Judge Deadly Dead.

The leading jurist of Oregon expires today at noon.

Portland, Or., March 24.—Judge M. P. Deady, judge of the United States district court, died here at noon today.

Judge Deady was born near Easton, in Talbot county, Maryland, on May 12, 1824. His parents were substantial and respectable people, his father being a teacher by profession. In 1828 the family moved to Wheeling, Va., where the father was employed as principal of the Lancaster academy for some years. In 1834 the mother died on her way back to Wheeling from Baltimore, where the family had gone on a visit to her father. In 1837 young Deady removed to Ohio with his father, and spent some years on a farm. He left the farm in 1841 and went to Barnesville, where for four years he wrought at the anvil, and attended the then somewhat famous Barnesville academy working as well at the forge of thought as that of matter, hammering and shaping to his mind the ores of knowledge found in the mine of books. Supporting himself by teaching school, he began the study of law in 1845 with the Hon. William Kennon, of St. Clairsville, O., since on the supreme bench of that state, and now deceased. In October, 1847, he was admitted to the supreme court of the state and commenced practice in St. Clairsville. He crossed the plains to Oregon in 1849. Here he supported himself during the winter by teaching, and in the spring of 1850 commenced the practice of the law in the community. In June, 1850, he was chosen to the lower house of the territorial legislature from Yamhill county. In 1851, after a severe contest, he was chosen a member of the territorial council from Yamhill county over David Logan, and served as chairman of the judiciary committee of that body in the sessions of 1851-2, and as presiding officer during the special session of 1852, and the regular one of 1852-3.

He was strongly urged in the spring of 1853 as a candidate for delegate to congress, but he received and accepted the appointment of associate justice of the supreme court of the territory, which he held until February 4, 1859.

He was a member of the constitutional convention which framed the constitution of the state. After the admission, Judge Deady was appointed judge of the United States district court of this state. In 1860 he removed to Portland where he has ever since made his home.

In 1861-2 he prepared and reported code of civil procedure. It was adopted to the legislature of 1862, the present code with two small amendments, and, with slight alteration, has constituted the code of civil procedure for Oregon. At the request of the legislature of 1862 he also prepared and reported to the legislature of 1864 a code of criminal procedure, including the definition of crimes and their punishments, which was passed at that session without amendment.

He has been President of the Portland Library Association ever since 1868. He was also president of the University of Oregon, in which capacity he has contributed much to its elevation and usefulness. At the annual commencement of 1878 and 1879 Judge Deady delivered two addresses to the graduating classes of those years.

His happy marriage.

In June, 1852, Judge Deady was united in marriage with Miss Lucy A. Henderson, the daughter of one of the old and highly esteemed pioneers of Oregon. The marriage took place in Yamhill county. She was a lady of culture and refinement. Three sons were the fruits of this long and happy union—Edward N., Paul R. and Henderson B. The two former are practicing attorneys in Portland. The latter, the youngest son, is preparing for the medical profession.

He was a prominent member of the Episcopal church.

By an act of the last congress Judge Deady was allowed to retire on full pay at any time so desired. However, the law was passed too late to be enjoyed by the deceased jurist.

Citizens' League.

The regular weekly meeting of the Citizens' League was held last night at the opera house. The house was well filled with ladies and gentlemen, members of the League with a good-sized lobby of the curious opposition.

The convention opened with prayer by Rev. E. P. Henderson after which the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Then followed an address by the Rev. H. L. Bates, taking as his theme, "The power of Public Opinion."

After the gentleman had finished Mrs. McClung, president of the local W. C. T. U., made a short statement showing what had been done to get an expression from the women of the city regarding the saloon.

The executive committee in accordance with their instructions reported names as follows: Mayor, Hon. J. H. McClung; councilmen: Ist ward, Dr. Wm. Knickerdall; 2d ward, C. Frank; 3d ward, G. N. Frazer; treasurer, I. K. Peters. The office of recorder was purposely left vacant to be filled later.

The report was unanimously adopted and a resolution adopted authorizing the executive committee to fill all vacancies now existing and which may occur on the ticket. Another resolution was presented by Rev. David N. McInturf, D. D., to the effect that the executive committee appoint suitable persons to be present at the polls in each ward to prevent illegal voting. This resolution was also adopted.

