

The latest investigations by the United States and Canadian Governments show the Royal Baking Powder superior to all others in purity and leavening strength.

Statements by other manufacturers to the contrary have been declared by the official authorities as falsifications of the official reports.

AS THE BIRDS SOAR.

THEY POINT TO NOVEL IDEAS OF MECHANICAL IMPORTANCE.

Bodies Weighing Ten Pounds Float in the Air For Hours Without Apparent Effort. Testimony of a Professor of the Smithsonian Institution.

It has long been observed that certain species of birds maintain themselves indefinitely in the air by soaring, without any flapping of the wing or any motion other than a slight rocking of the body, and this although the body in question is many hundred times denser than the air in which it seems to float with an undulating movement as on the waves of an invisible stream.

No satisfactory mechanical explanation of this anomaly has been given, and none would be offered in the connection by the writer were he not satisfied that it involves much more than an ontological problem, and that it is paradoxical at first sight, since they imply that under certain specified conditions very heavy bodies entirely detached from the earth, immersed in and free to move in the air, can be sustained there indefinitely without any expenditure of energy from within.

These bodies may be entirely of mechanical construction, but for the purpose we will continue to consider the character of the invisible support of the soaring bird and to study its motions, though only as a pregnant instance offered by nature, to show that a rational solution of the mechanical problem is possible.

It is frequently suggested by those who know these facts only from books that there must be some quivering of the wings so rapid as to escape observation. Those who do know them from observation are aware that it is also entirely certain that nothing of the kind takes place, and that the birds sustain themselves on pinions which are quite rigid and motionless, except for a rocking or balancing movement, involving little energy.

To the writer, who has himself been attracted from his earliest years to the mystery which has surrounded this action of the soaring bird, it has been a subject of continual surprise that it has attracted so little attention from physicists. That nearly inert bodies, weighing from five to ten and even more pounds, and many hundred times denser than the air, should be visibly suspended in the air above our heads, sometimes for hours at a time, and without falling—this, it might seem, is, without misuse of language, to be called a physical miracle, and yet the fact that those whose province it is to investigate nature have hitherto seldom thought it deserving attention is perhaps the greater wonder.

The writer will not attempt any general description of his own observations, but as an illustration of what can sometimes be seen will give a single one, to whose exactness he can personally vouch. The common turkey buzzard (Cathartes aura) is so plentiful around the environs of Washington that there is rarely a time when some of them may not be seen in the sky, gliding in curves over some attractive point or more rarely—moving in nearly straight lines on rigid wings. If there be a moderate wind, on the only occasion when the motion of one near at hand could be studied in a very high wind, the author was crossing the long aqueduct bridge over the Potomac in an unusually violent November gale, the velocity of the wind being probably over 35 miles an hour.

At one time during the operation Wilson appeared to be regaining consciousness, and opening his eyes said: "What's the matter? Where am I?" Then he went back into a comatose condition. Seeing that the case was of a serious nature, Dr. Palmer called a cab, and the young man was taken to his room at Dr. Gray's home. Here both physicians continued to work over him. All Sunday night Wilson's respiration was low, but regular, and his pulse at times very feeble. He came out of his unconsciousness naturally and now appears to be all right. Neither Dr. Gray nor Dr. Palmer can give any explanation of Wilson's long sleep. They do not think that any serious results will follow.—Chicago Herald.

A HYPNOTIZING SERMON.

Frank Wilson Falls Asleep in Church and Stumbers Sixty Hours. Frank Wilson attended the Hemenway Methodist church at Evanston Sunday night and fell asleep while the pastor, Rev. E. H. Wilkinson, was preaching. He did not thoroughly awaken until Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Drs. Palmer and Gray worked over the unconscious man the greater part of Sunday night without avail. When Wilson awoke, aside from a slight weakness he said he felt as well as ever.

Wilson is about 25 years old and is a student in the Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. He is of slight build and of fair complexion, and of late has been complaining of not feeling well. He and Harry Boyes, another student, went to church together. Shortly after the pastor began speaking Wilson's eyes closed, and his head dropped on his companion's shoulder. He was apparently sound asleep. Boyes, knowing that Wilson had not been feeling well and thinking that on account of the excessive heat in the church he had become faint, did not attempt to arouse him. After the congregation had passed out at the close of the service he tried to awaken his companion. Repeated shakings seemed to make no impression on the sleeper, and Dr. Palmer, who was present, advised that Wilson be carried out to the fresh air. He was immediately taken outside and given a vigorous rubbing and restoratives administered.

