

Democratic National Ticket.

For President, GROVER CLEVELAND, of New York.

For Vice President, A. E. STEVENSON, of Illinois.

An Honest Answer.

When candidate Adlai Stevenson was first assistant postmaster-general it became necessary to lease new premises for the postoffice at Bloomington, Ill.

"In reply to your inquiry whether the removal of the Bloomington postoffice at the expiration of the present lease to the Stevenson block is contemplated by the department, I answer it is not.

"This is indeed a very creditable letter, and adds greatly to the good reputation of Mr. Stevenson's democracy. It shows that he is a fit running mate for the man who originated the theory that 'A public office is a public trust.'"

The Oregonian has repeatedly asserted that the tariff on lumber is a benefit to the northwest coast, protecting the mill men against the "pauper labor" of British Columbia.

Albert Koebel, agent of the California state board of horticulture, was sent to Australia to collect parasites that would destroy the scale bug, which is such a pest in California.

The next test of the peoples party strength in the South will be afforded on September 5, when the state election will take place in Arkansas.

Russell Harrison is leading a very unobtrusive life at Cape May this season. So few people go down to Cape May Point, where the presidential cottage is situated, that the precise manner in which Prince Russell passes the monotonous days is unknown.

If Cyrus W. Field had not believed in life insurance he would have died a bankrupt. When he came home from his trip around the world ten years ago his yearly income was $300,000.

The announcement that Blaine will only deliver five minute speeches during this campaign attests his lack of confidence in his old chief. It will be long enough, however, for him to reiterate his former statement when the McKinley bill was under consideration that there was not a word or line in it that would open a market for another barrel of pork or flour.

The Wheat Yield.

The New York Sun in an elaborate article on the crop prospects in the United States and abroad says: State reports and other credible authorities show that the winter wheat areas, as a whole, are not likely to give more than an average yield; and the spring wheat region will produce below the average.

The indications are for an aggregate out-turn of about 480,000,000 bushels, being some 132,000,000 less than the reported product of 1891, and showing likewise that the exportable surplus from the crop of 1892, will be about 140,000,000 less than the crop of 1891, as domestic requirements have increased fully 8,000,000 since last year.

Abroad, the situation presents as great a change from that of 1891 as is shown in America. India has a crop about 60,000,000 below that of last year; South America and Australasia together, crops that do not differ materially but are rather below than above those of 1891; while the crops of Asia Minor, northern Africa, Greece and Bulgaria are decidedly inferior to those of last year.

The wheat area in Great Britain is so much less than last year that the product will be from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels less. In Scandinavia the temperature has been so very low and rains so excessive as to cause grave fears as to the ripening of all the cereals; while, on the other hand, drought and unequal distribution of the rainfall have brought crop failure over wide Russian areas, the indication being that wheat and rye will both be below the average, although from five to ten per cent better than last year.

While America has the promise of about an average wheat harvest, all European crops indicate yields below the average. It is true that there are areas where the product will exceed that of last year; notably in France and Belgium, where the increase is likely to equal the diminution of 60,000,000 bushels in the crop of India; while the increase in the product of Russian wheat fields may equal in the decrease in the product of Great Britain and Italy.

As a result of the secret mission on which Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor has been in Homestead, the scene of the recent defeat of the Pinkertons, the entire strength of that organization will be utilized to help win the fight.

It will be well for parties who are running steam threshers on the public highways to remember that there is a law to the effect that anyone running a steam traction engine over a bridge on the public highway shall, before crossing such a bridge, place a two-inch plank lengthways for the engine to cross on, and in case this is not complied with, are subject to a heavy fine or imprisonment, or both.

The striking switchmen on the Erie railroad and its branches threaten to paralyze the transportation business of the East, as the strike is liable to extend to other roads at any moment. 1893, during the world's fair will be the time when the railroad magnates will be at the mercy of their employees.

Deputy Sheriff Croner last night arrested Eugene Stevens, who has been working in lively stables here for the past year, on the south bound overland train near Goshen, on the charge of being an absconding debtor. Stevens thereupon gave up all the money he had, $10, and was allowed to proceed. He had a ticket for San Jose, Cal.

