Pleasing. Rev. J. R. N. Bell chose for his subect, "What is Man, that thou art Mindful of Him?"—Psalms; 8:4. As Mr. Bell announced his text he was greated by the greatest silence through-out the vast auditorium, and this sience was maintained to the east of his discourse, which lasted over an hour. It was plainly evident that there had been no mistake made in selecting Mr.
Bell, a man widely and favorably known throughout the Willamette valley and the whole state of Oregon as a ready and fluent public speaker, a minister of the gospel of sound and sincere principles and a teacher and leading educator, who has ever at heart the best moral and educational interests of our state, to deliver on this oc-

Taking up his subject, he handled it in an able and scholarly way, discussing man, his origin, his destiny and the position he should fill in the world, dwelling more heavily on the second thought. "Man cannot control his origin, but he can control his destiny;" and so he admonished the student to be on the alert and al-ways keep a watchful eye that he might attain that highest standard of a moral and educational sense, thereby being enabled to accomplish the most good to himself and the world. He closed his address by giving some excellent advice to the class of '95.

On the whole, the sermon by Mr. Bell was one of the most noble efforts which so large an audience has listened to for many days in this city, and its effect will not soon be forgotten by those who heard it.

attorney for the defendants pre-sented a demurrer to the indictment and the same was argued. The demurrer claims that the grand jury had no legal authority to inquire into the crime, because the same was not triable in this county; also to its form; also that more than one crime is alleged; also that the facts stated do not constitute a crime against said defendant or either of them and does not constitute a crime at all.

After the conclusion of the argument by the attorneys, Judge Fullerton took the matter under advisement until tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock when he will give a decision.