APPOINTED REGENT.

We understand that Judge Walton has been appointed a regent of the State University to fill Judge Deady's unexpired term. Mr. Walton has been a true friend of the university ever since its location here. He is now secretary of the board, and for several years served as a regent.

Mr. McCornack expects to pay all debts in full within a year.

From the San Jose, Cal., Daily Mercury, of the 21st inst., in the county court proceedings for Santa Clara county, we glean the news that John Ingham, formerly a resident of Lane county, has been appointed one of the assistants to the manager of the world's fair exhibit from Santa Clara county. He will be thus employed for about eight months.

The Salem Statesman has the following concerning one of our honorable citizens: The introduction of a bill in the Minnesota legislature to compel Chinamen to wear their shirts inside of their pants reminds old Oregonians of a measure of the same class that found its way into the Oregon legislature late in the 60's. Representative Amis was father of the bill, which provided that all Chinamen who might come into the state to remain would be compelled to forfeit their queues. Mr. Amis resides in Lane county.

RESTORED.—Oregonian: Assistant United States Attorney Charles E. Lockwood, sent his resignation to the attorney-general last December, to take effect January 1. As there were still some special matters on hand needing the services of Mr. Lockwood no action was taken upon his request until a few days ago, when he wired the attorney-general requesting immediate action, and the resignation was accepted. During his term of office, Mr. Lockwood has made a very active, efficient and painstaking officer. He has formed a connection with the law firm of McGinn, Sears & McGinn.

EXAMINATION.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Potter accompanied Deputy Sheriff Croner, who took a prisoner to Creswell this afternoon. This is the tramp which has been held by the officers here for some days in hope of gaining more evidence. Failing in this, it is now taken to Creswell for identification.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

C. A. Gove shoots C. J. Smith and then suicides.

PORTLAND, March 25.—Conrad J. Smith, bookkeeper for Levy, Spiegel & Co., was shot and perhaps fatally wounded about 7:30 tonight at the corner of 3d and Alder streets by C. A. Gove, a real estate dealer. Gove then blew out his own brains.

The men were standing on the corner indulging in a heated conversation when suddenly Gove drew out a .38-calibre revolver from his pocket and began firing. When Smith saw Gove reach for his revolver, he started to run. Gove's aim, however, was accurate, and he hit Smith in the back the ball lodging in the abdomen. After firing two shots at Smith, he turned the weapon to his own head and fired. He fell and died at once. The street was crowded at the time and the shooting drew an immense crowd to the scene. Smith was taken to the hospital and Gove's body to the morgue.

The deed was premeditated, as a large knife was found on the body of the dead man. He left a statement accusing Smith of assaulting his wife several years ago. Mrs. Gove is a well known teacher in the public schools of this city and about ten years ago she was elected county school superintendent. The supreme court held she was not eligible and her husband was appointed to the position.

The shooting created a profound sensation and was the principle topic of conversation on the streets. It was on the opposite corner where Emil Webber fell a victim to Sandy Olds' bullet four years ago.

There is a mystery surrounding the trouble between Smith and Gove. Many claim that Gove was insane. In a small memorandum book which was found on the body there was a statement that five years ago Smith attempted to outrage Mrs. Gove but failed. Smith, who is dangerously injured, may recover. He was seen tonight and denies having made an assault upon Mrs. Gove.

Mrs. Gove is out of the city and does not yet know of the tragedy.

THE LATEST.

PORTLAND, March 27.—Smith is resting easily and his physicians are hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

Mrs. Gove refuses to be interviewed and will not talk about the case.

CASE DECIDED.

Judge Fullerton, this morning, filed his opinion in the case of C. D. Maxwell vs James H. Yates, appeal from the county court, which was heard at the recent term of the circuit court, dismissing the appeal.

