In a few days we shall commence sending out statements of accounts to subscribers of the WEEKLY GUARD. While in many instances the amount due is small, in the aggregate the sum is large, in fact not less than $5000.

It takes cash to run a newspaper. The bills for paper, ink, postage, and material connected with the publication must be paid monthly, while our employes receive their wages every Saturday night.

We have steadily increased the size of the GUARD, and the volume of reading matter, while a reduction was made in the price.

If you cannot pay the entire bill pay part. The money is needed to enable us to conduct business, and we hope to obtain what is due us.

It will be remembered that some months since Anna D. Van Houten, daughter of Hon. R. C. Van Houten, of Spokane Falls, Wash., sued one Asa P. Morse, of Cambridge, Mass., for $60,000 for breach of promise of marriage.

The trial of the case took place in Boston, Mass., and the lady was victorious.

We take the following from the Boston Herald of October 5: "Forty thousand dollars for the plaintiff! That was the verdict rendered at 9 o'clock last night in the supreme judicial court, by the jury in the $60,000 breach of promise case brought by Mrs. Anna D. Van Houten of Spokane, Wash., against Hon. Asa P. Morse, of Cambridge.

The case was given to the jury at 12 o'clock yesterday, and at 4:30 it was announced that they had agreed on the plaintiff had been in waiting all the afternoon, and when it began to look as if court might adjourn for the day without getting a verdict, the strain overcame her and she began to weep bitterly.

As the jurors filed in and took their places the plaintiff took her handkerchief from her eyes and scanned their faces anxiously.

"Mr. Foreman, have you agreed upon a verdict?" "We have," returned the tall man at the head of the front row, as he handed Clerk Noble the envelope.

He opened it, showed it to Judge Barker, and then read: "We find for plaintiff in the sum of $40,000."

And what did Mrs. Van Houten do? What any woman would have done, shed tears, but they were tears of joy. There were no evidences of exultation.

Mr. Morse, for the defendant, seemed somewhat dazed by the size of the verdict, but managed to ask for time to file exceptions, and was given until the end of next week.

The court then adjourned until Monday. As the jury passed out Mrs. Van Houten shook hands with each one and thanked them for the substantial situation they had given her.

"That," said Mr. Morse, counsel for the plaintiff, "is the largest breach of promise verdict ever given in New England, and it is every way a righteous one. If ever there was a clear case against a man, it was this one. I think his alteration of his cash book in regard to the $500 given by the engagement ring was a very damaging thing, especially as the defendant's verdict will stand and the money will be paid."

Mr. Morse, for the defendant, said: "We will move at once for a new trial, and have been given time to file exceptions."

In conversation with the members of the press during the afternoon, Mrs. Van Houten regretted exceedingly the attempt of Mr. Morse to cast a shadow on her family.

She will probably remain in Boston until the question of a new trial is decided.

The first news that the defendant received of the verdict came from a Herald reporter, who called at his headquarters on Magazine street, Cambridgeport, early last evening.

When asked if he had seen the report in the evening papers, he expressed great surprise.

"The judge assured me that the proceedings should not go into the papers, and I had not expected them to appear," he said. "I suppose the report is not full. The correspondence and all is surely not in print is it?"

The reporter replied that he considered the reports rather full, and that he suspected much of the correspondence was in print.

ECONOMY ISN'T MEANNESS.

It means managing one's business to the best possible advantage

It also means looking for opportunities to better one's condition financially.

One of these opportunities is now open to you. It only remains for you to inspect the quality and prices of the goods offered to be convinced that they were never offered so LOW in this market.

Times are HARD we know, but when staples can be purchased at the following prices, certainly no one need suffer for the necessities of life. Look at these prices and see if a bushel of wheat at present prices will not purchase as much merchandise as last year when worth 65 cents per bushel:

Table listing various goods and their prices: LL 4-4 Domestic 16 yds for $1.00, Cabot W Muslin 14 yds for $1.00, Shirting Prints 20 yds for $1.00, Prints 50x56 for comforters 20 yds for $1.00, Extra Heavy Standard Prints 18 yds for $1.00, 6 lb. Blankets, not all wool, per pr $2.00, Good All Wool Blankets per pr $3.50, Extra " " per pr $4.00, White " " per pr $5.00, Cotton Batting 1/2 lb to roll only .10

Space will not permit of further quotations, but we can assure you that our prices are right all the way through. The stock is complete—never better. The fact is we have more goods that we want and will help you economize by letting you have some of them, and if perchance there should not be enough to go around among all our friends we will order some more before the U. S. Senate repeals the Sherman Act and goods go back to old prices.

Come and see us; we are always at home.

YOURS TRULY,

J. H. McCLUNG.