At one time during the operation Wilson appeared to be regaining consciousness, and opening his eyes said: "What's the matter? Where am I?" Then he went back into a comatose condition. SUCCESSOR TO DE GIERS.

Prince Lohanoff-Rostovski, Russia's Newly Appointed Foreign Minister.

The appointment of Prince Lohanoff-Rostovski to the ministry of foreign affairs in the Russian government instead of M. de Staal, whose name was first sent out in connection with the place, is spoken of in some quarters as a decidedly anti-French movement on the part of the Russian government at Vienna.

Prince Lohanoff is a little past 60 and has long been prominent in European diplomacy. For the last 11 years he has represented the Russian government at Vienna. Before that for a short time he was stationed in London, before that was attached to the ministry of the Interior at St. Petersburg and yet previous to that was Russian minister at Constantinople.

It will be seen from all this that he must be very well posted indeed in the politics of the continent, and his sentiments will be understood when it is stated that he considers Vienna the ideal center of diplomacy. He is, in short, a stout advocate of the triple alliance of Russia, Germany and Austria and is understood to have been somewhat out of favor during the reign of the late czar because he could not or would not conceal his opinion that Russia's pretensions of Bulgaria was stupid and the "dirigation" with the republic of France filled with danger. It is predicted that the coming few months will witness such a "love feast of kaisers" as has not taken place since 1875, and that the object of it will be to crush the growing popular movement in each of the three great European empires.

Prince Lohanoff-Rostovski is of very ancient family—he boasts openly that it is as old as honorable as that of the Romanoffs themselves. The name Lohanoff is derived from an early ancestor who was named Lohan because of his high forehead and Rostovski from the old town of Rostov, where the Lohanoffs were for generations reigning princes.

Lohanoff's appointment will be generations retaining prince.

IMPRISONED BY THE FRENCH.

Two Colored Gentlemen in the Wood Pile, Possibly, in Ex-Consul Waller's Case.

An enterprising colored citizen of the United States is just now occupying a very conspicuous position before the public eye despite the fact that he is in jail. His name is John L. Waller. He was United States consul at Tamatave, Madagascar, under the Harrison administration, and he was recently convicted of conspiring against France by a French court martial and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

France is being her best to steal Madagascar from the British and her action against Waller seems to be a case where the other two colored gentlemen in the wood pile. One of them is Waller, and the other is the fact that the enterprising Afro-American has received very valuable land concessions from the Hova government, much to the displeasure of France, which is extending a protectorate of arms over Madagascar and claims that she has exclusive control over the foreign affairs of the Hovas. Waller was shrewd enough to get control of about 250 square miles of land covered with India rubber trees and other valuable forests, and as these are desired by the French colonists there seems good ground for at least a suspicion that the action against Waller is inspired by the wish to rob him of his concession.

Waller was born a slave in Missouri in 1850. When the war began, he was conscripted by Federal troops and was sent to the French colonies and was in the school education and became a lawyer. He began the practice of his profession in Leavenworth 12 years ago. He soon removed to Topeka, where he started a newspaper and became prominently identified with politics. He was the first colored member of the Kansas Republican state central committee and was chosen to the office by acclamation in 1880. In 1883 he was the only Afro-American presidential elector, and he has been frequently appointed to state offices.

In February, 1891, when he was appointed consul to Tamatave, he was superintendent of the industrial department of the island of Madagascar. He is in the school of the consul, a very excellent one, and he was credited with being a lawyer of considerable ability. He served as consul until Feb. 28, 1893, when he was relieved by the present consul. Since he retired to private life he has been very active as a business man, and it is said that his concession from the Hova government was granted under more reasonable conditions than were ever before obtained by a foreigner.

THE PUBLIC BUILDING BOSS.

