OREGON AND WASHINGTON SHEET. An Oregon correspondent writes Sheep-raising on the ranges of Oregon and Washington is an industry of con-siderable magnitude. There are, it is said, 2,000,000 sheep in Oregon alone, and Eastern Washington ranges are heavy producers. In the latter portion of May each year great droves, reaching about 100,000, are started from these two States for Montana and Nebraska, the largest and finest being shipped from the former State to Chicago and others give ing to Nebraska to be corn-fed It takes five months to make this journey? as the grass is generally abundant, the stock arrives at its destination in good condition. The fact that last season practically all the wethers were driven off the argument for blocks more off the ranges accounts for higher prices and scarcity of mutton in the Northwest this year. The loss last winter to herds was very light, nearly 25 per cent let than usual, and sheep are all in good condition. Sheep on these ranges are said to be the finest raised in the world. yearlings averaging well with two-year-olds in other portions of the country. Shearing is now in progress, the crip-being shipped East almost entirely.
