A Stove Lid the Weapon. SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 5.—Within

the four hours preceding midnight last night there was committed in South Seattle one of the most brutal murders in the history of the city. An old woman, 50 years of age, named Charlotte Fetting, had her brains beaten out with an iron stove-plate, and her little trunk was robbed of the savings of herself and son for years, $790 in gold coin. The fiend or flends who committed the deed are unknown and have probably left the city with the gold for which a gray-haired mether's life was sacrificed. Mrs. Fetting, with her son, Ernest Fetting, lived in the purchased the Lost creek ranch and southern part of the city, in what is known as "Shantytown." They are Germans. The son is a tall, innocentlooking man, about 30 years of age, with flaxen hair and blue eyes, and is a woodcutter. Yesterday evening at 7 o'clock Ernest Fetting and James King, a son-in-law, left the little shack and went to the People's theatre. They were the last persons who saw the old lady alive. When they returned at 2 o'clock this morning they in t 18 s, r 10 w; $1. found the door unlocked and partly open. Fetting exclaimed, "I have been robbed." King replied that perhaps it was not so, and pushed back 13.20 acres in t 16 s, r 5 e; $65. the door. On the floor, between the low bed and a small cook stove, stand- in Masonic cemetery; $10. ing in the center of the room, lay the poor old woman. Her face was turned sideways, pressing against the oven door. It was a mass of clotted blood, while her gray hair streamed in tangled bloody strings over her shoulders. Several large gashes were visible, but were filled with clotted blood. In her mouth was stuffed a large cotton handkerchief, and a strap passing across the handkerchief and under her chin formed a gag. She was in her night dress which was of white cotton and not much disarranged. The little room had been sin ply turned upside down, and nothing was left in place. The garments hanging on the wall had been torn down and the trunk had been torn down and the trunk had been overbeen emptied, chairs had all been overcondon appeared for the state and Atchairman and the usual committees sedone is by means of collections of proturned and there was apple evidence. condon appeared for the state and Attorned and there was ample evidence of a terrible struggle. When the two men realized what had taken place, the son for a moment was stunned. Walking mechanically over to his dead mother, he lifted her in his arms and placed her on the bed.