I wish to announce to the people of Eugene and vicinity that I keep a full and complete stock in my several lines of merchandise, which I propose selling at the very lowest cash prices. Goods exchanged for all kinds of farm produce, wood, etc., for which the highest market price will be allowed, which holds regular meetings, with Rev. N. X. Matthews as pastor. The Journal can learn of no harm committed by this lady's work in Salem, notwithstanding the fact that she was strongly condemned by a few intolerant and narrow-minded individuals.

"Look like a ghost!" That's what they say of the pale, thin, weak woman who's "run down" and overworked. Probably she knows it herself. But there's one thing she can't know, feel so and look so—and that is, that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is guaranteed to help her.

It's a legitimate medicine, made especially for women's needs, of an invigorating, restorative tonic and a soothing and strengthening nerve, imparting tone and vigor to the whole system.

But it isn't a mere stimulant. It's a remedy, safe and sure, for all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that make women suffer. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, internal inflammation, ulceration, no benefit or cure, or the money is returned. No other medicine for women is sold so. Proof that nothing else is "just as good."

Wednesday's Albany Democrat: T. G. Price, who was arrested on complaint of John E. Cullen of Lebanon on a charge of adultery was examined before Justice Cull and a large crowd of men this afternoon, and held under $500 bonds to await the action of the grand jury. The evidence is pretty conclusive that defendant is guilty.

A 12-year-old girl walking along the Seattle docks on Sunday lost her footing and fell into the water. Had it not been for the courage of a namesake tramp she would have drowned. The man jumped in after her and swam with her to shore. On getting up to the wharf he handed the child over to her friends who had rushed down to the dock, and coolly proceeded to wring out his clothes. When asked his name he replied: "I ain't got no name. I'm a traveling man, walking ties for my health." The crowd passed the hat around, and the result was a liberal donation. He took the cash and spent it in the nearest saloon.

A Trip to the Siuslaw.

HECETA, Aug. 13, 1892.

EDITOR GUARD:—The road to Florence is not altogether smooth, and the getting there is not altogether as pleasant as a summer evening's dream. Fento and Gip, my two ponies, glided along with us until we reached the Chickahominy mountain. They did well until the first bench was reached where the road makes a short curve, and then they stopped. We coaxed, petted and persuaded, but they heeded not our entreaties, and would not move, except to back the wagon down the mountain. That was dangerous; the day was quite warm, and you all know it has a strong tendency to make a person feel pleasant to have a team balk on an occasion like that, especially on the most dangerous place. We looked them over the rags and thought we would practice them while climbing the mountains so that they might know the mountain could be climbed, up and down we went. Now they certainly would go. The load was light, they climbed the mountain and down again, but at the word of command, they would not move a peg. Pleasures began to pile up thick now, for that was what we were after. Again they were loosed from the wagon and took us another pleasure trip up the mountain, this time a little better than before, and we had the good fortune to meet a good Samaritan with a team, not a mule one. He hitched on our wagon and pulled to the top of the mountain. The ponies were hooked on and went down the mountain with all ease, for they were compelled to get out of the way of the mountain. This is on the Lake creek route. Wife, Evaline and Walter walked over the mountain so they might have pleasant dreams at night. Let me say to the tourist and pleasure seeker that the Chickahominy mountain is high, steep and hard to overcome with a balky team. Next time. W.

Comparison of Teachers' Salaries.

La Grande—C. B. Leatherman, principal, salary, $1,000; 12 teachers with a salary at $55; number of pupils, 607.

FINALE.—Salem Journal August 13: Mrs. Woodworth, who has conducted the tent meetings in Salem for the past three months, held her last meeting Sunday evening. Her tent was crowded to its utmost, not less than a thousand people being present. The lady leaves for McMinnville Monday. She may also visit Woodburn and Oregon City before returning to Salem about next Christmas. Mrs. Woodworth has made about one hundred converts and organized a good church, which holds regular meetings, with Rev. N. X. Matthews as pastor. The Journal can learn of no harm committed by this lady's work in Salem, notwithstanding the fact that she was strongly condemned by a few intolerant and narrow-minded individuals.
