Tell the Truth.

A recent clipping in the GUARD from the St. Paul News gives an interview with Mr. Sladden in which that gentleman premises his remarks with the statement that he is one of the principal prune raisers of the state and using this as a basis of reliability gives the astonishing information by impli-cation from his remarks, that the Sladden prune orchard at Eugene, gives an output of a thousand pounds to the tree, and a total earning capacity of $6000 per acre. It is such half arrive from the Sound. These visitors truths as these that are keeping the will be met at Kalama by the accomworld from knowing the overwhelm-ing capabilities of our favored state. Mr. Sladden's well known modesty probably caused him to stop short of giving the figures of the whole calculation, and hence he did not go on and show that his hundred seres at $6000 per acre were bringing him in regular-ly 5000,000 per year. Of course he says nothing of the expenses but giving a literal estimate of these and placing them at one-half of the receipts, we still find that Mr. Sladden's income is three hundred and thirty thousand dollars per year from his prune of the two associations will expense the washington editors will be formally welcomed to Portland and Oregon. A special entertainment will be prepared for the visitors that evening.

A special train has been chartered, and early Saturday morning members of the two associations will avail themselves of the appropriate of the special control of the two associations will be formally associations. It cannot be endured, in fact it is not fair and just to the people of Oregon, to permit the natural modesty of the man, to keep these facts from will return to Portland at 2 p. m. There is, however, a serious fault to This will bring the affair to a close. e found with Mr. Sladden. Ingiving this statement of the resources of our tate, he only speaks of the prune in dustry. There is of course an excuse for this, in the fact that his giant mind is fixed upon it by his personal inter-est and the princely income which he appears to derive therefrom. It is a fact, however, that the state is full of such fortunes for the people. As an instance there is the McKenzie river, full of the most delightful and valuable trout. A very unskilful fisherman can catch at least eight trout in floatcan catch at least eight trout in floating a rod, if he floats slow upon its turbulent bosom. Now eight fish to the rod is 25-80 fish to the mile. Those fish range all the way from a few ounces to eight pounds each. Surely an average weight of two pounds will be entirely just. This gives 5120 pounds of fish to the mile and they sell readily upon the streets for fifteen cents per pound. Any child will see that 5120 pounds at 15 cents will be streets from the found by inquiring friends guiding the pensive plow. Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Die 8708 per mile as the "carning capacity" of the beautiful McKenzie, and it would be a terribly lazy fellow who could not fish a mile in a day. In fact it is no uncommon thing for a mere boy to fish ten miles per day, but we do not think they do it with a care that such a stupenduous specula-tion deserves, neither will our Oregon natural modesty permit us to give the figures showing all the possibilities of an energetic man in Oregon. Let it go at a mile a day, this gives an income of $768 per day. We could not expect a man to fish every day even at these figures here in a country where wealth such a drug upon the market. him fish 29 days of each month, reserv-ing the other ten days for the improvement of his mind and to buy diamonds for his wife. He will thus earn $15,360 per month and as the fish do not bite very well more than six months of the year, he will be obliged to get along in some way with six months fishing and an income of not more than $92,160 per

This may seem a large income for hose of the poverty stricken people of East who do not know Oregon, but there are the figures and they have been submitted to the accountants of one of our principal banks and proounced correct. We have heard it asserted as the St. Corvallis News, Sept. 26: W. S. Hufford, assignee, of the insolvent debtor, J. C. Mohr, has sold the remainder of the stock of goods and mainder of the stock of goods and thereby, but we wish to assure our eastern friends that the real energetic likely to make their mark in the world, when they determine to have an education, simply go fishing for a few days, sell their fish and with the money just buy a university, hire a full corps of professors and turn the entire machine loose upon their brains until the process is completed to their good sized chicken. satisfaction.