This is a case wherein James H. Yates was appointed guardian of the estate and person of the minor children, May S. Jane Elizabeth and James Y. Maxwell, Mr. Yates being their uncle. Their father, C. D. Maxwell, objected to the appointment claiming he was their proper guardian. Judge Fullerton states in his opinion that a writ of review was the proper remedy, instead of an appeal, and also intimates that under such a proceeding that the case would be decided in favor of the father. It is likely that the case will now be compromised.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Potter accompanied Deputy Sheriff Croner, who took a prisoner to Creswell this afternoon. This is the tramp which has been held by the officers here for some days in hope of gaining more evidence. Failing in this, it is now taken to Creswell for identification.

BURNED TO DEATH.

George Gibbons, of Lafayette, Perishes in the Flames.

LAFAYETTE, Or., March 27.—A sad accident occurred last evening down on the Gibbons Bros.' farm, about 3 miles east of this place, in which George Gibbons lost his life. George and Dan Gibbons had been doing some butchering some distance from the former's home, when they discovered his house was on fire. On arriving at the house George, believing his family to be within, made a rush into the house and was soon overcome by the intense heat and smoke. Dan made repeated efforts to get at his unfortunate brother but owing to the intense heat was unable to do so. Only a small portion of the remains could be found. Dan Gibbons was severely burned about his face and hands. At the time of the fire the family of the unfortunate man had gone over to his brother's house visiting, and had George known of the safety of his family the unfortunate affair would not have occurred. George's family consists of a wife and four children, who have the sympathy of the large community in which they live.

MAXWELL OUTLINES HIS RULE.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Maxwell today indicated the line of policy which will govern him in his selection of about 50,000 fourth-class postmasters this year. He said:

"In the first place I don't propose to permit unscrupulous politicians to dictate appointments. Ex-congressmen and men who ran for congress and were defeated will not control appointments under me. In the states where there is not a democratic senator and the districts are represented by republicans in congress, the state, district or county democratic committees will be asked to make recommendations for postmasters. We want to deal with live democrats, men of influence, and not without politicians. Men and women who held postoffices four years ago will not be appointed if new blood can be found. The 'No ex' rule will apply for the selection of fourth-class postmasters. Of course, if we cannot get democrats who have not held office to accept them, we will reinstate old postmasters rather than appoint republicans to hold offices. We are now ready for business and the changes will be made as rapidly as possible."

INSANE.—

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Sarah Hays was examined at Junction City, on the charge of insanity before Judge Fisk, Prosecuting Attorney Potter and Medical Examiners Drs. D. A. Paine and Norman Lee, who issued a commitment. The lady is the wife of Geo. Hays, a farmer, is 29 years of age and is the mother of three small children. Her mania is of a morose and suspicious character, from which she has been suffering for over a year. Deputy Sheriff Matthews took the unfortunate lady to the asylum this morning. The Eugene delegation went to Junction as guests of Superintendent Fields, on the special railroad commissioners' train, returning on the overland.

DIVORCE GRANTED.—

The Portland Daily Dispatch says: "Julius Kamli has taken default for want of a better answer against his wife, Jennie, whom he married Nov. 18, 1892, in Vancouver, and whom he accuses of criminal intimacy with unknown parties from that time until March 16th of this year particularly at a house on Third and Mill street in this city." Kamli formerly was proprietor of a saloon in this city.

THEY HAVE GONE.

Nye and Burbank Take Their Departure Soon After the Entertainment.

Daily Guard, March 27.

Those who went to the opera house Saturday evening expecting an exciting entertainment were most decidedly disappointed, for neither Mr. Nye or Mr. Burbank are of an excitable turn. If they were they would be unable to be so funny. Mr. Nye's humor is perhaps more affecting in his conversations with an audience than in his writings, for he then has the advantage of being seen and heard as well as understood. As his humor mostly arises from his aptness in the distortion of the English language and especially certain ambiguous applications of provincialisms and slang phrases, his cultivation of this propensity for years makes it easy for him now to entertain either an audience or a reader. On the stage or off he has that same droll manner in talking.

Mr. Burbank surprised many in the audience who had never heard him. As a dramatic reciter he certainly can hold an audience in the closest attention, every word and gesture conveying a vivid impression of the scene portrayed. In a short conversation with a reporter, before they left yesterday morning, both he and Mr. Nye gave a great deal of credit to the audience and the arrangement of the opera house, as other lecturers have done. They claim for the latter that it gathers the audience around the speaker like a family circle and the audience itself seemed to be in sympathetic touch with the speaker, thus enabling him to do his best with little effort.

