THE EVIL HABIT OF EGG-EATING PRACTICED BY HENS.

Tact, Not Force, Should be Exercised is Teaching a Calf to Drink Cheapen. Most Effective and Simplest Way to Prevent Horns Growing on Cattle,

Prof Roberts of Cornell University

caustic potash in stick form, which may be procured at any drug store, is the cheapest, most effective and simpler way to prevent horns from growing on cattle. He says: "The best times apply is early in the life of the missis igst as soon as the little horns can b distinguished by the touch. The his should be closely clipped from the six and the little horn moistened with water to which a few drops of ammonia has been added to dissolve the oily secreting of the skin, so that the potash will resi-ily adhere to the surface of the box. Care must be taken not to moisten skin except on the horn where the por ash is to be applied. One end of the stick of caustic potash is dipped in water until it is slightly softened. It is then rubbed on the moistened surfaces the little horn. The whole operati need take only a few minutes, and 2, calf is apparently insensible to it. slight scab forms over the budding hors and drops off in the course of a month or six weeks, leaving a perfectly smooth No inflammation or suppuration has taken place in any of the trials as have made. The results of these expeiments warrant the following reconmendations: 1. That for efficiency, cheapness and ease of application stick caustic potash can be safely recommend. ed for preventing the growth of home 2. The earlier the application is made: the life of the call the better." the caustic while not in use so it will no be exposed to the air.

Teaching Calves to Drink. According to E. E. Emery, agricultaist at the North Carolina experimen station, the successful calf feeder will use more tact than force in teaching a calf to drink. He will never allow; foolish calf to betray him into a passis or display of brute force. Do not allow the calf to suck the whole hand or sin gle finger; but, placing the palm of either hand over the nose, gently bring it is the milk held in a convenient-sized pa in the other hand. By separating the fingers hold back the sides of the tongs and insure the entrance of milk when the calf sucks. If the milk is warm there will be less trouble; then give the calf more or less of the two fingers, ascording to the success in keeping it is terested in the milk. When the calf i touching its tongue or lips. If it act badly, give the fingers to suck and ontrive to let in a dash of milk, so a se now and then will encourage the calf continue. I have been obliged to di my hand repeatedly into the milk and thus give a taste of it before the call would allow its nose to be turned in the pail. Some calves will drink during the first to third trial, while others will need the finger a much longer time.

Hens Enting Eggs. Upon this question the Town and Country Journal of Australia says: 00 all the evil habits that hens can acquis that of egg-eating is perhaps the most provoking and unpardonable and at the same time most incurable. In the nat ural or wild state the hen hides her no in a thicket to protect it from her companions, male and female. Here ti preservation of her eggs is paramount: everything else. If we follow the miural order of things, all is well; if me deviate from it to a greater or less d astrous results follow such action. oun e of preventive is worth a pound Therefore start properly will cure. the pullets by placing their nests in a retired and secluded portion of the build ing.