Career of the New Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department. William Martin Aiken, the new supervising architect of the treasury department, is a member of the well-known Aiken family of South Carolina, but has been for some time one of the leading architects of Cincinnati. The office to which he has been appointed has attracted a great deal of attention of late owing to the fact that the American Institute of Architects has been conducting a spirited crusade having for its object the abolition of the architectural department under control of the secretary of the treasury. The architects of the country generally believe that the department is a radically wrong and perilous government adjunct, but there seems to be strong sentiment that Mr. Aiken is a man well fitted for the important position.

Mr. Aiken was born in Charleston about 40 years ago, and for several generations his family has been prominent in the social and political life of the Palmetto State. The town of Aiken, S. C., was named after his grandfather's brother, and Hon. D. G. Aiken, who entered the Forty-eighth congress and served four terms, is his uncle. His family is also related to the Aldriches, one of whom—Judge James Aldrich—presided over the historic Barnwell courthouse meeting that precluded the attack upon Fort Sumter.

Mr. Aiken studied architecture in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology under the celebrated H. H. Richardson and bears the reputation of having been one of his best pupils. About seven years ago he located in Cincinnati, where he displayed his taste and skill in designing the Brien Scientific school attached to Miami university, in remodeling the old Christ church and in planning other important structures that called for the exercise of ability of a high order.

Mr. Aiken was one of 36 applicants for the $4,000 place he has won, and was endorsed by United States Senator Bruce and numerous other influential persons. His duties will comprise the care of 150 public buildings that have been or are being constructed throughout the country and the designing of others that may be provided for by congressional appropriations during his term of office. The previous incumbent of the office was Jeremiah O'Rourke of Newark, N. J.

Telephones on Sheep Ranches. The use of the telephone on Australian sheep ranches is becoming common. Its employment is mentioned on the Clark ranch in Montana, where all the sheep and shepherds are watched and handled telephonically by means of six stations, all communicating with a central point, from which come weather signals, orders, etc.

Great Hop Yards of the Northwest. The palm for possessing the largest single hop ranch in the world, which has for a long time been the proud boast of King county, will soon pass to the east side of the Cascade mountains. Yakima county has laid claim to the distinction, and by next summer will have every right to it, for there will be growing at that time upon her rich valley lands 600 acres of hops in one body.

The big Snoqualmie hop ranch in this county contains 340 acres in one body planted to hops, and the Lillenthal's of San Francisco own a yard at Pleasanton, Alameda county, Cal., of 550 acres, to which they are adding 400 acres more, which when fully planted will be larger than the Yakima yard.—Seattle Telegraph.

ON THE SPOT.

"Out damned spot," was what troubled Mrs. Macbeth, but it was something intangible that she saw. In the active season of spring and summer sports—there are spots that are not visionary, but which bring with them pain and great discomfort. Bruises, black and blue, are the accompaniments of every active sport. They often trouble and are always a sore trouble. Come from what source they may, the thing to do on the spot is to use St. Jacobs Ointment freely and promptly. There is nothing sweeter of a salve. In like manner sudden attacks of rheumatism, to which people are liable at this season, can be promptly cured by applying St. Jacobs Ointment to the pain spot.

TRAVEL EPICUREANISM Means the best thing you can find while traveling. Well, it is no exaggeration to say that all the accessories of Travel Epicureanism can be found on the North-Western Limited. It is the handsomest train in all the New Northwest and every coach is nothing more nor less than a well-furnished palace.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them.

That Tired Feeling

It is remarkable how many people there are who have That Tired Feeling and seem to think it is of no importance or that nothing need be done for it. They would not be so careless if they realized how really serious the malady is. But they think or say "It will go off after a while."

We do not mean the legitimate weariness which all experience after a hard day's work, but that all-gone, worn-out feeling which is especially overpowering in the morning, when the body should be refreshed and ready for work. It is often only the forerunner of nervous prostration, with all the horrible suffering that term implies. That Tired Feeling and nervousness are sure indications of an impure and impoverished condition of the blood. The craving of the system for help can only be met by purifying the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one great blood purifier. It expels all impurities, gives vitality and strength, regulates the digestion and makes the weak strong.

"In the spring I felt very much run down—no strength or appetite. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and my appetite improved and I did not have that tired feeling."—H. R. Squires, East Leverett, Mass.
