General Booth announces a great need of funds to carry on the Salvation Army. He recalls his announcement that the $500,000 given for his darkest England scheme would require $150,000 annually for maintenance, as only $20,000 of that had been furnished so far. So the scheme is almost at a standstill,

Paris Anarchists are now diligently cultivating the art of dining for nothing. Bands of them, it is said, now enter eat ing houses, call for substantial repasts, dispatch them and then refuse to pay the bill. When the landlord remonstrates these "free diners-out" threaten to blow up his establishment with dynamite.

Removing a Cinder from the Eye. The proper way to get a cinder out of the eye is to draw the upper lid down over the lower, utilizing the lashes of the lower as a broom, that it may sweep the surface of the former and thus get rid of the intruder. Or gently drawing the lid away from the globe, pass a clean camel's hair brush or fold of a soft silk handkerchief two or three times between them. This procodure will, in nearly all cases, suffice; when it does not the services of a physician are necessary. It is a remarkable fact that a very minute body will give rise to intense pain, and even after it has been extracted the sensation remains for an hour or more. After the intruder is out gently bathe the lids every fifteen minutes in iced water till the feeling subsides.-Ladies' Home

A. Kellerman in a recent lecture before the Ohio Agricultural Convention gives the following as embodying his experience:

"It would be a long story to relate the experiments in detail which have resulted in the discovery for the stinking smut-of cheap and efficient fungicides; that is to say, modes of treatment of the se d grain (which may have adhering spores) that entirely suppress the dis-ease. I know of no reported experiments touching the prevention of lose smut except those carried on by my former assistant (W. T. Swingle) and myself; but unfortunately they were not successful, and need not be further discussed.

"Of numerous fungicides (twenty-loan in all) that were used in the experiment to prevent stinking smut one is to be especially recommended, namely: hot water; temperature, 132 degrees Fahren-heit. The immersion of the seed in water kept at this temperature should be continued fifteen minutes. When the seed-which should be in a basket or frame lined with wire netting, say twelve meshes to the inch-is dipped into the hot water the temperature will suddenly fall so low that the spores of the smut that may be present will not be killed even with prolonged immersion. It is, therefore, necessary to add at once sufficient hot water to bring up the temperature to about 132 degrees, never above 135 degrees and better never below 130 legrees. Observing this and also the further precaution to shake, lift and plunge the basket of seed so as to insure the contact of the hot water with every grain of the wheat, the smut will surely be killed. The seed thus freed from adhering spores will produce a clean crop. The grain may be treated days or weeks before seed time, or it may be sown immediately after treatment and before the grains are completely dried.

"Numerous experiments with oats howed in every case that there was an increased yield of grain, due apparently to the effect of immersion in hot water, aside from the mere killing of smut. Thus when there was from 7 to 10 per cent. of smut in the crop the yield from the treated seed was augmented not only by an amoant equivalent to the average amount of smut, but by twice the same-It is very probable that a similar result would be obtained in case of whest treated in the same manner described before. At any rate the stinking smut c n be effectually prevented, if the proper fungicide be used. The expense in treating the seed is very small, and if the latter is badly infected, great financial profit must necessarily follow."
