It is almost a stereotyped phrase to recommend good water for cows, says the New York Tribune, and if "line upon line and precept upon precept enforces great truths, there ought to be very little need of sermons upon this subject, but the other day in a fortymile drive across the country, the heart of the great dairy section of Ohio, it was surprising how many dairies this drouthstricken section was compelling to drink out of stagnant pools and dugouts, the water of which was, with its pollutions of mud and the offal of the cattle themselves, thick and horribly filthy. need not be so, and the fault is all with the man who owns the farm, and not either in the withholdings of Providence or natural defects in the living water of the farm itself. In these days of cheap aerometers and cheaper pumps every man has a spring on his farm and an abundance of water at command and no excuse exists for cows drinking filthy water. In the dairy districts had water means more than its injury to the cattle, for it has its deleterious effect upon the butter and cheese, for milk being 87 parts water, and this serum must have water origin, it is seen that it is very probable that bad water will give as bad influence to the milk; for while with good food and water it is quite a difficult

PAYS THE PARMER

The Homestead thinks farmers will not allow the poultry to be slighted, as they realize more fully what can be made out of it, and recalls the instance of a small farmer who became converted to poultry farming by an experiment. Wishing to adopt only those branches of farming that pay him the best, he kept a ledger account of all his cropstables, grain, hogs, cows, poultry. kept this up three years, and then set-tled down to poultry as the best crop-His farm pays better to-day on ten acre-than any 100 in the neighborhood. He states the situation in this way: put much time and expense in the growing of vegetables and a dry or unfavorable year should present itself, so that the crop becomes a failure, I am at a big loss; but with poultry I am safeis, I always have some income, both summer and winter. No matter how hard the times are, people do need eggs, and chicken meat is cheaper in many localities than pork and beef. I can always find a market for my produce, and, unlike most crops, it is always in a condition to be marketed. While the work tleman gives a device he uses to keep his cows from getting soiled while in the stable. The plan is simple, and places no restrictions on the animal. "A device I am using answers the pur-pose. It is simply a board, which may be padded to keep from rubbing the haif off, placed across the stall, just high enough not to touch the animal when standing at case. When she wishes to yold excrement she must arch her back. The position of the board prevents her so she steps back to get into the position nature requires, and the excrement falls in the gutter or offset, far enough away to permit her lying down in The board must be placed at different heights and lengths to suit the size of the animal. A little notice of the actions of each will give one the exact place to put it.'

She Took a Header An accident to a lady bicyclist from

Philadelphia, due to a peculiar cause has just occurred here. She was riding a "safety," such as even reckless mas culine wheelmen do not expect to take "headers" from Plunging suddenly and deeply in the thick mud near Christ's church, her wheel stopped as if it had struck a stone fence. Headlong over the bicycle and into the quagmire the lady was thrown. Before she could right herself she was completely covered with the cozy mnd. And such a sorry sight! How she got mack to her Phila-delphia bome is a mystery.
