but bringing rain and making grass grow. It says "no sane man believes this rot about Hermann's partiality to Coos bay or any other portion of Oregon."

No one has ever claimed that he was partial to any other section of the state than Coos bay. Mr. Alley, one of the editors of The West, is now here, and we make the assertion that he knows of the existence of a letter, and has at least seen a copy of it, from one of the United States Senators from Oregon in which it is stated that Mr. Hermann made every other interest and appropriation for improvements in the state of Oregon and of the Columbia river subordinate to that of Coos bay, and whatever fault was to be found for the small appropriation of $10,000 for Siuslaw must be attributed to Hermann. Mr. Alley is asked to publicly deny this statement if he can. The fact is that some people have made a little tin deity of Hermann and will take no view of the hypocritical side of his character.

The independent citizens of Oregon are interested in having J. N. Dolph succeed as a United States senator. He has been elected twice by the party that controls the state and will be again if the legislature is republican when the time comes. He is a corporation attorney, is bitterly opposed to silver coinage, and has no common sympathy with the people. In voting for Mr. Coleman you are certain not to give aid to Dolph. A vote for Mr. Alley is a direct vote for Dolph while one for either the peoples or prohibition candidate is an indirect one in his aid. Those who have any knowledge of the situation cannot gainsay our statements.

President Harrison will spare the country an exhibition of hubbub by refraining from the issue of the order he is said to contemplate for bidding federal officeholders from taking part in the Minneapolis convention. The officeholders in every state where the president controls them have already done all they can for his renunciation and in states where he does not control them, like New York and Pennsylvania they have done all they can to prevent his nomination. Over one hundred federal placemen are delegates to the republican national convention. The time to enforce the civil service law in the spirit has gone by.

Carl Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, the celebrated dealer in wild animals, will take to the Chicago exposition his entire collection of trained and wild animals, also his collection in natural history. A structure in the form of a Roman arena will be erected in the Midway Plaisance on a space 110 feet square, where some seventy animals and several hundred monkeys and parrots will be shown. The wildest beasts living, together with domestic animals, will go through all sorts of performances.

There is considerable talk of Blaine for president. We cannot conceive how he can honorably accept it after writing his letter of declination. It is probable that the boom is being engineered by politicians who have a hope of defeating Harrison with some dark horse. If they could nominate Blaine, and he should decline, it is probable that Harrison's pride would not allow him to accept, then the fight would be among the minor candidates whom the politicians hope to control.

C. K. Wilkinson has won encomiums in his canvass of Lane county for the legislature. He has been clear, fair and concise in his statements, courteous to opponents, neither resorting to abuse or seeking to take undue advantages in the discussion of the issues. He has fairly demonstrated his worthiness to fulfill with credit to Lane county the duties of a member of the legislature.

The work of the editor is not a pleasant one these political times. He is expected to puff all the candidates of the party which he represents, and to relate all the scandals and shortcomings of the others. Then when he looks over his exchanges for news with which to fill his columns he finds them devoted to the political mill. These are indeed hard times for the editor.

T. J. Craig has made many friends in his canvass for the county clerkship. His genial, unostentatious manners, and well known capability for the duties of the office make him a favorite with both political friends and opponents.

The order which the president has delicately caused to be made known to his cabinet officers, that they are expected to stay away from the republican national convention, is supposed to be aimed particularly at Secretary Elkins.

A friend of Dr. Loomis says that gentleman is gathering GUARDS and sending to friends in the East to show what a distinguished man he is out West. We wonder if he has sent any to the civil service commission.

Don't believe campaign lies.

The contention that a presidential candidate must come from any particular state is an evileone. The citizens of every state ought to stand on an equal footing. A man is no more fit for president because he comes from New York or Indiana than because he comes from Washington. The principle is likely to be entered into this year's campaign. The people only require that their attention should be called to it to rebuke the pretense that only two states have men who are eligible to win the presidency.

Don't swap with anybody at the polls next Monday. Vote your own honest sentiments and let the man with the majority win. Every tub should stand on its own bottom.

Another deadly cyclone has left destruction in its train in Kansas. The citizens of that state should hunt a more favored clime.