Bill Nye's writings will be read with greater interest, now that we have seen him, and both gentlemen have made many admirers here who would gladly welcome them again to our city.

SECRETARY HOKE SMITH TAKES PUBLIC HIS INITIAL JUDGMENT.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Secretary Hoke Smith today rendered his first decision. It was a case of the Southern Pacific railroad. It involved the question of the right of that company to lands within its granted limits and the limits of the grant to the Atlantic & Pacific railroad, basing its claim on the ground the latter company had never complied with its requirements of the grant, in the matter of locating its road, and the forfeiture of its grant. The secretary holds, however, the Southern Pacific Company had acquired no title to the lands in question under its grant. The decision operates to open these lands, aggregating many thousands of acres in southern California, to settlement and entry. The commissioner of the general land office accordingly directed to take the steps necessary to restore them to the public domain.

AN OLD MONEY ORDER.—

Florence West: Recently, while looking over some old papers, Rev. W. H. Church found a postal money order and took it to the postoffice in Florence. The time for payment of the order having expired, it was sent by the postmaster to Washington, and having traveled between the office where it was issued and that where it was payable and the Florence office, it was finally ordered paid by the department, just twelve years after it was given to Mr. Church.

According to the telegraphic dispatches, Rev. J. C. Read, the Baptist preacher who disappeared so mysteriously from East Portland, is ministering to the spiritual wants of a small flock in Illinois.

The Springfield Messenger has completed its first year of existence. It is a good local paper, edited by fair men, and is deserving of a good support. In fact, the paper would be a credit to a much larger town.

Ed White writes us from Prineville, March 20, that Crook county has suffered little loss of stock this season. Sheep wintered well, and better than cattle of which the loss will probably be between 5 and 10 per cent.

The gamblers of Roslyn were routed by the city council and fled to Cle Elum where they have opened up on a grand scale. That Roslyn may still have the benefit of their calling, they have established a line of free busses between the two cities for the accommodation of the devotees of the fickle god of chance.

Salem Democrat: Two Indian boys, it is reported, were expelled from the Harrison institute one day last week for smoking and disobeying the rules of the school. It is also stated they were turned out without a cent of money. While we believe the offense justified the superintendent in expelling them, we also believe it is wrong to turn them loose without money enough to pay their expenses in reaching their home or friends if they have any.

A California farmer living near Sacramento was recently swindled out of three thousand dollars by the gold brick device. He lodged a complaint with the police but that does not help matters in the least. It does seem as though the gold brick had played so many games that it should have become a chestnut and musty enough to be known by every one, but it is still bitten at as readily as of old. It is awful how the American people do like to be humbugged.

The following appears in the Salem Statesman recently of the last meeting of the city council: Alderman Cross moved that the section of the license ordinance prohibiting drug stores and restaurants from selling liquor without a license be enforced by the marshal. He said that was the way to test the validity of the ordinance. Alderman Smith seconded the motion. Marshal Minto was asked if he could enforce it, "I can try," he replied. The motion was put and carried.

Miss Lillian Rhinehart entertained the "Lenten Tea" club at her home Thursday afternoon. At 5 o'clock the guests were invited to enter the dining room, where the table was arranged for six. The ladies found at their places souvenirs, a monogram of the letters "L" and "T" signifying "Lenten Tea," tied with violet ribbon, the color for Lent. It was quite late when the ladies bid their hostess good night, after thanking her many times for one of the most enjoyable of the tea's given. Those present were the Misses Rhinehart, Huff, Ooms, Fitch, Watkins and Straig.

A unique scheme was devised by a young lady in this city last week to induce her sweetheart to write to her. The lovers had been corresponding regularly until a few weeks ago, when the regular letter of the young man did not arrive. Days flew by and the young lady began to grow weary of watching and waiting. Her pride could not permit her to write to the young man before she had received an answer to her last letter. Still she wanted to hear from him, but how to let him know without bluntly saying so puzzled her. After much thinking her inventive genius came to her rescue. She secured a pen and penholder. The pen was broken in half and then stuck in the penholder. To this she attached a tag and addressed it to the absentee.
