AN INCIDENT IN REAL LIFE.

Showing How Unpleasant People Can Make Themselves by Their Talk.

I stepped upon a Broadway car at the lower end of Broadway and rode in it along that fast changing highway...

Another passenger entered the car at that moment and stumbled over the portmanteau.

"Hang that bag!" said the man.

"If I were you, I would keep my cutting for home," said the woman, and so on and so on.

The ensuing half hour was passed by these two in a strain which would have done credit to the most pronounced hag in the dirtiest quarters of a third rate fish market.

Well, what of it? It is not such a very uncommon thing for man and wife—for lovers even, for daily intercomers—for quarrel and to vent serpentine hisses from the untidy members that wag with curious motion as they distill poison from bitter and jaundiced hearts.

And the woman had a pretty face. Her hair was parted in the middle, as women's hair should be, and revealed in its old-fashioned brushing a tiny ear, not so small as to indicate utter selfishness, but, on the other hand, not so large as to rival a genuine Saddle Rock oyster in its voracity.

Listening under the circumstances was not rudeness. It was compulsory. I sat next the boy. Some of his banana skin ornaments my cotestive until this moment. As he lay reclining upon the copper nails in the bottom of his coach and the copper top upon the same.

Reclaiming Old Rubber. Crude rubber is worth from 40 to 75 cents per pound, and yet a pound of waste or packing costs very much less.

These old goods are placed in large tanks at the place of reclaiming. A solution of muriatic or sulphuric acid and water is poured upon the waste, and the whole set to boiling by a system of steam pipes passing through the tank.

SMART AND PRETTY DRESSES FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

How Not to Dress a Boy—Pictureque Suits Not Always Comfortable—Our Inexpensive Naval Heroes—The Infantry and the Noregrais.

It is not an easy matter for fond mothers to dress their children in garments that will please their own sense of what is fit and most becoming to their previous ages and please the children, too, for the mother love is liable to turn toward picturesque costumes, quaint little Greenway gowns and Fauntleroy suits.

It is true that the old-fashioned little garments are enticing and make the lily and rose faces look lovelier than ever and that a boy in a Fauntleroy does seem a young prince in his velvet and lace, his sash and long curls.

CLEVER SHOOTING.

RESULT OF TWO SHOTS LEARNED AFTER TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

An Incident in the Practice Work of a Southern Field Day—How Colonel Richardson Came to Know That He Had Done Some Damage to His Enemies.

When the Washington artillery was at Morgan City, there were many striking incidents that sprang out of the ceremonies of dedicating Fort Star and of practicing with the solid shot.

It was during the time when the batteries were firing shell at the two targets, which looked like tiny handkerchiefs on the water, they were so far away. A good shot was fired, and the spectators were applauding the excellent marksmanship, and the colonel stepped up to the gun to commend the gunner, when without cause or without knowing why the memory of a similar shot which had been fired 29 years ago almost to the very day flashed into his mind when he had stepped up to a gunner and complimented him in much the same style.

It was when he was at Fort Malone at the siege of Petersburg, which was known as Fort "Damnation," when the shot 29 years before had been fired, and the Fourth of July was almost the anniversary of the very day.

Colonel Richardson was then a captain in the Washington artillery, and he conceived the idea of scoring a point on the Federals by firing on the tents just at the time of the daily consultation.

It was noon the next day when the horses of the Federal officers were seen collected around the two tents. The gunners were told to train their guns upon them and to be certain to make their shots tell. Those two shots were made the center of the interest of those in Fort "Damnation" for that day.

After a deal of preliminary arrangements the two shots were fired, and the tops of the two Sibley tents disappeared like cardhouses in a gale of wind.

With these thoughts in his mind Colonel Richardson turned away from the gunner at Morgan City, and at that moment one of Morgan City's prominent citizens, Mr. Gray, stepped to the colonel's side and said: "Isn't this Colonel Richardson?"

"Well, I have been wanting to meet you for many years, ever since I heard you had been in Fort 'Damnation' at the same time that I was in Fort 'Hell.'"

"Yes," said the colonel, "and when you were in Fort 'Hell'?"

"In July, 1864. In fact, just 29 years ago today," answered Mr. Gray.

The colonel instantly thought of those two shots and wondered if his curiosity was to be satisfied. "Do you remember a day while you were opposite me in Fort 'Hell' when the tents of the officers were taken down by two shots which were almost simultaneous?"

THE INFANTRY.

FOR THE FUTURE ARMY.

Down collar is treated in the same manner. And the bands to the bishop sleeves. The lower part of the coat is made with one string over a shoulder to hold them on, and with the feet that nature gave him guileless of shoes and hot stockings in the summer at least, and his little soul longs to have his hair clipped so close to his head that he cannot get hold of it.
