SPOKES FROM THE WHEEL. A Batch of Interesting Bicycle Notes.

Women cyclists are becoming very numerous in Portugal. In France there are far more female than male bicyclists.

Two daughters of Senator Gorman ride a tandem together. There is a dim suspicion that Mrs. Cleveland is going to learn bicycling.

There is no question in bicycling being more discussed than that of dress, and there is none perhaps more in need of discussion.

Ex-President Casimir-Perier has joined the army of cyclists in Paris, and on fine mornings takes a spin along the shady paths of the Bois de Boulogne.

The English statesman, Balfour, recently used his cycling experience to illustrate a point. He likened an opponent to a novice learning to ride a wheel.

It is announced that President Seth Low is going to make a tour of Europe on his bicycle. The European bands will please play "Hail Columbia" when they see the wheel coming.

One woman says: "I didn't believe in bloomers until my skirts caught between my chain and sprocket wheel and threw me off on a railroad crossing, but I do now. I didn't ride after that accident until I got bloomers."

The How of It. When the breezy bloomers are the universal gown, how will tailors press the creases into them, does anybody know?

A Child Killed. We have just learned of a fatal accident which occurred on Fern Ridge, in the Menonite settlement, three or four days ago, but are unable to learn the name of the parent of the unfortunate child.

SOMETHING ABOUT NAILS.—There has been quite a change in the nail market the past week. For years past the sixty penny nail has been the base, and the price on nails from the sixty penny down to the ten penny graduatedly advanced until there was a difference of fifty cents per hundred pounds between the sixty and ten penny nails.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE.—Kate H. Anderson has instituted suit in the circuit court of Lane county to secure a divorce from Charles Anderson. She alleges that they were married at Roseburg June 9, 1894, and that on July 26th of that year he commenced a course of cruel and inhuman treatment, which continued until June 4, 1895, when she left him. She asks that her maiden name—Kate H. Jones—be restored.

OUR ROUGH SEA VOYAGE.

The Editors Make a Trip out Over the Bar on the Steamer Farallon. The following interesting account of the trip of the editors out over the bar at Newport last Sunday was written by Webster Kincaid, aged 11 years.

We'll begin with my story we get up, dress, wash, comb our hair and get ready for breakfast, some were talking about the steamer, which would soon make a trip over the bar and run up and down the coast. Papa and I got through breakfast and I commenced hunting for agate rocks.

The steamer Farallon attracts our attention by whistling 2 times, which I met Mr Moorhead, manager of the Ocean House, said meant that the steamer would start in 30 minutes.

I told papa we had better go so we started down to commence our rough sea voyage which we knew nothing about. When we reached the steamer the wharf was crowded like a swarm of bees.

Suddenly I heard some people laughing at somebody. I looked around and saw Ira Campbell, editor and owner of the Eugene Guard, calmly and sadly walking down the deck.

When the breezy bloomers are the universal gown, how will tailors press the creases into them, does anybody know? When the baby's head is nodding and it wants to take a nap, how can mamma lull the darling in her bifurcated lap?

SECOND TEST.

Water Hose Shown to be far Superior to the Chemical Engine. Eugene was all astir again last evening to witness the second test of the new chemical engine.

Engine company had charge of the new chemical engine and Oregon and Rescue hose teams had the water hose. Considerable strife had risen between the two companies and speculation was rife yesterday.

By 9 o'clock an immense crowd of spectators was present. A bursted section of hose pipe delayed the program for quite a bit, but at last all was in readiness.

The oil added stimulus to the flames and the two little hoses burned with a fierce fury. When it began to look as if the flames must be beyond control, the word was given to "go."

The actual time required by each company to get its fire under control after the water was turned on was as follows: Hose team, 2:12; chemical engine, 4:21.

THE ENGINE PURCHASED. The council held a meeting this morning, and in accordance with the contract, which was to purchase the engine if it came up to the recommendations in the last, which it did.
